Senate Move To Clamp Ceiling On Armed Manpower Delays Progress On Draft-UMTS Bill

Agrees To Vote Today On Sen. Morse's Amendment For 3,500,000-Man Limit

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— Senators put on a bitter fight today over proposals to clamp a ceiling of 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 on the nation's armed manpower. They agreed finally to vote on the question tomorrow afternoon.

For a time there appeared a prospect that the Democratic and Republican leadership might get together on a compromise somewhere between those figures. Some of the head men hoped by that means to head off further talk on the issue which unexpectedly held up progress on the bill for 18-year-old draft and a system of universal military training.

The Senate finally recessed with an agreement to vote at 1:30 p. m. EST Wednesday on the amendment by Sen. Morse (R-Ore) for a 3,500,000-man limit on the combined strength of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marines. They have had no ceiling since the August flurry of defense legislation after the outbreak of war in Korea.

Enlistment Term Cut—Rejected

Morse first proposed a limit of 3,000,000, then went to 3,100,000 and finally 3,500,000, the figure President Truman uses in talk about plans.

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) then proposed 4,000,000. He withdrew that proposal when the voting agreement was reached, but said he will reoffer it separately later if Morse's amendment loses.

The subject of a manpower limit came up shortly after the Senate by a 77-14 vote had turned down a proposal by Morse to cut all the services down to the three-year enlistment term which is the Army's minimum for volunteers. Morse accused the Air Force, Navy and Marines of "stockpiling" manpower at the Army's expense by high pressuring youths to enlist for longer terms in order to avoid ground forces duty.

The debate ranged around the idea that all the other services require four years or more from volunteers but the Marine Corps said it is taking three-year enlistments.

Simultaneously with the Senate debate there were these related developments on the military manpower front:

Army Wants 60,000 In May

1. The Army called on Selective Service for 60,000 men in May, 20,000 less than it has been calling monthly since January. The May inductions will bring to 590,000 the number drafted for the Army since last year. The other services still get all their men by voluntary enlistment. Army officials said the reduced call-up represents no change of plans but was plotted weeks ago.

2. Selective Service advised draft boards that only students actually selected for Reserve Officers Training Corps programs are eligible for draft deferment on that account. Aides to Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said the bulletin was issued because many boards mistakenly believe a college student is automatically deferred by ROTC service.

Purchases Of Tin For U. S. Stockpile Are Suspended

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— The government announced today all new purchases of tin for the national stockpile will be suspended immediately.

Suspension of the purchases for the stockpile had been recommended by the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee until Britain and other non-Communist countries agreed to stop what the senators termed "gouging" of American taxpayers by tin mine owners and speculators.

Announcing the decision to stop new purchases, the General Services Administration said:

"The policy is expected to continue until the price of tin reaches a reasonable level."

Murray Defends Support Of RFC Loan For Hotel

Action Was Routine, Senator Contends

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— Sen. Murray (D-Mont.) defended today his support of a $1,000,000 RFC loan for a Florida hotel and challenged investigating senators to make public a complete list of congressional contracts with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Publication of "all phone calls, interviews and letters" between members of Congress and the RFC since its inception would show that his own action in the Florida case was routine, Murray contended.

Son Received Fee

A Senate Banking Subcommittee inquiring into alleged political influence on the lending policy of the RFC heard evidence yesterday that Murray went to bat for a loan for the Sorrento Hotel of Miami Beach at a time when his son, James Murray, was acting as attorney for the hotel in loan negotiations.

Murray said his son was a lawyer "conducting proper and ethical services for his clients." He added "I can see no reason why, because he is my son, I should treat him any differently than I would any other lawyer."

Hits Conduction Of Hearing

"When he called my attention to the problems he and his associates were encountering in connection with this matter," Murray went on, "and when investigation convinced me that his facts were correct, I volunteered to make exactly the same sort of representation to the RFC that I have made in many similar cases for other citizens."

Murray charged indignantly that yesterday's subcommittee hearing was conducted to leave the impression that the Sorrento loan was "improper or unusual."

La Prensa's Editor Puzzled By Charge

BUENOS AIRES, March 6 (AP) — Dr. Alberto Gainza Pas, editor and publisher of the government-closed La Prensa, said today he could not understand the federal police charge that he had violated the security of the state.

The charge was filed late last night, but more than 20 hours later there was no effort to take Gainza Paz before a federal judge for questioning.

LaPrensa has been closed down for 40 days, first by a news venders' union boycott and a sympathy strike of printers. Non-striking employes attempted to reopen the plant. A street battle outside the printing plant ensued when the pro-government union men tried to block them. One man was killed and a federal police judge closed the plant while he investigated.

Truman Should "Clean House," Knowland Says

Irked By Criticism Of Probe Speeches

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP) — Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) demanded tonight that President Truman returns from his Florida vacation and "clean house." He said some officials are weakening "the moral fibre of the country."

Knowland made this demand in the Senate after Sen. McFarland of Arizona, the Democratic leader, chided Republicans for making what he called "political speeches" criticizing a Senate committee's investigation of the Maryland senatorial election last November.

McFarland asserted that the Republicans had interrupted Senate action on the important draft bill to inject politics into the debate.

Knowland Fires Back

Obviously angered, Knowland fired back the demand that Mr. Truman cut short his vacation at Key West, Fla., and return to Washington.

"With all of this testimony about mink coats in the White House, conditions in the RFC and the buying of jobs in Mississippi, the President of the United States should return from his Florida vacation and clean house where it is needed," Knowland shouted.

He alluded to testimony before a Senate Banking Subcommittee which involved a White House stenographer's mink coat, reputed efforts to influence RFC board members on loans, and an inquiry demanded by Mississippi senators into reports that federal jobs were peddled in their state.

Knowland said that he believes there are "more things striking at the moral fabric of America than the Maryland election."

Probe Tyding's Charges

A Senate Elections Subcommittee headed by Sen. Monroney (D-Okla) is inquiring into charges by former Sen. Millard Tydings that unfair tactics were used against him when he was defeated last November by Sen. Butler (R-Md.)

Tydings cited a composite picture showing him with Earl Browder, former Communist leader.

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) and Brewster (R-Me) said the picture was labeled "composite" adding that far rougher tactics had been used against candidates in other campaigns than that.

N. Y. Cotton Exchange To Reopen Tomorrow

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP) — The New York Cotton Exchange will resume futures trading Thursday after a suspension of almost six weeks pending clarification of the government's price freeze order on January 26.

The governors of the exchange announced the reopening tonight after an afternoon-long meeting.

The way to resumption of trading was paved by a decision of the Office of Price Stabilization today setting a uniform price ceiling of 45.39 cents a pound for all transactions on the cotton futures markets, regardless of the location of delivery points.

Salesman Spends $40,000 He Swindled On Showgirl

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP) — A small-time guy with big ideas was arrested today, accused of swindling $40,000 to keep a beautiful brown-eyed showgirl in diamonds, minks and Cadillacs.

And all the gal, lovely Rosemary Williamson, had to say for his efforts was that "he was such a pest he annoyed me."

The man was 27-year-old Sidney M. Levy, who made $75 a week as a textile salesman—an income that won't let a fellow do much in the showgirl whirl.

So, said District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, Levy picked up $40,000 illegally and spent about half of it on Rosemary, a very shapely doll of 23.

Levy was charged with grand larceny.

Hogan said Levy told two dentists and a night club manager he had a deal with textile mills to buy nylon goods for $1 a yard and sell it for $1.50 a yard. There never was any such deal, the district attorney added.

However, Hogan said Dr. Henry P. Dwork went for $18,000 and a fellow - dentist, Dr. Walter B. Nicora, for $15,000 to bankroll Levy. And Constance Kaplan, who runs a Manhattan nightclub, chipped in another $7,000.

The district attorney said Levy spent $15,000 to $20,000 on Miss Williamson, a Dayton, O., brunette who was married at 16 and later divorced. She has a six-year-old son.

Sharp Clashes Mark Big Four Deputies Talks

Gromyko Delivers Propaganda Blast

PARIS, March 6 (AP)—A controversy that has bogged down so many East-West meetings — how basic issues should be interpreted—caused sharp clashes between Russia's Andrei Gromyko and Western Power delegates at the Big Four deputies meeting today.

The deputies are working on proposed agendas for a foreign ministers conference on world problems.

A western official who attended said a split developed over what topics should be taken up and Gromyko made an hour and a half propaganda speech which violated Russia's own stipulation that this conference should not go into the issues involved.

One western representative summed it up with a sigh and the remark: "Here we go again."

Another Session Scheduled

He was referring to the way previous East-West meetings have bogged down in clashes over basic issues and repetitious statements of fundamental and unchanging policies by each side.

But no one appeared yet willing to write this conference off as finished. Another meeting is being held tomorrow, with Gromyko presiding.

"It seems to be a lot of the same old thing, but I suppose we shouldn't be defeatists," said one official.

"Given good will and a desire to bring about a meeting of the foreign ministers, there is no reason why the space between the two agendas (of Russia and the West) cannot be bridged," said a British spokesman.

Russians Give No Briefings

The Russians were giving no briefings to the Western press on what occurred inside.

The deputies — Gromyko, U. S. Ambassador-at-Large Philip Jessup, British Chief Delegate Ernest Davies, and Alexandre Parodi, French permanent undersecretary of foreign affairs—met in Paris' Pink Palace Monday. They are trying to agree on what subjects to talk about at a new foreign ministers conference. Russia originally demanded a Council of Foreign Ministers last November to take up the question of Germany—especially the plans of the Western Powers to bring Germany into their defense setup.

De Gasperi Wins Confidence Vote

ROME, March 6 (AP)—The Italian Chamber of Deputies gave Premier Alcide De Gasperi a 325 to 16 vote of confidence tonight in a tumultous session during which the whole Communist bloc walked out.

The vote actually was on the government's defense appropriation bill, but De Gasperi had announced that the ballot would be taken as a vote of confidence.

An hour before the vote, Communists and allied pro-Communist Socialist deputies shouldered their way angrily from the chamber, shouting that the ballot would be improper and illegal. They had been overruled in demands for a secret ballot and for a three-day notification period by the government.

The government bloc and most of the middle-of-the-road independents voted solidly for the government. The monarchist deputies abstained because their motion for a separate vote of confidence for the defense minister was denied.

It was the wildest night session the Italian parliament has had in months. Speakers were heckled with shouts of "swine" and "gold-bricker," scuffles developed between angry deputies. The presiding officer once threatened to suspend the session unless the right of free speech was observed.

U. S. Demanding Action Against Red China

LAKE SUCCESS, March 6 (AP)—The United States, confronted by an apparent snub by Red China to U. N. peace feelers, was reported today to be renewing demands for action by a special U. N. committee set up to study possible forms of punishment.

Nasrollah Entezam, Iran, president of the U. N. General Assembly and chairman of the U. N. Good Offices Committee for Peace, acknowledged there had been no developments since the committee sent a feeler two weeks ago to see if Red China would deal with the group on the Korean war.

Informed sources said the three-man group sent a second message last Friday urging Peiping to reply to the first overture.

Atomic Spy Trial Begins In New York

Selection Of Jury Progresses Slowly

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Three Americans, charged with betraying atom bomb secrets to the Russians during World War II, went on trial today in federal court.

It is the first atomic spy case in history to come to trial.

Choosing of a jury progressed slowly. Numerous prospective jurors were excused after they said international tensions might keep them from giving a fair verdict.

Others were ruled out after they said they opposed the death penalty.

Jury Still Not Selected

At the end of the day the jury still had not been selected. The process will be resumed tomorrow.

Conviction could bring death to the three defendants — Electrical Engineer Julius Rosenberg, 34, his youthful-looking wife, Ethel, 34, and Radar Expert Morton Sobell, 33.

All are New Yorkers.

Gold, Greenglass To Testify

The case against British Scientist Fuchs, now in prison in England, never came to trial because he pleaded guilty. So did a confessed member of the ring, Philadelphia Chemist Harry Gold.

Gold, now serving a 30-year term, and another admitted atom spy, David Greenglass, 29, of Manhattan, are scheduled to testify for the prosecution.

Greenglass, a former Army sergeant who worked on the a-bomb at Los Alamos, N. M., is a brother of Mrs. Rosenberg, whose fate may hinge on his testimony. He himself is awaiting sentence on his guilty plea.

Midwest's Blizzard Blows Itself Out

[By The Associated Press]

The northern midwest's blizzard blew itself out Tuesday, but intense cold remained over the area and—in milder form—was heading eastward.

Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota had frigid weather, with readings as low as -27 at Glasgow, Mont. and -19 at Minot, N. D. At noon Tuesday Glasgow had warmed up only to -15, and Minot to -4.

Cold wave warnings were issued for Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota Tuesday night as the Arctic air pushed southward and eastward.

Mother Drowns Three Children In Bathtub

WESTFIELD, Mass., March 6 (INS)—A deranged mother who told police the noise of her children bothered her drowned three of them today in the bathtub of their Westfield home.

Authorities quoted Mrs. Wanda Kozierad, 33, as saying, "I just couldn't stand it any longer." She later led police to the half-filled bathtub, containing the bodies of her children, Frances, 4; Alice, 2; and Peter, five-months.

Labor Break With Pay Board Shows Some Signs Of Healing

Union Leaders, Johnston Confer; Wilson Doesn't Know What "Shooting" Is About

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— Organized labor's break with the government's mobilization program showed some signs of healing today.

But across the breach, union chiefs traded hot words with Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson.

It was a confused day.

In Washington, there were peace talks. Union leaders met with Economic Stablizer Eric Johnston for the first time since they pulled out of the mobilization program last week. They said later they were hopeful at least part of their differences with the government could be settled.

In Florida, Wilson flew to see President Truman, who is semi-vacationing at Key West. Wilson said later that "nothing and nobody" must interfere with the country's buildup of military strength. And he said neither he nor the President knew what "all the shooting" by labor leaders is about.

Labor "Terms" Outlined

Tonight organized labor was reported to have agreed on a set of terms under which it would reenter the government's wage stabilization program.

A leading figure in the United Labor Policy Committee, whose name could not be used, gave this unofficial outline of the terms:

The major requirement is that a new wage board of 18 members be set up with power to handle disputes.

Other terms involve the relaxing of the 10 per cent ceiling on wage increases above the Jan. 15, 1950, levels. One would be to lift that ceiling every three months to the extent of percentage rises in the government's cost of living index.

Wilson Statement Denied

As for settling the dispute with Mobilization Director Wilson, the ULPC said all it wants is co-equal standing in the organization—a staff appointment on a level with Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Attorney Sidney Weinberg.

One controversy arose today before Wilson took a plane from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to talk with Mr. Truman.

The Fort Lauderdale News quoted Wilson, former head of General Electric Co., as saying "allocation of manpower is the real issue" in his row with organized labor.

"Shockingly untrue," was the response of the United Labor Policy Committee, made up of most major American unions.

3 Die When B-26 Dives Into Ocean

EASTVILLE, Va., March 6 (AP)— A B-26 bomber from Langley Air Force Base plunged into the Atlantic Ocean late today near an island off Virginia's eastern shore, killing three men.

It was the second fatal crash of a Langley-based B-26 in less than 24 hours in Virginia. Another of the Air Force's attack-bombers crashed late last night near Staunton, killing both crewmen aboard.

Bodies of two airmen had been recovered from the second crash early tonight, according to the Cobbs Island Coast Guard Station. A third man was missing. Names of the three crewmen were withheld.

Collazo Admits He Fired First

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— Oscar Collazo conceded in federal court today he fired the first shot in the Blair House gun battle last Nov. 1.

And the little Puerto Rican Nationalist acknowledged that he intended to hit Private Donald T. Birdzell of the White House police.

But Collazo insisted, both in direct testimony and under cross-examination, that he did not intend to kill Birdzell, President Truman or anyone else.

Collazo, the only defense witness called to the stand in his first-degree murder trial, completed his testimony at 11:10 a. m. Then defense and prosecution attorneys told Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough they had no further testimony.

The indictment against Collazo contains two first-degree murder counts. Both are based on the slaying of Private Leslie Coffelt of the White House police.

"Cardiac Kitchen" Makes Life Easier For Housewife

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—A model "cardiac kitchen" that makes life easier for the housewife was on view today at Women and Children's Hospital.

It was designed for women who have heart ailments. But Dr. Margaret H. Austin, staff cardiologist, says there is no reason why others shouldn't take advantage of its time-and-work saving efficiency.

"By arranging their appliances and work spaces as we have done," she said, "women can easily save two hours daily in tiresome chores."

The kitchen has a compact 9½ by 11 feet area. Its features include:

The work centers—stove, refrigerator, sink and work table—are close to each other.

Shelves are no higher than 6½ feet from the floor—within easy reach of the average woman.

The refrigerator has a left door swing, so the housewife can reach into it without rising from her chair at the adjacent table.

A top (high) oven on the stove is used, cutting down on stooping.

There also is a rocking chair. The housewife can sit down in it and rest while she plans her work day.

Reds Launch Heavy Central Front Attack

May Be Opening Of Counteroffensive

TOKYO, Wednesday, March 7 (AP) —Allied infantry today crossed the Han River east of Red-held Seoul but enemy forces loosed an attack in East-Central Korea which may mark the beginning of an expected Red counteroffensive.

The Han crossings were made at two points east of Seoul in a flanking move against that ancient Korean capital.

The crossing, achieved after artillery pounded Chinese Reds on the north bank, broke the quiet of the long dormant western front. The attack opened at 6:15 a. m.

After getting to the north bank, the infantrymen moved across sandy flatlands against moderate resistance.

Blow Falls In Mountain Area

Allied officers told AP Correspondent Tom Stone this blow, struck eight to 12 miles northeast of the Allied-held highway town of Pangnim, might be the opening of a Red counteroffensive. However, it fell in a mountainous terrain unsuitable for any swift movements.

One regiment of the South Korean Seventh Division reported it was under attack at 6 a. m. by four Red regiments.

West of the South Koreans, two American divisions — the Seventh and Second—have been cutting up North Korean units and chasing them deeper into the trackless mountains.

The Second Division slogged forward Tuesday more than a mile in a blizzard on the trail of casualty-riddled Korean Reds.

Field dispatches said that while the snowstorm grounded Allied planes it helped the American troops to follow the tracks of the elusive Communists. Along the route lay the frozen bodies of "hundreds of enemy dead" killed in recent fighting.

Allies In Changpyong

Farther east, the U. S. Seventh Division was reported by Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. 8th Army commander, to be in possession of the highway communication center of Changpyong.

A field dispatch, however, said a tank-led force that entered Changpyong Monday withdrew at nightfall. An Eighth Army briefing officer reported a Seventh Division armored patrol drew stiff Communist anti-tank and mortar fire Tuesday one mile south of the town.

In the center of the United Nations line of attack Chinese Communists battled stubbornly at two road approaches to Hongchon — headquarters of the Chinese 66th Army Corps.

Hongchon, 22 air miles south of the 38th parallel, forms the apex of a defense triangle formed by three vital roads. It is reputed to be the focal point of a 300,000-man Red buildup.

Heiress' Divorce Try Hits Snag

CUERNAVACA, Mexico, March 6 (AP) —A snag in Barbara Hutton's effort to divorce Prince Igor Troubetzkoy seemingly showed up today.

Melvin Belli, attorney for the 39-year-old Lithuanian prince, said in San Francisco a "quickie divorce" try by the 38-year-old Woolworth heiress had been "stopped at the last minute."

Court officials here wouldn't talk.

No official would confirm that attorneys for the Prince had filed an answer to the charge of mental cruelty. But some persons who visit daily at the dingy, sprawling, nondescript little courthouse said a contest had been filed.

Budget Tops Soviet Parliament's Agenda

MOSCOW, March 6 (AP) — The Soviet Parliament met today with adoption of a 1951 budget as its chief item of business for the five-day session.

Foreign diplomats, on hand at the opening, were keenly interested in whether the defense budget, which will be presented tomorrow night by Finance Minister Arseny G. Zverev, will show a big increase.

The 1950 budget provided for total expenditures of 427,900,000,000 rubles ($106,975,000,000 at the Soviet rate of 25 cents for the value of the ruble). The defense budget was 79,400,000,000 rubles, up 400,000,000 rubles from 1949.

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP) — The Defense Department today identified 279 additional casualties of the war in Korea.

N. Y. Cotton Exchange To Reopen Tomorrow

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP) — The New York Cotton Exchange will resume futures trading Thursday after a suspension of almost six weeks pending clarification of the government's price freeze order on January 26.

The governors of the exchange announced the reopening tonight after an afternoon-long meeting.

The way to resumption of trading was paved by a decision of the Office of Price Stabilization today setting a uniform price ceiling of 45.39 cents a pound for all transactions on the cotton futures markets, regardless of the location of delivery points.

Salesman Spends $40,000 He Swindled On Showgirl

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP) — A small-time guy with big ideas was arrested today, accused of swindling $40,000 to keep a beautiful brown-eyed showgirl in diamonds, minks and Cadillacs.

And all the gal, lovely Rosemary Williamson, had to say for his efforts was that "he was such a pest he annoyed me."

The man was 27-year-old Sidney M. Levy, who made $75 a week as a textile salesman—an income that won't let a fellow do much in the showgirl whirl.

So, said District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, Levy picked up $40,000 illegally and spent about half of it on Rosemary, a very shapely doll of 23.

Levy was charged with grand larceny.

Hogan said Levy told two dentists and a night club manager he had a deal with textile mills to buy nylon goods for $1 a yard and sell it for $1.50 a yard. There never was any such deal, the district attorney added.

However, Hogan said Dr. Henry P. Dwork went for $18,000 and a fellow - dentist, Dr. Walter B. Nicora, for $15,000 to bankroll Levy. And Constance Kaplan, who runs a Manhattan nightclub, chipped in another $7,000.

The district attorney said Levy spent $15,000 to $20,000 on Miss Williamson, a Dayton, O., brunette who was married at 16 and later divorced. She has a six-year-old son.

Sharp Clashes Mark Big Four Deputies Talks

Gromyko Delivers Propaganda Blast

PARIS, March 6 (AP)—A controversy that has bogged down so many East-West meetings — how basic issues should be interpreted—caused sharp clashes between Russia's Andrei Gromyko and Western Power delegates at the Big Four deputies meeting today.

The deputies are working on proposed agendas for a foreign ministers conference on world problems.

A western official who attended said a split developed over what topics should be taken up and Gromyko made an hour and a half propaganda speech which violated Russia's own stipulation that this conference should not go into the issues involved.

One western representative summed it up with a sigh and the remark: "Here we go again."

Another Session Scheduled

He was referring to the way previous East-West meetings have bogged down in clashes over basic issues and repetitious statements of fundamental and unchanging policies by each side.

But no one appeared yet willing to write this conference off as finished. Another meeting is being held tomorrow, with Gromyko presiding.

"It seems to be a lot of the same old thing, but I suppose we shouldn't be defeatists," said one official.

"Given good will and a desire to bring about a meeting of the foreign ministers, there is no reason why the space between the two agendas (of Russia and the West) cannot be bridged," said a British spokesman.

Russians Give No Briefings

The Russians were giving no briefings to the Western press on what occurred inside.

The deputies — Gromyko, U. S. Ambassador-at-Large Philip Jessup, British Chief Delegate Ernest Davies, and Alexandre Parodi, French permanent undersecretary of foreign affairs—met in Paris' Pink Palace Monday. They are trying to agree on what subjects to talk about at a new foreign ministers conference. Russia originally demanded a Council of Foreign Ministers last November to take up the question of Germany—especially the plans of the Western Powers to bring Germany into their defense setup.

De Gasperi Wins Confidence Vote

ROME, March 6 (AP)—The Italian Chamber of Deputies gave Premier Alcide De Gasperi a 325 to 16 vote of confidence tonight in a tumultous session during which the whole Communist bloc walked out.

The vote actually was on the government's defense appropriation bill, but De Gasperi had announced that the ballot would be taken as a vote of confidence.

An hour before the vote, Communists and allied pro-Communist Socialist deputies shouldered their way angrily from the chamber, shouting that the ballot would be improper and illegal. They had been overruled in demands for a secret ballot and for a three-day notification period by the government.

The government bloc and most of the middle-of-the-road independents voted solidly for the government. The monarchist deputies abstained because their motion for a separate vote of confidence for the defense minister was denied.

It was the wildest night session the Italian parliament has had in months. Speakers were heckled with shouts of "swine" and "gold-bricker," scuffles developed between angry deputies. The presiding officer once threatened to suspend the session unless the right of free speech was observed.

U. S. Demanding Action Against Red China

LAKE SUCCESS, March 6 (AP)— The United States, confronted by an apparent snub by Red China to U. N. peace feelers, was reported today to be renewing demands for action by a special U. N. committee set up to study possible forms of punishment.

Nasrollah Entezam, Iran, president of the U. N. General Assembly and chairman of the U. N. Good Offices Committee for Peace, acknowledged there had been no developments since the committee sent a feeler two weeks ago to see if Red China would deal with the group on the Korean war.

Informed sources said the three-man group sent a second message last Friday urging Peiping to reply to the first overture.

Atomic Spy Trial Begins In New York

Selection Of Jury Progresses Slowly

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Three Americans, charged with betraying atom bomb secrets to the Russians during World War II, went on trial today in federal court.

It is the first atomic spy case in history to come to trial.

Choosing of a jury progressed slowly. Numerous prospective jurors were excused after they said international tensions might keep them from giving a fair verdict.

Others were ruled out after they said they opposed the death penalty.

Jury Still Not Selected

At the end of the day the jury still had not been selected. The process will be resumed tomorrow.

Conviction could bring death to the three defendants — Electrical Engineer Julius Rosenberg, 34, his youthful-looking wife, Ethel, 34, and Radar Expert Morton Sobell, 33.

All are New Yorkers.

Gold, Greenglass To Testify

The case against British Scientist Fuchs, now in prison in England, never came to trial because he pleaded guilty. So did a confessed member of the ring, Philadelphia Chemist Harry Gold.

Gold, now serving a 30-year term, and another admitted atom spy, David Greenglass, 29, of Manhattan, are scheduled to testify for the prosecution.

Greenglass, a former Army sergeant who worked on the a-bomb at Los Alamos, N. M., is a brother of Mrs. Rosenberg, whose fate may hinge on his testimony. He himself is awaiting sentence on his guilty plea.

Midwest's Blizzard Blows Itself Out

[By The Associated Press]

The northern midwest's blizzard blew itself out Tuesday, but intense cold remained over the area and—in milder form—was heading eastward.

Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota had frigid weather, with readings as low as -27 at Glasgow, Mont. and -19 at Minot, N. D. At noon Tuesday Glasgow had warmed up only to -15, and Minot to -4.

Cold wave warnings were issued for Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota Tuesday night as the Arctic air pushed southward and eastward.

Mother Drowns Three Children In Bathtub

WESTFIELD, Mass., March 6 (INS)—A deranged mother who told police the noise of her children bothered her drowned three of them today in the bathtub of their Westfield home.

Authorities quoted Mrs. Wanda Kozierad, 33, as saying, "I just couldn't stand it any longer." She later led police to the half-filled bathtub, containing the bodies of her children, Frances, 4; Alice, 2; and Peter, five-months.

Labor Break With Pay Board Shows Some Signs Of Healing

Union Leaders, Johnston Confer; Wilson Doesn't Know What "Shooting" Is About

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— Organized labor's break with the government's mobilization program showed some signs of healing today.

But across the breach, union chiefs traded hot words with Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson.

It was a confused day.

In Washington, there were peace talks. Union leaders met with Economic Stablizer Eric Johnston for the first time since they pulled out of the mobilization program last week. They said later they were hopeful at least part of their differences with the government could be settled.

In Florida, Wilson flew to see President Truman, who is semi-vacationing at Key West. Wilson said later that "nothing and nobody" must interfere with the country's buildup of military strength. And he said neither he nor the President knew what "all the shooting" by labor leaders is about.

Labor "Terms" Outlined

Tonight organized labor was reported to have agreed on a set of terms under which it would reenter the government's wage stabilization program.

A leading figure in the United Labor Policy Committee, whose name could not be used, gave this unofficial outline of the terms:

The major requirement is that a new wage board of 18 members be set up with power to handle disputes.

Other terms involve the relaxing of the 10 per cent ceiling on wage increases above the Jan. 15, 1950, levels. One would be to lift that ceiling every three months to the extent of percentage rises in the government's cost of living index.

Wilson Statement Denied

As for settling the dispute with Mobilization Director Wilson, the ULPC said all it wants is co-equal standing in the organization—a staff appointment on a level with Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Attorney Sidney Weinberg.

One controversy arose today before Wilson took a plane from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to talk with Mr. Truman.

The Fort Lauderdale News quoted Wilson, former head of General Electric Co., as saying "allocation of manpower is the real issue" in his row with organized labor.

"Shockingly untrue," was the response of the United Labor Policy Committee, made up of most major American unions.

3 Die When B-26 Dives Into Ocean

EASTVILLE, Va., March 6 (AP)— A B-26 bomber from Langley Air Force Base plunged into the Atlantic Ocean late today near an island off Virginia's eastern shore, killing three men.

It was the second fatal crash of a Langley-based B-26 in less than 24 hours in Virginia. Another of the Air Force's attack-bombers crashed late last night near Staunton, killing both crewmen aboard.

Bodies of two airmen had been recovered from the second crash early tonight, according to the Cobbs Island Coast Guard Station. A third man was missing. Names of the three crewmen were withheld.

Collazo Admits He Fired First

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— Oscar Collazo conceded in federal court today he fired the first shot in the Blair House gun battle last Nov. 1.

And the little Puerto Rican Nationalist acknowledged that he intended to hit Private Donald T. Birdzell of the White House police.

But Collazo insisted, both in direct testimony and under cross-examination, that he did not intend to kill Birdzell, President Truman or anyone else.

Collazo, the only defense witness called to the stand in his first-degree murder trial, completed his testimony at 11:10 a. m. Then defense and prosecution attorneys told Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough they had no further testimony.

The indictment against Collazo contains two first-degree murder counts. Both are based on the slaying of Private Leslie Coffelt of the White House police.

"Cardiac Kitchen" Makes Life Easier For Housewife

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—A model "cardiac kitchen" that makes life easier for the housewife was on view today at Women and Children's Hospital.

It was designed for women who have heart ailments. But Dr. Margaret H. Austin, staff cardiologist, says there is no reason why others shouldn't take advantage of its time-and-work saving efficiency.

"By arranging their appliances and work spaces as we have done," she said, "women can easily save two hours daily in tiresome chores."

The kitchen has a compact 9½ by 11 feet area. Its features include:

The work centers—stove, refrigerator, sink and work table—are close to each other.

Shelves are no higher than 6½ feet from the floor—within easy reach of the average woman.

The refrigerator has a left door swing, so the housewife can reach into it without rising from her chair at the adjacent table.

A top (high) oven on the stove is used, cutting down on stooping.

There also is a rocking chair. The housewife can sit down in it and rest while she plans her work day.

Reds Launch Heavy Central Front Attack

May Be Opening Of Counteroffensive

TOKYO, Wednesday, March 7 (AP) —Allied infantry today crossed the Han River east of Red-held Seoul but enemy forces loosed an attack in East-Central Korea which may mark the beginning of an expected Red counteroffensive.

The Han crossings were made at two points east of Seoul in a flanking move against that ancient Korean capital.

The crossing, achieved after artillery pounded Chinese Reds on the north bank, broke the quiet of the long dormant western front. The attack opened at 6:15 a. m.

After getting to the north bank, the infantrymen moved across sandy flatlands against moderate resistance.

Blow Falls In Mountain Area

Allied officers told AP Correspondent Tom Stone this blow, struck eight to 12 miles northeast of the Allied-held highway town of Pangnim, might be the opening of a Red counteroffensive. However, it fell in a mountainous terrain unsuitable for any swift movements.

One regiment of the South Korean Seventh Division reported it was under attack at 6 a. m. by four Red regiments.

West of the South Koreans, two American divisions — the Seventh and Second—have been cutting up North Korean units and chasing them deeper into the trackless mountains.

The Second Division slogged forward Tuesday more than a mile in a blizzard on the trail of casualty-riddled Korean Reds.

Field dispatches said that while the snowstorm grounded Allied planes it helped the American troops to follow the tracks of the elusive Communists. Along the route lay the frozen bodies of "hundreds of enemy dead" killed in recent fighting.

Allies In Changpyong

Farther east, the U. S. Seventh Division was reported by Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. 8th Army commander, to be in possession of the highway communication center of Changpyong.

A field dispatch, however, said a tank-led force that entered Changpyong Monday withdrew at nightfall. An Eighth Army briefing officer reported a Seventh Division armored patrol drew stiff Communist anti-tank and mortar fire Tuesday one mile south of the town.

In the center of the United Nations line of attack Chinese Communists battled stubbornly at two road approaches to Hongchon — headquarters of the Chinese 66th Army Corps.

Hongchon, 22 air miles south of the 38th parallel, forms the apex of a defense triangle formed by three vital roads. It is reputed to be the focal point of a 300,000-man Red buildup.

Heiress' Divorce Try Hits Snag

CUERNAVACA, Mexico, March 6 (AP) —A snag in Barbara Hutton's effort to divorce Prince Igor Troubetzkoy seemingly showed up today.

Melvin Belli, attorney for the 39-year-old Lithuanian prince, said in San Francisco a "quickie divorce" try by the 38-year-old Woolworth heiress had been "stopped at the last minute."

Court officials here wouldn't talk.

No official would confirm that attorneys for the Prince had filed an answer to the charge of mental cruelty. But some persons who visit daily at the dingy, sprawling, nondescript little courthouse said a contest had been filed.

Budget Tops Soviet Parliament's Agenda

MOSCOW, March 6 (AP) — The Soviet Parliament met today with adoption of a 1951 budget as its chief item of business for the five-day session.

Foreign diplomats, on hand at the opening, were keenly interested in whether the defense budget, which will be presented tomorrow night by Finance Minister Arseny G. Zverev, will show a big increase.

The 1950 budget provided for total expenditures of 427,900,000,000 rubles ($106,975,000,000 at the Soviet rate of 25 cents for the value of the ruble). The defense budget was 79,400,000,000 rubles, up 400,000,000 rubles from 1949.

W. Va. House Set To OK Medical School Bill

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 6 (AP)—The House of Delegates defeated all amendments and moved up for passage tomorrow a bill to give Gov. Patteson authority to pick a site for a medical school.

The major vote came as the House, 54-32, rejected a proposal that the site be picked jointly by the Governor and the university board of governors.

Delegate Ambler (D-Monongalia) offered that as "a sort of compromise proposal."

Teacher Pay Hike Backers Given Little To Cheer About

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 6 (AP)—Democrats who want to give school teachers a pay raise without hoisting taxes had little to cheer about after conferring with state fiscal officers today.

Three members assigned to probe further into revenue prospects by a party caucus conferred at length with Comptroller J. Millard Tawes and aides this morning.

What they learned will be passed on to the Senate's 18-member majority tomorrow. No announcement followed the meeting with Tawes but there were plain indications the comptroller had offered slight hope for another windfall from present state taxes.

That would throw the problem of teachers' pay right back where it was last weekend.

Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) forced the Senate to pull up again on the Democrats' plan for mapping a new congressional district into Maryland.

Sen. Dippel (D-Balto 3rd) presented a sheaf of amendments to revise boundaries recommended for Baltimore City districts. He said his division would reduce chances of a Republican victory in the new district next year.

When Dippel offered his amendments, Kimble invoked a simple parliamentary device to block consideration until tomorrow. He asked that the elections committee's favorable report on the bill lay over for a day. The rules say such a request must be honored.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 6 (AP)—A drastic reduction in truck weight limits on Maryland highways was proposed to the General Assembly today.

The bill also would include a unique requirement designed to eliminate "creepers"—the monster trucks which crawl up hills with heavy loads while you fret along behind until you can find a place to pass them safely.

The legislation was based on findings made by the Maryland Truck Commission.

It would reduce the axle load limit to 18,000 pounds, in line with a commission finding that the present limit of 22,400 pounds results in heavy damage to most of Maryland's highways.

The section designed to curb "creepers" would permit trucks to carry no more pounds than 500 times the net brake horsepower of their engines.

Mollet Fails In Bid To End French Crisis

PARIS, March 6 (AP)—Premier-Designate Guy Mollet, a Socialist deputy who pleaded for parliamentary help in forming a new cabinet to show all is not confusion in France, failed of confirmation by 25 votes in the National Assembly tonight.

Mollet needed 311 votes in the 621-member assembly for confirmation. The official vote was 286 for him, to 259 against. He was beaten by moderate and rightist groups which oppose his party's socialistic policies.

The outcome means President Vincent Auriol must find someone else as a possible successor to Premier Rene Pleven.

French Bakers Strike

PARIS, Wednesday, March 7 (AP)—Bakers throughout bread-loving France went on a 24-hour strike today. They are protesting that there is too big a gap between the price of flour and bread that sells for 38 francs (16 cents).

German Controls Eased By Allies

BONN, Germany, March 6 (AP)—The Western Powers went a long way toward freeing West Germany from occupation controls today—just as Big Four deputies in Paris debated tackling afresh an all-German peace treaty.

At the same time the Allies were taking steps to ease controls over West Berlin by revising that city's basic law.

The western action was not exactly a bombshell, however, and the first German reaction was "Not enough."

The Allied High Commission announced that the Bonn government has immediate permission to set up a foreign ministry. German ambassadors and diplomats again will be accredited to friendly foreign nations of the West. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who probably will head the new ministry himself, will have almost complete control over Germany's foreign relations.

The three powers also gave up most of their controls over German internal affairs, foreign trade and exchange. No longer will German laws be subject to prior Allied approval.

But the occupation authorities hold the reserve power to step in and take complete charge if necessary to preserve Western security and German democratic government or to fulfill their international obligations.

Steelworker Charged With Woman's Slaying

BALTIMORE, March 6 (AP)—Baltimore County police said today a murder charge against a young steelworker in the death of a 56-year-old woman will be taken directly to the grand jury without a preliminary hearing.

Police have charged Erving Herman Donner, 25, with the slaying early last Thursday of Miss Thelma Parker, an aircraft plant metal worker.

Police still were trying to determine a motive for the killing.

School Board Refuses To Bar Lattimore

BALTIMORE, March 6 (AP)—The city's school commissioners today defied the City Council and said it would be all right for Owen Lattimore to address a high school assembly tomorrow.

"We do not agree with the suggestion that high school students should be shielded from all controversial subjects and personalities."

The City Council, after a storm three-hour debate, voted 13 to 6 last night to ask the school board to ban Lattimore from school rostrums.

Lattimore was the central figure named by Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) in charges that Communists infest the State Department.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

Is Denver Getting Its Face Lifted?

DENVER, Colo. IT WAS IN 1913 when I was starting out as a traveling salesman to try to get editors to buy Mutt and Jeff by Bud Fisher, I arrived in Kansas City. Otto Floto, an old friend and sporting editor of the Denver and Kansas City Posts, sent a telegram to Harry Tammen in Denver to see whether he would talk to me on Sunday, informing him of the time of my arrival. I first went from the station to the Brown Palace Hotel to police up a little. When I walked into his office, he demanded:

"Where you been, kid?" Somewhat surprised to be addressed by one of the proprietors of a big newspaper in this fashion, I answered,

"I went up to the hotel to take a bath and change my shirt after I got off the train."

"Listen, kid," he went on. "You don't ever need to polish up to see me. I started in this town as a bartender in the Windsor Hotel, and, when we closed up at night, I took all the gold coins and threw them at the ceiling. What stuck belonged to the boss. I kept the rest, so don't expect anything."

This was my introduction to one of two colorful characters who were as much a part of Denver as the streets, the mint, and the other landmarks. Later I checked up on Mr. Tammen's frequently made remark about his financial start behind the mahogany and found he had once worked as a bus boy briefly and had nothing to do with handling the money, gold or otherwise. He said of his partner, Fred Bonfils,

"Fred's a mighty shiny diamond. I'm strictly in the rough." It was his pose.

To many he met Tammen seemed utterly scornful of rules and conventions and vastly fond of shocking the credulous with tales of what a tough character he was. There was the time, for instance, when in a lawsuit, one of the judges observed pompously during a recess Tammen would be sure to get justice.

"Justice, hell," said he. "What I want is the best of it."

For days he chuckled, remembering the outrage that blossomed on the jurist's pan.

The city of that day was one of four or five colorful towns in the United States, such as San Francisco, New Orleans, New York, etc. The citizens were rough and ready, many carrying six-guns, not too well concealed, and wearing cowboy boots to dances. There is a story the first manicurist who showed up in town did a big business and died wealthy getting customers who had never heard of such a treatment before. Everything is genteel today. I was noticing the equipment in the Brown Palace barber shop last evening, and now a partition under the table separates the operator from the customer.

The city seems to be getting its face lifted, changing from a cow town, which drifted along through two or three generations after the pioneers, to a modern metropolis with shiny new buildings and fancy hotels with fancier prices. The place is slipping into the groove and pattern of a hundred others with the citizens standing on street corners obeying the traffic signals, even though there is no cop in sight. Of course, the new Governor, Dan Thornton, sports cowboy boots for everyday wear because he claims they are more comfortable—maybe for him but not for me.

An old-timer reminded me of the fabulous story of "Haw" Tabor and the beautiful Baby Doe. He started running a grocery store in Leadville, became one of the richest men in the country, and died broke. As the tale goes, he was married in the White House in the presence of President Chester A. Arthur and other distinguished citizens, but not a woman attended, because he had persuaded his bride to leave her former husband which ladies in those days felt was against the game laws. How things have changed!

He owned the great Matchless Silver Mine in Leadville, lived here in an enormous mansion, and even had diamond buttons on his nightshirt. Baby Doe was more beautiful than ever. Then silver collapsed, and so did the Tabors. On his deathbed he told her always to hold on to the Matchless which would make her rich again and in her old age, she stayed there alone in a shack, running anyone who approached off with a gun. My friend last saw her one day in Denver, an old hag, with gunny sacks on her feet and rags for clothes. A short time later, she was found frozen to death, still standing guard at the mine which never came back.

Much of the glitter is wearing off the town now, so if you want to see it before it fades into the background as just another American city, you had better hurry.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A river-boat captain was approached by a smuggler during the Civil War, narrates Gilbert Lynne and offered a bribe to carry some contraband through the Northern blockade. "It's worth $250 to me," whispered the smuggler. "No," said the captain firmly. "I'm a man of honor." The smuggler raised his offer to $500, then $750, but the captain still turned a deaf ear. Finally the smuggler said, "I'll give you $1,000."

The captain drew a gun and shouted, "Off my ship, you varmint! You're getting too close to my price."

A roving correspondent from a big news weekly was interviewing a brand new movie star over a luncheon table at Romanoff's. She had just assured him she as a graduate of Wellesley when the waiter asked, "How would you like your coffee, Miss? "Large cup or demi-tasse?" "Just give it to me straight," she commanded. "I don't go in for those foreign didoes."

Japan And Pacific Security

Return of John Foster Dulles from a series of exploratory discussions in the Far East has raised hopes of an early peace settlement with Japan. A previous attempt to conclude peace, initiated by the United States in 1947, was abandoned when the Soviet Union objected to the proposed treaty-making procedure. Prospects that Russia, or Communist China, will participate in the current effort are virtually nil, but the other interested powers seem ready to go ahead independently.

A settlement without the concurrence of the Soviet Union or of the power in control of China, though far from ideal, is evidently considered preferable to indefinite continuance of the occupation and of a technical state of war. Soviet abstention and complications resulting from conflicting attitudes of the other nations toward the rival Chinese governments make it probable that the settlement with Japan will take the form, not of a single treaty negotiated at a peace conference, but of a series of parallel bilateral treaties negotiated through diplomatic channels. And it appears likely that the peace treaty or treaties will be supplemented by some kind of Pacific security treaty.

The wartime Cairo, Yalta, and Potsdam agreements shaped the terms of the territorial settlement with Japan. In accordance with those agreements, Formosa was returned to China immediately after the war; the Soviet Union took over the Kurile islands and Southern Sakhalin, as well as Japanese rights in Manchuria; and Korea was taken away from Japan and scheduled for independence. The United States was assigned a UN trusteeship over the mandated Pacific islands and remained in occupation of the Ryukyu, Bonin, and other islands. Although Japan has nourished hopes of regaining the latter possessions, this country has made it known that it wants to hold them under trusteeship. It is indicated, therefore, that the peace settlement will make no change in the Potsdam edict that Japan was to be restricted to its four main islands.

In other respects the settlement may impose few limitations or obligations. The Philippines have been counting on additional reparations, but Dulles, while offering in Manila to consider any workable plan, said frankly that no feasible means of extracting substantial reparations from a defeated nation had yet been discovered. Dulles has gone on record also for a treaty without restrictions on Japanese rearmament. When he visited Australia, he expressed fear that such restrictions would only have the effect of dissipating the present strong pacifist sentiment in Japan. Australians and New Zealanders, however, are still apprehensive of a revival of Japanese militarism and may insist on placing some limits on Japan's right to rearm.

It is largely to quiet such fears that the United States has been giving sympathetic consideration to a regional security pact for the Pacific. It has been suggested that such a pact be limited initially to the United States, Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines with the possible inclusion of Japan as an associate or full-fledged member. It is recognized that special provisions will have to be made for the defense of Japan. The nation has been so thoroughly demilitarized that it would be an easy prey to aggression if American forces were withdrawn.

When Dulles was in Tokyo, he said the United States was prepared to retain armed forces in and about Japan to help meet the threat of aggression, but only on condition that Japan make some preparations to defend itself. Though he spoke in terms of security rather than rearmament, this could only mean a measure of Japanese remilitarization. The hope obviously is that by associating Japan closely in general collective security arrangements, any danger of future Japanese aggression will be virtually eliminated.

It is no secret that the western powers are now seeking to secure Japan's cooperation in efforts to check the spread of Soviet and Communist influence in Asia. In so doing they are reverting to the policy of half a century ago, when the United States and Great Britain supported the development of Japan to balance the then rapidly growing power of Russia in Manchuria and Korea.

Kitchen Cabinet

The unsavory scandals uncovered in the RFC have again caused tongues in Washington to wag about a "kitchen cabinet." The term originated more than a century ago, in Jackson's administration.

Andrew Jackson, one of the strongest Presidents, was a man of little learning or culture. He looked on government as a personal prerogative for rewarding one's friends and punishing one's enemies. However, he had found it politic to bestow several Cabinet posts on followers of his bitter enemy, Vice President John C. Calhoun.

So for a time the Jackson Cabinet was an unharmonious body, and the President found contacts more congenial with some his rough-and-ready supporters outside of the Cabinet. The outstanding of these characters were given minor government posts, in which they carried out the Jacksonian spoils system. After several years the President ousted the Calhoun men from his official Cabinet, which then became more influential than the Kitchen Cabinet with the Chief Executive.

Every president inevitably has close advisers outside of the Cabinet, for which the Constitution makes no provision as such. The term "kitchen cabinet" was applied also to the unofficial advisers of Tyler, Johnson, certain of the later presidents. The men who brought the greatest disrepute to the Harding Administration were hardly a kitchen cabinet inasmuch as they held high government positions.

The chief advisers of President F. D. Roosevelt early in the New Deal became known as the Brain Trust. Some of them held important government jobs for a brief period—Harry L. Hopkins (Secretary of Commerce), A. A. Berle (Assistant Secretary of State), Raymond Moley (ditto), Rexford G. Tugwell (Under Secretary of Agriculture). Others remained outside of the federal government—Judge Rosenman and Felix Frankfurter (until appointed to the Supreme Court in 1939).

How To Keep Well

The Fourth 'H'

THE 4-H CLUBS all over the country have a membership of 1,850,000 boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20. Our interest in this organization stems from the fact that one of the four "H's" stands for health. This aspect has never received the same amount of publicity as the projects in dairying, forestry, soil conservation canning, and sewing; but in the last few years there has been an increased accent on good personal and community hygiene.

A habit is something we have done so many times it becomes automatic. Health habits fall into this category and there is no better time to acquire them than in childhood and youth. Once well established, they are likely to last a lifetime. Basically this amounts to acquiring a proper outlook on rest, exercise, cleanliness, and nutrition. In addition, 4-H'ers accumulate a storehouse of knowledge on community health. They not only practice but preach health and each member is a living example of the benefits derived from group activities of this type.

The members of 39 clubs in one part of the country kept a food chart for one month to determine whether their daily meals contained the basic seven foods. It is difficult to beat enthusiasm like this and every family could be helped by keeping similar records. These youngsters learned more about eating habits by working on a practical problem than they did by reading books or listening to lectures. The chances are excellent that when they grow up and become parents they will continue to practice what they learned about balanced diets.

Many 4-H'ers participated in campaigns against flies, mosquitoes, and rats. This not only is good training but entails something that must be done to be appreciated; the individual who has never seen the filth and damage wrought by rodents could have no idea of the enormity of the problem. Another group became interested in collecting samples of suspected water and having them tested; 27 of the 30 samples were found to be contaminated. Another club in cooperation with the local health department, established a permanent library of health literature and formed classes in nutrition, first aid, home nursing, and child care.

Movies often are employed to give demonstrations on posture, accident prevention, and other topics relating to health. The members study the pasteurization of milk and methods of improving the health of cattle and swine. This is important because many diseases are transmitted to humans from our barnyard friends The sooner the farmer appreciates this hazard the quicker will such diseases as brucellosis and trichinosis be eliminated.

One reason why adults are in favor of such clubs is that they make for better citizenship. Furthermore, good health encourages a wholesome mental attitude. One juvenile court judge has stated that no 4-H'er ever came before his court. Juvenile delinquency, which is greater in cities, is a problem that must be met in every way possible and now that the 4-H movement is spreading to urban centers, help may come from this quarter.

CHLORIDES

G. T. writes: I know that sodium chloride is salt but what are potassium and ammonium chloride?

REPLY

Different types of salt. Ammonium and potassium chloride are much more bitter than sodium chloride and are not recommended, therefore, for table use. Salt is the word used to denote a mixture of compounds. Throughout the ages it has become associated with sodium chloride, which is ordinary table salt.

DISCOMFORT AFTER EATING

E. S. writes: Whether I take a cup of tea or a full meal, I become short of breath after eating. What can this be?

REPLY

Pressure on the diaphragm or reflexy through the coronary circulation may be responsible. Digestion requires a large amount of blood and when a vital organ like the heart is robbed of its normal supply temporarily, it tends to rebel. This explains why some individuals are more likely to develop angina after eating and it is conceivable that the same mechanism may lead to shortness of breath.

DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Army Still Holds Back On Casualties In Korea War; FCC Afraid To Investigate Interstate Telephone Rates; No Fire At The Achesons.

WASHINGTON—It may be denied, but the Army is still holding back the true casualty figures of our troops in Korea from the public. For example, nearly 12,000 men are missing who have not been listed in the casualty reports. The official figures also fail to include the non-combat casualties, which the Army hasn't even compiled but which number into the thousands.

Even the late Gen. Walton Walker, called the Korean War's No. 1 casualty, wasn't officially counted as a casualty because he happened to be killed in a jeep accident. This is also true of more than 5,300 frostbite cases, who suffered so severely from frozen hands and feet that the Defense Department authorized the Purple Heart for them. Yet they are not included on the official casualty lists.

Most of the 12,000 missing men, still unannounced, disappeared during the December retreat from Seoul. However, one reason the Army has withheld their names is that many are believed to be AWOL (absent without leave) rather than missing in action. For example, several "missing men" have turned up in the Pusan area, taking in USO entertainment and Red Cross hospitality. Others have bribed pilots to fly them back to Tokyo for unofficial "recuperation." Technically, some of these men could be arrested for desertion.

The latest official casualty toll is 50,675. However, by omitting everyone not killed or injured as a result of direct enemy action, the Army has given a false picture of our casualty losses. These noncombat casualties plus the 12,000 unreported missing men would increase our casualty figures by nearly 50 per cent.

This column believes the American people can take the truth without sugar-coating from the Army.

NOTE—Meanwhile, the State Department is secretly negotiating through the Swedish Foreign Office to exchange Chinese prisoners for American prisoners.

Phone Rate Hearing Postponed

The public set a record last year in long-distance telephoning, particularly G.I.'s calling home. As a result, Bell System profits were the highest in 21 years. Yet a move to share the benefits with the public by reducing long-distance rates has been knifed by Senate Majority Leader Ernest McFarland.

The inside story is that the Federal Communications Commission is trying to reduce the public telephone bill. Yet two weeks after the FCC ordered a hearing into interstate rates, McFarland sent acting Commissioner Paul Walker a sharp letter of protest. This had the effect of an ultimatum to the FCC, since McFarland is not only Senate leader but also second in command of the Senate Commerce Committee, which has life-and-death power over the FCC.

As a result, the FCC postponed the hearing from April 16 to August 20, and is nervous about going ahead with an investigation.

Because of past FCC policing, the coast-to-coast day rate for three minutes has been reduced from $10.25 in 1936 to $2.50 today.

"Long-distance telephone service at rates which could be paid by the small users was a godsend to the men and women in the armed services during the war, and likewise to the parents whose principal contact during this trying period was through the long-distance telephone," Walker wrote back to McFarland. "It will likewise be true in the present national emergency when the long-distance telephone will furnish the principal dependable person-to-person contact between parents and sons and daughters."

Acheson's Address

Dinner guests at Secretary of State Acheson's home got to swapping amusing experiences the other evening.

Starting off, Senator Magnuson of Washington told of an incident on the way to the Achesons. His cab was flagged down, he related, by the driver of a stalled gasoline truck. Sheepishly the driver admitted he was hauling 5,000 gallons of gasoline, but had left his own tank run dry, since he had no way to siphon gas from his cargo, he begged for a ride to the nearest gas station.

Acheson, amused by the story, was reminded of an incident that his night-secretary had just reported over the phone. Quoting the secretary, Acheson said that a reporter had called his office and inquired excitedly whether the Secretary of State lived at 2839 P Street, N. W. The answer was that Acheson lived at 2805 P Street, N. W.

"Oh," sighed the reported, obviously disappointed. "There's big fire at 2839 P Street."

Soviet Buildup

Inside reason the Joint Chiefs of Staff abruptly ordered the 40th and 45th National Guard divisions to Japan is the recent Soviet buildup on Sakhalin Island, just 40 miles north of Japan.

Reports from Japanese prisoners of war, released by the Russians, claim the daggerlike island has been converted into an air, submarine and amphibious training base.

Last December General MacArthur became alarmed at this menacing Soviet buildup and urgently cabled Washington for National Guard divisions to be sent to Japan. The Joint Chiefs turned MacArthur down, claiming Europe had

Wage-Price Spiral

By MARK SULLIVAN

ATTEMPTS to describe the inflationary mechanism now active in a way simple to understand commonly picture it as a spiral. In the spiral two forces move alternately upward, wages and prices, a frequent term for the mechanism is "wage-price spiral."

Speaking roughly, this picture is correct enough, though all attempts to simplify frequently result in oversimplifying. The inflationary mechanism that now distorts the country's economy and threatens destruction of it is infinitely complex, no brief description can include all the factors in it. Yet the principal parts of it are illustrated plainly by events taking place at the present time and during the past five years. The sum of them can be pictured by any of several figures of speech. Some in familiar use are automatic spiral, vicious circle, spreading web, endless chain.

One link in the chain is wage raises, and this is exemplified with especial force by grant of a raise last week to workers on railroads. This will result in increased cost of operating railroads. Following this it can be expected that the railroads will ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant them higher freight rates, which in effect is increased price of transportation.

While practically all price increases feed the inflationary mechanism, increase of freight rates is peculiarly potent, because of a ramifying effect it has. It increases the cost, and hence the price, of practically all goods carried on railroads. Much coal is carried on railroads, and an increase in the price of coal that is used as fuel in factories results in increased cost, and hence increased price of goods made in such factories.

Support Prices

Here enters a factor in the inflationary wage-price spiral which is comparatively modern in our history, and which is very potent because it comes from government. After prices of goods generally, especially manufactured goods, have been increased, the Department of Agriculture computes the cost of what farmers must pay for the goods they buy. From this computation the Department derives what it calls "parity price"—that is, the price that farmers ought to receive for the crops they sell. This parity price, or a percentage of it, is declared to be the "support price" and this is the basis of the government policy and practice of price support of farm crops. Price support of farm crops leads to higher prices of food of cost of living. Labor, taking notice of this, demands higher wage rates. The spiral goes up another round.

Another factor in the wage-price spiral is a quite recent innovation. Heads of industry, observing that increased cost of living leads to demands for higher wages, and believing this to be inevitable, have made agreements with labor unions which are called "escalator contracts." Under these, after an increase in cost of living has taken place, an increase in wage rates follow automatically. Again, another round in the upward spiral takes place.

Politics Contributory

Contributory to the inflationary wage-price spiral has been politics. President Truman, in his 1948 campaign for the Presidency, made a special appeal to farmers and labor. He said in so many words that they owed gratitude to him and his party; and by strong implication, in some cases explicitly, promised them reason for more gratitude. Expected fulfillment of these promises would be, in the case of farmers a continuation of price support for farm crops, and, in the case of labor, more power.

More power for labor, in the form of a larger part in the recently set up mobilization for war, is at the heart of the present mobilization crisis. And continuation of price support of farm crops is sustained by a majority of Congress. While many members recognize that price support has now operated as a factor in infiltration, not many are yet willing to change it.

Prices and wages have entered far into government because of the authoritative power government has in large areas of them. Agencies of government make rather more decisions about wages than are arrived at by negotiation between labor and industry. As respects prices, government has long had a large hand in them, and this is greatly increased by the setting up of control agencies in the organization for mobilization. Almost it could be said that today a vast majority of all prices are determined by government. In this condition preservation of the country from a great economic danger calls for separation of government from politics, either in the ordinary sense or in the sense of group pressure.

Republicans At Odds

THE Republican Party, since it lost the presidency in 1932, has missed opportunity after opportunity to regain the majority position because of really great differences among its leadership, but even more, because the presidency has become a lure that corrupts men.

Once a Republican is smitten by the virus of presidential ambition, his personality takes on the desperations of auto-intoxication. Perhaps that is not the science of it, but they look queer; they act queer; and they say things which bring joy to the heart of every Democrat. Republican candidates for the presidency usually talk themselves out of the job, and often they do it even before the convention.

That would not be such a catastrophe, one way or the other, if the Democrats came up with a worthy candidate. In 1944, they gave us a fourth term for the dying Roosevelt, who soon enough gave the country Yalta and his catafalque at Hyde Park. Any Republican with courage and conviction should have defeated Roosevelt in 1944, but Dewey muffed it.

Whereupon Harry Truman became President and the Democrats have since been laboring upon a formula for defeating him without defeating themselves. At the 1948 Democratic Convention, he was unwanted. But out of the millions of Democrats in the United States, they seemed to be able to find no better, the choice narrowing between Harry Truman and Henry Wallace, with Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court as a lame runner-up. So they took Truman and have had no end of trouble since.

The Republicans nominated Thomas E. Dewey to run against Truman, hoping that his really fine record as an administrator in the State of New York would win him votes. But Dewey is a complex personality who probably, in his subconscious, is bored with much of the fripperies of politics and who runs counter to most in his party on international affairs.

The real strength of the Republican party lies west of the Hudson River, while east of that lovely stream is a confusion of Europeans and European-minded Americans who are called "internationalists" by those who dislike them and "globalists" by themselves. And their heart is in the city of London. For psychological reasons, which I am not competent to analyze, Dewey, who comes from Owosso, Michigan, and should normally dislike this Wall Street-Park Avenue concept of life, has actually become its philosopher. That did much to defeat him in 1948 and has eliminated him from presidential prospects in 1952.

The Dewey-Stassen emphasis on General Eisenhower as the Republican candidate for the presidency is splitting this party wide open again and should be most comforting to the Democrats.

Here in New York, the Eisenhower candidacy is most popular, particularly among Republican business men, Democrats and liberals. The reason for their excitement is that they fear Robert A. Taft might be nominated. Even more, some of them fear that he might be elected. Such people as supported Willkie in 1940 and Stassen in 1948 tend to be for Eisenhower now. Dewey is publicy Eisenhower. They will do anything to defeat Taft and I fear that anything might even mean electing a Democrat.

Their difficulty is, of course, that Eisenhower has put himself above party, and his protagonists are running a propaganda that he would only run if co-opted and that he would prefer to run on both parties. That is an offensive notion to most Americans who cannot believe that any human is bigger than God, no matter who he is. Those who place General Eisenhower on that unfortunate pinnacle do him a disservice. He, I am sure, has no such aspirations.

Apart from that the General will not say that he is a Republican nor has he registered as such. Even Wendell Willkie, the Tammany Democrat, switched and registered as a Republican. If General Eisenhower does not register as a Republican in the 1951 election, whether he is in Europe or here, it will be a strong argument against him. The Republicans, on the whole, would prefer someone who says he belongs to them.

So there is a fight on and it is going to be very nasty and might even restore Harry Truman's good humor.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America and Great Britain are talking again about the possible crossing of the 38th Parallel by ground troops, and this time, fortunately, the official discussion is not being broadcast for the enemy to hear.

When Kenneth Younger, minister of state, told the House of Commons on Monday that an agreement between the United States and Great Britain had been reached on whether Allied troops in Korea should cross the 38th Parallel, he added that no statement could be made about future operations because of "security."

This is good so far as it goes, but the fact that Great Britain wants to put restrictions on the military operations of ground troops is known to the enemy because the information has been broadcast from London. It means that the Communist generals now can make their plans and line up their troops in a "privileged sanctuary" in North Korea while UN troops might be compelled to stay south of the parallel.

Opposed To Occupation

Actually there is no argument as to the right of any military commander to patrol and conduct reconnaissance but the British evidently have become sticklers for the point that there should be no "military occupation" north of the 38th Parallel.

This form of surrender will astonish those in the free world who have believed up to now that the purpose of the UN troops in Korea was to punish the aggressor and to liberate all of Korea. The situation is perhaps best explained from the British viewpoint by the "London Times," which a few days ago said editorially, in part:

"Therefore, whether the prospect is liked or not, a military division of Korea for some time seems inevitable. For many reasons the line of division is more likely to be established on or near the 38th Parallel than anywhere else; and that provides the chief reason why the United Nations troops should not cross the parallel in force with a view to occupying large areas north of the line.

"Yet so long as the real Chinese intentions are unknown—so long, indeed, as Chinese propaganda declares that the Western 'aggressors" must be defeated—it is hard to see that the companies could be prevented from carrying out reconnoitering and spoiling raids over the line. Unless a cease-fire were to be arranged and supervised they could not risk being beset by new attacks from north of the line.

"What seems to be advisable is a definite understanding that the parallel and its immediate neighborhood shall be the limit of military occupation until it can be seen whether the Chinese are ready, on that basis, for an unacknowledged cease-fire that might in time become more precise and lead to a settlement."

The foregoing is just plain nonsense from a military viewpoint. No military commander could plan his operations with such a handicap imposed on him. It is the same kind of nonsense which certain Americans are preaching about the defense of Europe by our sea and air power alone and not with our ground troops.

May Revive Reds

Just why the 38th Parallel has become sacrosanct in British eyes is difficult to understand. Bombardments by naval vessels and by our airplanes are going on all the time north of the 38th Parallel. If it be thought that the Chinese Communists will be impressed by a faltering, hesitating ground army which regards the 38th Parallel as untouchable, then a revival of Communist defiance rather than a diminution of its fervor may confidently be expected.

What the "London Times" proposes really is to return to the line of June 26 last and thus tell the mothers and fathers of the 50,000 American boys who have been killed or wounded that the Korean expedition had no real objective at the outset and today has no purpose at all except to restore the status quo and call it a day.

The omission from British statements and utterances of any expressed desire to punish the Communist aggression is significant. Instead, the Munich psychology is back again, as it is proposed to negotiate for peace along the 38th Parallel. Our British friends do not

IN GALATIA

Henceforth let no man trouble me; for I bear branded on my body the marks of Jesus.

Galatians 6:17. Read Luke 23.

There was trouble in the Galatian church. Some teachers had gotten in who were leading the people away from the gospel that Paul had preached to them. They were charlatans, and were interested in their own advancement rather than in the liberty and freedom of Jesus Christ. They wanted to fasten onto the Galatian church a human dogma instead of a religion that found its deepest experience in the things for which Jesus lived and died.

There was a time too, when they had accepted Paul as their spiritual leader. Now many of the people in the church were turning against him. They had been led to believe that Paul was a traitor to the Jewish laws and customs.

But Paul stood his ground and told them that no matter what they thought, two things he would drive home to them: First, all their righteousness was as nothing, so long as they did not love their neighbor as themselves. Second, a real Christian could not escape the Cross. A man is a Christian only as he bears the marks of Jesus.

Les Us Pray: Father in heaven, when we have run the race that is set before us, and our work is done, may there be something about us that shows us as branded with the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Japan And Pacific Security

Return of John Foster Dulles from a series of exploratory discussions in the Far East has raised hopes of an early peace settlement with Japan. A previous attempt to conclude peace, initiated by the United States in 1947, was abandoned when the Soviet Union objected to the proposed treaty-making procedure. Prospects that Russia, or Communist China, will participate in the current effort are virtually nil, but the other interested powers seem ready to go ahead independently.

A settlement without the concurrence of the Soviet Union or of the power in control of China, though far from ideal, is evidently considered preferable to indefinite continuance of the occupation and of a technical state of war. Soviet abstention and complications resulting from conflicting attitudes of the other nations toward the rival Chinese governments make it probable that the settlement with Japan will take the form, not of a single treaty negotiated at a peace conference, but of a series of parallel bilateral treaties negotiated through diplomatic channels. And it appears likely that the peace treaty or treaties will be supplemented by some kind of Pacific security treaty.

The wartime Cairo, Yalta, and Potsdam agreements shaped the terms of the territorial settlement with Japan. In accordance with those agreements, Formosa was returned to China immediately after the war; the Soviet Union took over the Kurile islands and Southern Sakhalin, as well as Japanese rights in Manchuria; and Korea was taken away from Japan and scheduled for independence. The United States was assigned a UN trusteeship over the mandated Pacific islands and remained in occupation of the Ryukyu, Bonin, and other islands. Although Japan has nourished hopes of regaining the latter possessions, this country has made it known that it wants to hold them under trusteeship. It is indicated, therefore, that the peace settlement will make no change in the Potsdam edict that Japan was to be restricted to its four main islands.

In other respects the settlement may impose few limitations or obligations. The Philippines have been counting on additional reparations, but Dulles, while offering in Manila to consider any workable plan, said frankly that no feasible means of extracting substantial reparations from a defeated nation had yet been discovered. Dulles has gone on record also for a treaty without restrictions on Japanese rearmament. When he visited Australia, he expressed fear that such restrictions would only have the effect of dissipating the present strong pacifist sentiment in Japan. Australians and New Zealanders, however, are still apprehensive of a revival of Japanese militarism and may insist on placing some limits on Japan's right to rearm.

It is largely to quiet such fears that the United States has been giving sympathetic consideration to a regional security pact for the Pacific. It has been suggested that such a pact be limited initially to the United States, Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines with the possible inclusion of Japan as an associate or full-fledged member. It is recognized that special provisions will have to be made for the defense of Japan. The nation has been so thoroughly demilitarized that it would be an easy prey to aggression if American forces were withdrawn.

When Dulles was in Tokyo, he said the United States was prepared to retain armed forces in and about Japan to help meet the threat of aggression, but only on condition that Japan make some preparations to defend itself. Though he spoke in terms of security rather than rearmament, this could only mean a measure of Japanese remilitarization. The hope obviously is that by associating Japan closely in general collective security arrangements, any danger of future Japanese aggression will be virtually eliminated.

It is no secret that the western powers are now seeking to secure Japan's cooperation in efforts to check the spread of Soviet and Communist influence in Asia. In so doing they are reverting to the policy of half a century ago, when the United States and Great Britain supported the development of Japan to balance the then rapidly growing power of Russia in Manchuria and Korea.

G. T. writes: I know that sodium chloride is salt but what are potassium and ammonium chloride?

REPLY

Different types of salt. Ammonium and potassium chloride are much more bitter than sodium chloride and are not recommended, therefore, for table use. Salt is the word used to denote a mixture of compounds. Throughout the ages it has become associated with sodium chloride, which is ordinary table salt.

DISCOMFORT AFTER EATING

E. S. writes: Whether I take a cup of tea or a full meal, I become short of breath after eating. What can this be?

REPLY

Pressure on the diaphragm or reflexy through the coronary circulation may be responsible. Digestion requires a large amount of blood and when a vital organ like the heart is robbed of its normal supply temporarily, it tends to rebel. This explains why some individuals are more likely to develop angina after eating and it is conceivable that the same mechanism may lead to shortness of breath.

DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Army Still Holds Back On Casualties In Korea War; FCC Afraid To Investigate Interstate Telephone Rates; No Fire At The Achesons.

WASHINGTON—It may be denied, but the Army is still holding back the true casualty figures of our troops in Korea from the public. For example, nearly 12,000 men are missing who have not been listed in the casualty reports. The official figures also fail to include the non-combat casualties, which the Army hasn't even compiled but which number into the thousands.

Even the late Gen. Walton Walker, called the Korean War's No. 1 casualty, wasn't officially counted as a casualty because he happened to be killed in a jeep accident. This is also true of more than 5,300 frostbite cases, who suffered so severely from frozen hands and feet that the Defense Department authorized the Purple Heart for them. Yet they are not included on the official casualty lists.

Most of the 12,000 missing men, still unannounced, disappeared during the December retreat from Seoul. However, one reason the Army has withheld their names is that many are believed to be AWOL (absent without leave) rather than missing in action. For example, several "missing men" have turned up in the Pusan area, taking in USO entertainment and Red Cross hospitality. Others have bribed pilots to fly them back to Tokyo for unofficial "recuperation." Technically, some of these men could be arrested for desertion.

The latest official casualty toll is 50,675. However, by omitting everyone not killed or injured as a result of direct enemy action, the Army has given a false picture of our casualty losses. These noncombat casualties plus the 12,000 unreported missing men would increase our casualty figures by nearly 50 per cent.

This column believes the American people can take the truth without sugar-coating from the Army.

NOTE—Meanwhile, the State Department is secretly negotiating through the Swedish Foreign Office to exchange Chinese prisoners for American prisoners.

Phone Rate Hearing Postponed

The public set a record last year in long-distance telephoning, particularly G.I.'s calling home. As a result, Bell System profits were the highest in 21 years. Yet a move to share the benefits with the public by reducing long-distance rates has been knifed by Senate Majority Leader Ernest McFarland.

The inside story is that the Federal Communications Commission is trying to reduce the public telephone bill. Yet two weeks after the FCC ordered a hearing into interstate rates, McFarland sent acting Commissioner Paul Walker a sharp letter of protest. This had the effect of an ultimatum to the FCC, since McFarland is not only Senate leader but also second in command of the Senate Commerce Committee, which has life-and-death power over the FCC.

As a result, the FCC postponed the hearing from April 16 to August 20, and is nervous about going ahead with an investigation.

Because of past FCC policing, the coast-to-coast day rate for three minutes has been reduced from $10.25 in 1936 to $2.50 today.

"Long-distance telephone service at rates which could be paid by the small users was a godsend to the men and women in the armed services during the war, and likewise to the parents whose principal contact during this trying period was through the long-distance telephone," Walker wrote back to McFarland. "It will likewise be true in the present national emergency when the long-distance telephone will furnish the principal dependable person-to-person contact between parents and sons and daughters."

Acheson's Address

Dinner guests at Secretary of State Acheson's home got to swapping amusing experiences the other evening.

Starting off, Senator Magnuson of Washington told of an incident on the way to the Achesons. His cab was flagged down, he related, by the driver of a stalled gasoline truck. Sheepishly the driver admitted he was hauling 5,000 gallons of gasoline, but had left his own tank run dry. since he had no way to siphon gas from his cargo, he begged for a ride to the nearest gas station.

Acheson, amused by the story, was reminded of an incident that his night-secretary had just reported over the phone. Quoting the secretary, Acheson said that a reporter had called his office and inquired excitedly whether the Secretary of State lived at 2839 P Street, N. W. The answer was that Acheson lived at 2805 P Street, N. W.

"Oh," sighed the reported, obviously disappointed. "There's big fire at 2839 P Street."

Soviet Buildup

Inside reason the Joint Chiefs of Staff abruptly ordered the 40th and 45th National Guard divisions to Japan is the recent Soviet buildup on Sakhalin Island, just 40 miles north of Japan.

Reports from Japanese prisoners of war, released by the Russians, claim the daggerlike island has been converted into an air, submarine and amphibious training base.

Last December General MacArthur became alarmed at this menacing Soviet buildup and urgently cabled Washington for National Guard divisions to be sent to Japan. The Joint Chiefs turned MacArthur down, claiming Europe had

Wage-Price Spiral

By MARK SULLIVAN

ATTEMPTS to describe the inflationary mechanism now active in a way simple to understand commonly picture it as a spiral. In the spiral two forces move alternately upward, wages and prices, a frequent term for the mechanism is "wage-price spiral."

Speaking roughly, this picture is correct enough, though all attempts to simplify frequently result in oversimplifying. The inflationary mechanism that now distorts the country's economy and threatens destruction of it is infinitely complex, no brief description can include all the factors in it. Yet the principal parts of it are illustrated plainly by events taking place at the present time and during the past five years. The sum of them can be pictured by any of several figures of speech. Some in familiar use are automatic spiral, vicious circle, spreading web, endless chain.

One link in the chain is wage raises, and this is exemplified with especial force by grant of a raise last week to workers on railroads. This will result in increased cost of operating railroads. Following this it can be expected that the railroads will ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant them higher freight rates, which in effect is increased price of transportation.

While practically all price increases feed the inflationary mechanism, increase of freight rates is peculiarly potent, because of a ramifying effect it has. It increases the cost, and hence the price, of practically all goods carried on railroads. Much coal is carried on railroads, and an increase in the price of coal that is used as fuel in factories results in increased cost, and hence increased price of goods made in such factories.

Support Prices

Here enters a factor in the inflationary wage-price spiral which is comparatively modern in our history, and which is very potent because it comes from government. After prices of goods generally, especially manufactured goods, have been increased, the Department of Agriculture computes the cost of what farmers must pay for the goods they buy. From this computation the Department derives what it calls "parity price"—that is, the price that farmers ought to receive for the crops they sell. This parity price, or a percentage of it, is declared to be the "support price" and this is the basis of the government policy and practice of price support of farm crops. Price support of farm crops leads to higher prices of food of cost of living. Labor, taking notice of this, demands higher wage rates. The spiral goes up another round.

Another factor in the wage-price spiral is a quite recent innovation. Heads of industry, observing that increased cost of living leads to demands for higher wages, and believing this to be inevitable, have made agreements with labor unions which are called "escalator contracts." Under these, after an increase in cost of living has taken place, an increase in wage rates follow automatically. Again, another round in the upward spiral takes place.

Politics Contributory

Contributory to the inflationary wage-price spiral has been politics. President Truman, in his 1948 campaign for the Presidency, made a special appeal to farmers and labor. He said in so many words that they owed gratitude to him and his party; and by strong implication, in some cases explicitly, promised them reason for more gratitude. Expected fulfillment of these promises would be, in the case of farmers a continuation of price support for farm crops, and, in the case of labor, more power.

More power for labor, in the form of a larger part in the recently set up mobilization for war, is at the heart of the present mobilization crisis. And continuation of price support of farm crops is sustained by a majority of Congress. While many members recognize that price support has now operated as a factor in infiltration, not many are yet willing to change it.

Prices and wages have entered far into government because of the authoritative power government has in large areas of them. Agencies of government make rather more decisions about wages than are arrived at by negotiation between labor and industry. As respects prices, government has long had a large hand in them, and this is greatly increased by the setting up of control agencies in the organization for mobilization. Almost it could be said that today a vast majority of all prices are determined by government. In this condition preservation of the country from a great economic danger calls for separation of government from politics, either in the ordinary sense or in the sense of group pressure.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Republicans At Odds

THE Republican Party, since it lost the presidency in 1932, has missed opportunity after opportunity to regain the majority position because of really great differences among its leadership, but even more, because the presidency has become a lure that corrupts men.

Once a Republican is smitten by the virus of presidential ambition, his personality takes on the desperations of auto-intoxication. Perhaps that is not the science of it, but they look queer; they act queer; and they say things which bring joy to the heart of every Democrat. Republican candidates for the presidency usually talk themselves out of the job, and often they do it even before the convention.

That would not be such a catastrophe, one way or the other, if the Democrats came up with a worthy candidate. In 1944, they gave us a fourth term for the dying Roosevelt, who soon enough gave the country Yalta and his catafalque at Hyde Park. Any Republican with courage and conviction should have defeated Roosevelt in 1944, but Dewey muffed it.

Whereupon Harry Truman became President and the Democrats have since been laboring upon a formula for defeating him without defeating themselves. At the 1948 Democratic Convention, he was unwanted. But out of the millions of Democrats in the United States, they seemed to be able to find no better, the choice narrowing between Harry Truman and Henry Wallace, with Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court as a lame runner-up. So they took Truman and have had no end of trouble since.

The Republicans nominated Thomas E. Dewey to run against Truman, hoping that his really fine record as an administrator in the State of New York would win him votes. But Dewey is a complex personality who probably, in his subconscious, is bored with much of the fripperies of politics and who runs counter to most in his party on international affairs.

The real strength of the Republican party lies west of the Hudson River, while east of that lovely stream is a confusion of Europeans and European-minded Americans who are called "internationalists" by those who dislike them and "globalists" by themselves. And their heart is in the city of London. For psychological reasons, which I am not competent to analyze, Dewey, who comes from Owosso, Michigan, and should normally dislike this Wall Street-Park Avenue concept of life, has actually become its philosopher. That did much to defeat him in 1948 and has eliminated him from presidential prospects in 1952.

The Dewey-Stassen emphasis on General Eisenhower as the Republican candidate for the presidency is splitting this party wide open again and should be most comforting to the Democrats.

Here in New York, the Eisenhower candidacy is most popular, particularly among Republican business men, Democrats and liberals. The reason for their excitement is that they fear Robert A. Taft might be nominated. Even more, some of them fear that he might be elected. Such people as supported Willkie in 1940 and Stassen in 1948 tend to be for Eisenhower now. Dewey is publicy Eisenhower. They will do anything to defeat Taft and I fear that anything might even mean electing a Democrat.

Their difficulty is, of course, that Eisenhower has put himself above party, and his protagonists are running a propaganda that he would only run if co-opted and that he would prefer to run on both parties. That is an offensive notion to most Americans who cannot believe that any human is bigger than God, no matter who he is. Those who place General Eisenhower on that unfortunate pinnacle do him a disservice. He, I am sure, has no such aspirations.

Apart from that the General will not say that he is a Republican nor has he registered as such. Even Wendell Willkie, the Tammany Democrat, switched and registered as a Republican. If General Eisenhower does not register as a Republican in the 1951 election, whether he is in Europe or here, it will be a strong argument against him. The Republicans, on the whole, would prefer someone who says he belongs to them.

So there is a fight on and it is going to be very nasty and might even restore Harry Truman's good humor.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America and Great Britain are talking again about the possible crossing of the 38th Parallel by ground troops, and this time, fortunately, the official discussion is not being broadcast for the enemy to hear.

When Kenneth Younger, minister of state, told the House of Commons on Monday that an agreement between the United States and Great Britain had been reached on whether Allied troops in Korea should cross the 38th Parallel, he added that no statement could be made about future operations because of "security."

This is good so far as it goes, but the fact that Great Britain wants to put restrictions on the military operations of ground troops is known to the enemy because the information has been broadcast from London. It means that the Communist generals now can make their plans and line up their troops in a "privileged sanctuary" in North Korea while UN troops might be compelled to stay south of the parallel.

Opposed To Occupation

Actually there is no argument as to the right of any military commander to patrol and conduct reconnaissance but the British evidently have become sticklers for the point that there should be no "military occupation" north of the 38th Parallel.

This form of surrender will astonish those in the free world who have believed up to now that the purpose of the UN troops in Korea was to punish the aggressor and to liberate all of Korea. The situation is perhaps best explained from the British viewpoint by the "London Times," which a few days ago said editorially, in part:

"Therefore, whether the prospect is liked or not, a military division of Korea for some time seems inevitable. For many reasons the line of division is more likely to be established on or near the 38th Parallel than anywhere else; and that provides the chief reason why the United Nations troops should not cross the parallel in force with a view to occupying large areas north of the line.

"Yet so long as the real Chinese intentions are unknown—so long, indeed, as Chinese propaganda declares that the Western 'aggressors' must be defeated—it is hard to see that the companies could be prevented from carrying out reconnoitering and spoiling raids over the line. Unless a cease-fire were to be arranged and supervised they could not risk being beset by new attacks from north of the line.

"What seems to be advisable is a definite understanding that the parallel and its immediate neighborhood shall be the limit of military occupation until it can be seen whether the Chinese are ready, on that basis, for an unacknowledged cease-fire that might in time become more precise and lead to a settlement."

The foregoing is just plain nonsense from a military viewpoint. No military commander could plan his operations with such a handicap imposed on him. It is the same kind of nonsense which certain Americans are preaching about the defense of Europe by our sea and air power alone and not with our ground troops.

May Revive Reds

Just why the 38th Parallel has become sacrosanct in British eyes is difficult to understand. Bombardments by naval vessels and by our airplanes are going on all the time north of the 38th Parallel. If it be thought that the Chinese Communists will be impressed by a faltering, hesitating ground army which regards the 38th Parallel as untouchable, then a revival of Communist defiance rather than a diminution of its fervor may confidently be expected.

What the "London Times" proposes really is to return to the line of June 26 last and thus tell the mothers and fathers of the 50,000 American boys who have been killed or wounded that the Korean expedition had no real objective at the outset and today has no purpose at all except to restore the status quo and call it a day.

The omission from British statements and utterances of any expressed desire to punish the Communist aggression is significant. Instead, the Munich psychology is back again, as it is proposed to negotiate for peace along the 38th Parallel. Our British friends do not

IN GALATIA

Henceforth let no man trouble me; for I bear branded on my body the marks of Jesus.

Galatians 6:17. Read Luke 23.

There was trouble in the Galatian church. Some teachers had gotten in who were leading the people away from the gospel that Paul had preached to them. They were charlatans, and were interested in their own advancement rather than in the liberty and freedom of Jesus Christ. They wanted to fasten onto the Galatian church a human dogma instead of a religion that found its deepest experience in the things for which Jesus lived and died.

There was a time too, when they had accepted Paul as their spiritual leader. Now many of the people in the church were turning against him. They had been led to believe that Paul was a traitor to the Jewish laws and customs.

But Paul stood his ground and told them that no matter what they thought, two things he would drive home to them: First, all their righteousness was as nothing, so long as they did not love their neighbor as themselves. Second, a real Christian could not escape the Cross. A man is a Christian only as he bears the marks of Jesus.

Les Us Pray: Father in heaven, when we have run the race that is set before us, and our work is done, may there be something about us that shows us as branded with the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Preston Grand Jury Convenes To Probe Redmen Act Violations

A special session of the Preston county grand jury will convene at 9 a. m. today in Kingwood, W. Va., to investigate what has been termed as "repeated violations of the Redman Act."

A "citizen's committee" was formed last week by approximately 60 businessmen and civic leaders. The grand jury was called following a meeting of a subcommittee with Circuit Court Judge Charles P. Wilhelm, Prosecutor R. Doyne Halbritter and Lt. W. F. Murphy, who is in charge of the West Virginia State Police in the Preston county area.

Harry Myers, of Morgantown, W. Va., a UMW field representative, and 22 pickets were given preliminary hearings Tuesday on charges of stoning a group of non-union miners last week as they were enroute to work at the Hartman mine, near Kingwood.

Preston County Sheriff J. H. Benson yesterday said no further demonstrations had been reported to his office. He added that the usual number of pickets, between 40 and 45 carloads, were patrolling the area.

Sheriff Benson said Ray Sisler, of Corinth, W. Va., reported that he had been stoned by two carloads of pickets yesterday while enroute to visit a neighbor. Incidents reported to the sheriff's office over the weekend included an attack on Elmer Strawer, of Terra Alta, W. Va., while returning from his brother's skating ring. He is an employe of the Kray Coal Company.

A car, owned by Junior Wilhelm, of Route 2, Albright, W. Va., was riddled by bullets outside his house Saturday night, Sheriff Benson said, adding that a barn housing ponies used in the Schmidle mine, near Albright, was torn from its foundation Saturday night or Sunday morning. The ponies were not injured.

Approximately 700 union miners of Valley District in Preston county are on a sympathy strike called yesterday over the dismissal of a weighman by the Bretz Fuel Company.

A Bretz Company official said John Bartoletti, of Masontown, was dismissed February 24 and that two of the company's mines were closed then by other employes. Yesterday, the strike spread to other Bretz mines and to the Zinn Mining Company, the Taylor-McMillen Coal Company, the DeBoni Coal Company, the Sisler-Perry Coal Company and the Ball and Fullmer Coal Company mines. No violence was reported.

Two Wills Are Filed In Orphans Court

Two wills of local women who died in the past two weeks were admitted to probate in the Allegany County Orphans Court yesterday.

Mrs. Hannah Sheffler, 328 Fayette Street, who died March 1, leaves her household and personal effects to her daughter, Miss Rose Sheffler, at home.

One half of the residue of the estate is bequeathed to Miss Sheffler; and one-quarter each to two other daughters, Mrs. Bertha Saperstone and Mrs. Ruth Drucker.

Evelyn M. Wolford, former WAC and beauty shop operator who died two weeks ago in Newton D. Baker VA Center, Martinsburg, W. Va., bequeathed government bonds and a house at Cook's Mills, Pa., to her mother, Mrs. Annie Mason.

She also left rings to her two nieces and nephew. Mrs. Lucie Wagner was named administrator of the estate.

There are about 15 million Americans with diminished hearing ranging from slight to complete deafness.

IF YOU DON'T FEEL GOOD

Don't Put Off Finding Relief

HADACOL May Bring the Relief You Are Seeking If Your Condition Is Due to Lack of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin and Iron.

Luther Harris

If more folks would remember the old saying, "Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today," there's no telling how much better off they'd all be. And the worst thing about it all is that folks usually put off the most important things until a later date. For instance, there are a lot of folks who don't feel like they should who put off doing something about it. Luther Harris, 516 Chestnut St., Bowling Green, Kentucky, didn't feel good for a time, but he acted when he heard how HADACOL was helping people suffering from nervousness, aches and pains and run-down conditions caused by deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin. Yes, Mr. Harris started taking HADACOL and now he says he feels good.

Here is what he says:

"For quite some time I was nervous and run-down, and I suffered from aches and pains I was weak, and I could hardly do a day's work. I started taking HADACOL and from my first bottle I felt better. Now I feel good, and I can do a good day's work. I am still taking HADACOL and I wouldn't do without it. I praise HADACOL very highly."

Allegany Homemakers To Honor Venia M. Kellar

Reception To Be Held Apr. 13

Allegany County Council of Homemakers' Clubs will entertain with a reception honoring Miss Venia M. Kellar, assistant director of extension service of the University of Maryland, April 13.

Miss Kellar will be in Allegany county April 13-14 for her last official visit to Allegany friends. The reception is being held in Centre Street Methodist Church parlors from 8 until 10 p. m.

Miss Kellar, who for 34 years has been on the staff of the University of Maryland Extension Service, has announced her retirement, effective March 31. She started as home demonstration agent in Dorchester county in 1917, and the following year went to the university as state leader of home demonstration agents. In 1935 she was named assistant director of extension.

A native of Nebraska, Miss Kellar graduated from Wesleyan University, Lincoln, was principal of a school in Western Nebraska, later resigning to be the first home demonstration leader in South Dakota. She took advance study at the University of Nebraska and Columbia University.

Twelve years ago she inaugurated a Negro home demonstration program in Maryland, but is most noted for her nationally-known Rural Women's Short Course or "College Week for Women," as it is sometimes called, begun in 1923.

Last November Miss Kellar received and accepted an invitation to tell of the project in a 15 minute broadcast on the "Voice of America" series.

Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent, said yesterday that Miss Kellar will continue to guide Maryland homemakers until after the RWSC, and many Allegany women will be happy to enroll for the 25th anniversary of College Week for Women June 18-25.

WASHINGTON.

GOLD . . . Gold . . . Gold . . .A river of gold flows out of our national hoard at the rate of $50 million a week . . . The yellow metal is being acquired by most of the governments we do business with . . . Partly, because our imports give the other nations a dollar balance, and they are converting it into gold . . . We sell our gold to the various governments for $35 an ounce (the same as U. S. pays for it) and the foreign countries sell it to their home folks . . . Unlike the U. S., it's not against the law for individuals to own or hoard gold . . . For instance, the French, Mexicans, and others, distrust their own paper currency and like to keep gold in the family larder . . . Their governments readily sell it to them . . . So many women, particularly in the backward areas we are helping with Point Four, would rather go naked than without a weighty assortment of earrings, bracelets, belts, anklets, et al, of gold, especially gold coins . . . The ladies in Asia, India, the Arabian States, the Balkans, and our own Latin America, may often be weighted down with as much gold as they can carry, anything from $50 or $100 to $5,000 or $10,000.

AUSTINE

There are, however, more serious drains than those which could be charged to vanity or rainy-day saving.

The black market in gold grows rapidly . . . Other nations which mine gold are selling it in the open or black market . . . They get anywhere from $45 to $60 an ounce, instead of selling at the U. S. rate of $35 an ounce to us . . . Gold of this kind demanded by nations and companies wishing to make purchases in markets outside the U. S. talks louder than the American dollar . . . Gold has a particularly loud voice in buying officials or their votes in some of the so-called remote countries.

Russia has finally invaded European gold marts . . . No one in the U. S. officially knows how much gold they have . . . Except that Russian gold is flooding into Paris, Switzerland, Asia, the Near East and Latin America . . .

A trifling bit of U. S. gold is escaping to dentists, jewelry manufacturers, and other small consumers . . . They buy it from the Treasury for the same $35 an ounce. "There is no objection to this" say officials, "except that some are getting more than they can possibly use and are either hoarding it or selling it!"

Although it's a little known fact, many foreigners and their governments have stashed in N. Y. a gold balance of more than $5,000,000,000 . . . Now they have decided it's unsafe . . . Every day are sending it to "better havens"—nations they believe less likely to be bombed than the U. S.

The foreigners may also be placing their gold in safer havens outside the U. S. because if their homelands are attacked the U. S. would seize their gold and other assets banked in America . . . It has been Uncle Sam's custom to hold foreign gold until the shooting ends, then restore it . . . These gold hoarders would rather have their stuff banked in Canada, Mexico or Uruguay (considered highly safe and financially sound) where they'd have a better chance of digging into it quickly.

Another gold hoard may be building up at this time in the rich Arabian oil fields—Saudi Arabia, Iran, The Sheikdom of Kuwait, Lebanon, Trans-Jordan—where billions of barrels of oil ooze like black gold.

Until fairly recently, wily old King Ibn Saud, the Shah of Iran, the Sheik of Kuwait, and others have been perfectly content to take American $$$$$$ or British sterling as royalties, paid for the billions of barrels of oil extracted from their countries.

Now the old boys are demanding and getting gold . . . They know that the Russians have gold and Russia borders Iran . . . So if we want oil they figure we'll pay the price . . . In one way or another British and United States interests are finding the gold to match that of the USSR.

So week by week a river of gold washes out of America. . . Outflow last year was $3.8 billion . . . In 1951 the Treasury expects we'll lose $4,000,000,000 . . . Or about $50,000,000 a week . . . But the Treasury Dept. says they're not too worried . . . They can impose controls on foreign exchange. . . And on gold export to control it . . . However, they admit they would have no control over the sale of gold by countries mining it . . . Nor could they hope to control Russia's sales.

Nor, do they entertain the faintest ray of hope that the exotic ladies of the world could be de-nuded of their gold ornaments.

Planning your Easter wardrobe? Select your most becoming lines from this list of new silhouettes.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

WITH the variety of silhouettes currently offered and the great ingenuity of detail, within the silhouette itself, even though Easter is early this year, planning your wardrobe will be only a pleasure and anything but difficult.

There's something for every type of figure, and something to add a fillip to every personality. Just decide what is right for you and you are sure to come through with a distinguished wardrobe. Here is your fashion scout's report:

Silhouette Line Up

Coats are narrower and much less casual. The loose but straight coat is your best fashion and figure bet. Popular as this style is destined to be, by selecting a model with a detail or two that reflects your individuality you can wear it with distinction. This might be a short-cuffed, wide or bloused sleeve, a scarfed neckline, a tuxedo revere or sailor collar, an oblique arrangement of button trim, or a surprise lining of striped or printed silk.

Unless you are tall and slim as a pole, think twice before you let the barrel-type model of the equally desirable topper style tempt you. The short, boxy or slack topper is sure to look better on you. If your figure is magnificently proportioned, shun a loose coat altogether and choose the high-fashioned fitted coat with a flared skirt.

Whatever type of coat you buy, be sure to relate your dress or suit carefully to it. The ensemble look is and will continue to be a big factor in your fashion future, so signify your smartness by taking advantage of it.

The Costume Look

The suit with an affinity for the loose coat, and most wearable, is not extreme in any detail. It is straight in skirt, rounded in hip, nipped in waist, broader in shoulder, diagonal in detail and feminine in feeling. Note, too, that the tailored jacket is likely to be longer, (twenty-five to twenty-seven inches); the skirt length remains turned at mid-calf. Alternates are the slack and boxy suit and the incoming looking but figure demanding!

With variations, the formula for dresses is still the sheath. For double duty, see that it's topped by its own tunic, fitted or bolero jacket.

Residents of Cumberland will be among the people in the eastern and southern section of the United States who will be able to get out their smoked glass today and see a partial eclipse of the sun if skies are clear.

The eclipse will be annular in the South Pacific and Central America, with the moon centered over the sun, leaving a bright ring around the sun's circumference.

However, in this section a partial eclipse will be seen, pending of course on atmospheric visibility conditions.

As the sun dips low in the western horizon today, the moon swings between the earth and the sun.

For Western Marylanders the eclipse will begin at 5:04 p. m. and end at 5:44 p. m. Seventeen per cent of the sun will be covered to residents of this area.

For observing the first of two partial eclipses scheduled this year, a heavy smoked glass or a dense film is advocated. Trying to look at the phenomenon without much protection may result in some damage to the eyes.

Eastern North America will have its second eclipse of the year on September 1 and will be a better one to view than the one today because more of the sun will be covered.

Bids To Be Accepted On New Lonaconing School

Sealed bids for the construction of Central High School at Lonaconing will be accepted by the Allegany County Board of Education until April 13 at 2 p.m., Edgar A. Dashiell, president of the board, announced.

The bidders may submit proposals on any or all of the three prime contracts, — general construction; heating, plumbing and ventilating, and electrical.

The Board of Education said the successful bidder will be required to furnish a satisfactory performance bond in the full amount of the contract.

The new school will cost in the neighborhood of $1,300,000, according to the plans prepared by S. Russ Minter, local architest.

The school will be built of concrete, brick and directional glass blocks and will have one floor in some sections and two floors in others.

To be used as a junior-senior high school, it will have 33 classrooms, a large gymnasium, auditorium, cafeteria and three shops.

The contract documents, including plans and specifications which have been approved by the State Department of Education, are on file at the office of the architect, Minter, 307 South Centre Street.

The bids will be opened Friday, April 13, at 2 p.m. at a meeting of the Board of Education.

The Board of Education said the successful bidder will be required to furnish a satisfactory performance bond in the full amount of the contract.

The new school will cost in the neighborhood of $1,300,000, according to the plans prepared by S. Russ Minter, local architest.

The school will be built of concrete, brick and directional glass blocks and will have one floor in some sections and two floors in others.

To be used as a junior-senior high school, it will have 33 classrooms, a large gymnasium, auditorium, cafeteria and three shops.

The contract documents, including plans and specifications which have been approved by the State Department of Education, are on file at the office of the architect, Minter, 307 South Centre Street.

The bids will be opened Friday, April 13, at 2 p.m. at a meeting of the Board of Education.

Police Seek Clues On Missing Youth

City Police reported yesterday they have received no word on the disappearance of Thomas Nies, 20, of 708 North Mechanic Street.

Nies was reported missing by his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Nies, who said he left home Sunday evening, February 18, saying he was going for a walk.

When last seen he was wearing blue jeans, brown and red plaid jacket and blue sweater. He is 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 120 pounds, has dark brown hair and brown eyes.

Nies attended St. Patrick's Catholic School but was unemployed due to a physical handicap.

The youth's family said no word or contact had been made about him since he was reported as missing.

Can money be raised to boost school teachers' salaries without upping taxes?

They want an answer to that question not later than today, so that they can fix party policy on the subject that has become as ticklish as any to come before the legislature this session, the Associated Press reported.

The powerful Senate Democratic Steering Committee hoped to get agreement at a caucus Monday on an economy policy which would have excluded teacher raises if it meant new taxation.

But the 18 party senators got into a wrangle on the subject.

Some felt it would be bad policy — and worse politics — to shut the door to possible school boosts.

No Agreement Reached

One or two reportedly favored increased taxation, if necessary, to get the $4,300,000 necessary to pay each teacher an extra $300, or $7,300,000 for $500 across-the-board raises.

The upshot of almost two hours of argument was that the senators failed to reach agreement on anything.

As a compromise, they appointed a subcommittee to meet with fiscal officials.

Until the dissension in Democratic ranks became apparent, most observers at the State House were of the opinion that the teachers had little chance of getting more money. Now, they are not so sure.

Republican Governor McKeldin has stated unequivocably that he intends to hold the present tax line unless it is proven to him that residents are willing to pay more taxes in order to hike the salaries of the men and women who teach their children.

He also feels that it is a problem that should be tackled by the counties and Baltimore City, rather than by the state.

Lower Pay Scales, Absence Of Unions Induce Textile Industry To Move To South

By WILBUR JENNINGS

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Textile manufacturers are quitting New England for the South, chiefly because of lower wage scales and the absence of organized labor, a Senate Labor subcommittee reports.

The subcommittee stated that southern employers, businessmen and churches conspired to destroy or block unionization of southern mills.

The findings are set forth in a 64-page report yet to be passed on by the full Labor Committee.

The subcommittee, attacking efforts to halt unions in southern textile mills, declared that "only education of the South in the benefits of organized labor could constitute an effective solution."

Members of the subcommittee were Sens. Murray (D-Mont), Taft (R-Ohio), Morse (R-Ore), Neely (D-WVa), and Humphrey (D-Minn). Two senators, defeated for reelection, also served with the group. They were Forrest C. Donnell, Missouri Republican, and Claude Pepper, Florida Democrat.

The subcommittee reported that some 80 per cent of the textile industry now is located in the South and only 20 per cent in New England. A quarter of a century ago these figures were reversed, the subcommittee added.

The group admitted that the South offered other advantages to the textile industry, including lower construction costs because of a milder climate, more favorable power rates in some instances, closer sources of raw materials, lower taxes and less state regulation of industrial operations.

But it said the principal reasons for the migration of textile mills was the absence of unions and lower wage scales in the south.

The subcommittee held hearings last year on conditions at five southern mills—the American Enka Co., Morristown, Tenn.; the American Thread Co., Tallapoosa, Ga.; the Anchor Rome Mill, Rome, Ga.; the Celanese Corp., plant at Rome, and a study of the activitees of a citizens' committee at Anderson, S. C., to prevent unionization of the Orr and other mills.

Since the subcommittees findings were made public, spokesmen for two of the three Georgia firms mentioned strongly denied that their firms mentioned strongly denied that their firms had entered any conspiracy against labor unions.

W. A. Egerton, general attorney and assistant secretary of the American Enka Corp. at Asheville, said of the report "we have no knowledge whatsoever of any such alleged conspiracy and therefore have nothing to say about it."

Leland Sadler, chairman of the Anderson citizens' committee, said he had no comment.

Commenting on the calling out of the National Guard during trouble at the American Enka Corp. in Tennessee, the report stated that the "situation in this strike was further aggravated by brutal, unlawful, and completely inexcusable behavior on the part of National Guard men, state highway patrolmen, and the sheriff's deputies."

The report stated that "the subcommittee strongly feels that the National Guard ought not to be used in labor disputes, except to meet a real and serious state emergency. The very presence of the National Guard, even if it does not act, implies that the government is in danger of attack, and raises in the minds of those against whom the National Guard is called out the feeling that their government is allied with their enemies against them.

"In this case, and understandably, no state or local officer would acknowledge that he had been responsible for the calling out of the guard, because the presence of the guard was wholly unjustified. This is demonstrated by the lack of serious violence after the arrival of the guard and by its prompt removal.

"Its presence had been desired simply to overawe the striking employes, and that was its only result. However blameless those who had ordered out the guard may have been, it had been effectively used as a strike-breaking agency."

It is estimated the millionth American will be killed in traffic during 1951 or early 1952. Sane driving by everyone can change that.

Lower Pay Scales, Absence Of Unions Induce Textile Industry To Move To South

By WILBUR JENNINGS

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Textile manufacturers are quitting New England for the South, chiefly because of lower wage scales and the absence of organized labor, a Senate Labor subcommittee reports.

The subcommittee stated that southern employers, businessmen and churches conspired to destroy or block unionization of southern mills.

The findings are set forth in a 64-page report yet to be passed on by the full Labor Committee.

The subcommittee, attacking efforts to halt unions in southern textile mills, declared that "only education of the South in the benefits of organized labor could constitute an effective solution."

Members of the subcommittee were Sens. Murray (D-Mont), Taft (R-Ohio), Morse (R-Ore), Neely (D-WVa), and Humphrey (D-Minn). Two senators, defeated for reelection, also served with the group. They were Forrest C. Donnell, Missouri Republican, and Claude Pepper, Florida Democrat.

The subcommittee reported that some 80 per cent of the textile industry now is located in the South and only 20 per cent in New England. A quarter of a century ago these figures were reversed, the subcommittee added.

The group admitted that the South offered other advantages to the textile industry, including lower construction costs because of a milder climate, more favorable power rates in some instances, closer sources of raw materials, lower taxes and less state regulation of industrial operations.

But it said the principal reasons for the migration of textile mills was the absence of unions and lower wage scales in the south.

The subcommittee held hearings last year on conditions at five southern mills—the American Enka Co., Morristown, Tenn.; the American Thread Co., Tallapoosa, Ga.; the Anchor Rome Mill, Rome, Ga.; the Celanese Corp., plant at Rome, and a study of the activitees of a citizens' committee at Anderson, S. C., to prevent unionization of the Orr and other mills.

Since the subcommittees findings were made public, spokesmen for two of the three Georgia firms mentioned strongly denied that their firms mentioned strongly denied that their firms had entered any conspiracy against labor unions.

W. A. Egerton, general attorney and assistant secretary of the American Enka Corp. at Asheville, said of the report "we have no knowledge whatsoever of any such alleged conspiracy and therefore have nothing to say about it."

Leland Sadler, chairman of the Anderson citizens' committee, said he had no comment.

Commenting on the calling out of the National Guard during trouble at the American Enka Corp. in Tennessee, the report stated that the "situation in this strike was further aggravated by brutal, unlawful, and completely inexcusable behavior on the part of National Guard men, state highway patrolmen, and the sheriff's deputies."

Randall "Skeets" Starkey, the Wiley Ford light-heavyweight, came near being flattened in one heat in his fourth pro fight in New York, he told us yesterday.

Harry Daniels, Harlem scrapper, who had gone 10 rounds with Harold Green, well known Brooklyn middleweight, dropped Starkey in the opening round of their match at the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club in Brooklyn, February 17.

"It was the first time that I've been decked in 19 pro fights," Starkey related. "I weathered the storm O. K., and knocked out Daniels in 44 seconds of the 2nd stanza."

"Skeets" is home now and hopes to return to New York soon. He passed his physical for the army and may receive greetings from Uncle Sam any day now.

Starkey's third victory in New York was a decision over Eddie Godbold of Harlem in four rounds at the White Plains Community Center.

The tall West Virginia battler who got his start here as an amateur now tips the beam at 171 pounds.

Kinsley McDonald, deputy clerk at the court house, was a member of Barton High School's first county championship soccer team and we believe his story about Barton losing a soccer game in the afternoon and defeating the same team in basketball the same night is worth re-telling.

It happened in the fall of 1920. The Braves won the county title by defeating Beall on a mud-soaked field in Barton, 1-0.

Then Barton whipped the Garrett county champions and also Hagerstown, Washington county's standard bearer.

These games were followed by an unusual delay in arranging for Barton's next opponent and snowstorms interfered with soccer practice. So the Braves started basketball drills.

Late in the year, however, Barton was called upon to play Sparrows Point High booters at Patterson Park, Baltimore where the Braves received a trimming. Not to be outdone, Barton challenged Sparrows Point to a basketball game that very evening. The game was played and Barton won.

U. S. Track Team Wins P-A Events

Takes Three Relays, 50,000 See Contests

BUENOS AIRES, March 6 (INS) —The United States racked up four smashing victories today to clinch the track and field team title at the Pan-American games.

U. S. foursomes swept to victory in the men's 400 and 1600 meter relays and in the women's 400-meter relay while Henry Laskau of New York ambled home first in the 10,000 meter walk.

A crowd of 50,000 spectators was in the sun-swept River Plata Stadium to witness the last of the spiked shoe events.

The U. S. 400-team, anchored by spring champion Arthur Bragg, scored a three-yard victory over Cuba's quartet, anchored by Rafael Chacon. The winning time of 41 seconds flat established a South American record and was only one and two-tenths of a second short of the world mark.

The other three men on the U. S. team were Don Campbell of Sterling, Colo., Dick Attlessey of Los Angeles and John Voight of Oklahoma A. and M.

Mal Whitfield, the Army sergeant Olympic champ from Columbus, O., anchored the victorious 1600-meter team home in a breeze. The stateside quartet, composed of Whitfield, Hugo Maiocco of New York, Voight and Bill Brown of BelAir, Maryland, won the race in 3:09.9. It finished more than 40 yards ahead of Chile.

Lanky Jean Patton of Nashville, Tenn., anchored the U. S. triumph by three yards in the women's 400-meter final, to beat the Chilean entry. The winning time was 48.7 seconds.

Cincinnati Replaces Aggies In NIT Games

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP) — The makeup of the National Invitation Tournament was completed tonight with the selection of the University of Cincinnati (17-3) after Oklahoma A. & M. had "regretfully" declined an invitation.

Asa Bushnell, chairman of the selection, promptly announced the pairings for the opening games on Saturday when doubleheaders will be played both in the afternoon and evening.

Saturday Afternoon

2 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) — Lawrence Tech (20-2) vs. Dayton (23-4).

4 p. m. — Seton Hall (22-5) vs. Beloit (18-4).

Saturday Night

7:45 p. m. — St. Bonaventure (18-5) vs. Cincinnati (18-3).

10 p .m. — LaSalle (22-6) vs. St. Louis (21-7).

The four seeded teams St. Johns of Brooklyn (22-3), North Carolina State (28-4), Brigham Young (23-7) and Arizona (23-4) will play the survivors of Saturday's games on Monday and Tuesday with the semifinals scheduled for Thursday March 15 and the final on Saturday, March 17.

Randall "Skeets" Starkey, the Wiley Ford light-heavyweight, came near being flattened in one heat in his fourth pro fight in New York, he told us yesterday.

Harry Daniels, Harlem scrapper, who had gone 10 rounds with Harold Green, well known Brooklyn middleweight, dropped Starkey in the opening round of their match at the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club in Brooklyn, February 17.

"It was the first time that I've been decked in 19 pro fights," Starkey related. "I weathered the storm O. K., and knocked out Daniels in 44 seconds of the 2nd stanza."

"Skeets" is home now and hopes to return to New York soon. He passed his physical for the army and may receive greetings from Uncle Sam any day now.

Starkey's third victory in New York was a decision over Eddie Godbold of Harlem in four rounds at the White Plains Community Center.

The tall West Virginia battler who got his start here as an amateur now tips the beam at 171 pounds.

Kinsley McDonald, deputy clerk at the court house, was a member of Barton High School's first county championship soccer team and we believe his story about Barton losing a soccer game in the afternoon and defeating the same team in basketball the same night is worth re-telling.

It happened in the fall of 1920. The Braves won the county title by defeating Beall on a mud-soaked field in Barton, 1-0.

Then Barton whipped the Garrett county champions and also Hagerstown, Washington county's standard bearer.

These games were followed by an unusual delay in arranging for Barton's next opponent and snowstorms interfered with soccer practice. So the Braves started basketball drills.

Late in the year, however, Barton was called upon to play Sparrows Point High booters at Patterson Park, Baltimore where the Braves received a trimming. Not to be outdone, Barton challenged Sparrows Point to a basketball game that very evening. The game was played and Barton won.

U. S. Track Team Wins P-A Events

Takes Three Relays, 50,000 See Contests

BUENOS AIRES, March 6 (INS) —The United States racked up four smashing victories today to clinch the track and field team title at the Pan-American games.

U. S. foursomes swept to victory in the men's 400 and 1600 meter relays and in the women's 400-meter relay while Henry Laskau of New York ambled home first in the 10,000 meter walk.

A crowd of 50,000 spectators was in the sun-swept River Plata Stadium to witness the last of the spiked shoe events.

The U. S. 400-team, anchored by spring champion Arthur Bragg, scored a three-yard victory over Cuba's quartet, anchored by Rafael Chacon. The winning time of 41 seconds flat established a South American record and was only one and two-tenths of a second short of the world mark.

The other three men on the U. S. team were Don Campbell of Sterling, Colo., Dick Attlessey of Los Angeles and John Voight of Oklahoma A. and M.

Mal Whitfield, the Army sergeant Olympic champ from Columbus, O., anchored the victorious 1600-meter team home in a breeze. The stateside quartet, composed of Whitfield, Hugo Maiocco of New York, Voight and Bill Brown of BelAir, Maryland, won the race in 3:09.9. It finished more than 40 yards ahead of Chile.

Lanky Jean Patton of Nashville, Tenn., anchored the U. S. triumph by three yards in the women's 400-meter final, to beat the Chilean entry. The winning time was 48.7 seconds.

17,000 May See Charles-Walcott Fight In Detroit Tonight

Heavy Champ Defends Title Seventh Time

Ezzard Is Favorite, Gate May Hit $95,000, Bout Set For 10 P. M.

By MURRAY ROSE

DETROIT, March 6 (AP)—This is Joe Louis' home town and a surprising capacity crowd of 17,000 may turn out tomorrow night to see heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles, who beat the Brown Bomber, and Jersey Joe Walcott, who almost did, battle it out in a title 15-rounder in the Olympia.

There has been an amazing surge of interest hereabouts in the return scrap between the two negroes, undoubtedly spurred by the news that Louis probably will face Charles again in Chicago next month. That is, of course, if Charles wins tomorrow, as expected.

The lean, lithe, 29-year-old champion is favored at odds of 3½ to 1 but there has been very little betting on the outcome so far. In New York last night the price was listed as 6 to 1 and "out." Which means you can bet on Walcott but the bookies won't take any Charles money. They consider Ezzard a cinch.

The 37-year-old Walcott, who could become the oldest challenger ever to capture the heavyweight crown if he wins.

In addition, the bout, starting at 10 p. m. (EST), will be broadcast and telecast by C.B.S.

Yet Matchmaker Nick Londes of the International Boxing Club's Detroit branch, said over $50,000 was in the till already for Charles' seventh title defense of the crown he won by whipping Walcott in Chicago 20 months ago. Nick said the show "is selling very, very well," but he frowned at the mention of "sellout." Nick doesn't want to drive any last minute customers away.

Other members of the I.B.C. say the gross gate may hit $95,000, which would be an indoor record for this town.

Charles is getting 40 per cent of the net. Walcott will collect 17.

Alleghany Loop Has Six Teams, Opens April 29

Elkins, Huttonsville Granted Franchises

PETERSBURG, W. Va., March 6 — The Alleghany Baseball League accepted the applications of the Elkins Highlanders and the Medium Security Farm team of Huttonsville at its Sunday meeting in Elkins, Clem Clower, secretary of the circuit, announced today.

The league will function with six teams this year, including the Bartow American Legion, Franklin, Petersburg and Parsons.

Marlinton dropped out of the Allegany circuit to enter the King Coal League which includes teams of Sunmmers, Raleigh, Nicholas and Pocahontas counties in West Virginia.

Bartow's franchise passes from the hands of a local business man to the American Legion post.

Franchise fees of $60 were posted by the six teams which will launch their season on April 29. Each team will engage in a four-game series with the other five clubs in the loop. The 20-game schedule will comprise Sundays and holidays.

A board of arbitration is being set up to handle all protests and disputes of the clubs.

Officials and managers will meet on April 22 to receive the player rosters of 30 men for each team. The player limits must be pared to 21 men per team by June 1.

Dates Are Approved For Ryder Matches

LONDON, March 6 (AP) — The British P. G. A. finally agreed today to the American proposal to play the Ryder Cup golf match on Nov 2. and Nov. 4, 1951.

The British had been holding out for consecutive days.

The match will be played at Pinehurst, N. C.

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 6 (INS) — Along Broadway today we find.... Tommy Loughran ...former light heavyweight champion....who in 20 years of battling probably conceded more weight than anybody in ring history.

Tommy gave away nearly 100 pounds apiece to Primo Carnera and Ray Impellittiere ...he also met more champions than any other fighter...look 'em over ..Gene Tunney, Carnera, Jack Sharkey, Jack Delaney, Mike McTigue, Pete Latzo, Jim Braddock, Mickey Walker, and Max Baer ...and beat most of them.....

Tommy says Carnera couldn't punch much .... "But he'd almost floor you when he breathed a mouthful of garlic into your face"....

Here's little Vic Marsello....manager of welterweight Charley Fusari....when asked if his boy would engage in an elimination tournament, says .... "That bridge will come when I cross it...."

Little Jimmy Murray....the fight promoter who staged that Louis-Walker sell-out in San Francisco.. vows middleweight champ Ray Robinson is eager to battle Maurice Harper in S. F.'s Cow Palace for a $35,000 guarantee....that one, says Jimmy, would draw $150,000 "in the greatest town in the world...." and that from a lad who was raised in Brooklyn....

Here's little Major Roland Wooten....who flew 186 missions in fighter planes over Germany...before being shot down and badly shot up....he says Max Schmeling former heavyweight champ... saved his life ....."at that time," says Wooten "the Nazis were bumping off every American flyer they could get their hands on and Schmeling told them I was a Polish flyer.....

Nat Rogers .... former Madison Square Garden matchmaker .... is now representing Vic Toweel ... world's bantam king....and clubs in such widely separated spots as South Africa, Minila and Tokyo.... he's now trying to arrange a match between Dado Marino and British-er Terry Allen for Tokyo....provided Gen. MacArthur okays it .... he also wants to put Bonnie Espenoso and Sandy Saddler together in Manila.....

And here's Johnny Gibson....Seton Hall College track coach.... who says his marvelous sprinter....Andy Stanfield....might surpass Jesse Owens' world records if Andy only had the same rah-rah spirit....

Even so, Gibson thinks Stanfield is the world's greatest all-around athlete since besides the sprints he can high jump six feet ... broad jump 25 feet and pole vault 11 feet without half trying....selah...

Members of that Barton soccer-basketball team were C. O. Moyer, Giffen "Squirt" McCormick, Courtney "Pete" Andrews (now deceased), Jimmie McDonald, Joe Longridge, Kinsley "Tickle" McDonald, Claude "Pink" Waring, John Harvey, Cecil Smith (now deceased), Myrle Mowbray, Emory Mowbray and Wilbur McDonald.

Joseph N. Carter, 58, who died Monday morning in Allegany Hospital, was the first coach of St. Patrick's Shamrocks, an outstanding Mt. Savage basketball team of the 1920s.

Ryan Farrell of the C. D. Kenny Corporation, was a member of that team which beat Barton High School, Salisbury (Pa.) High School when the Cardinals' lineup included "Rip" Engle, now Penn State head football coach and the Lichliter Brothers—"Wib" and Pickles"—and Allegany High School.

Other members of Coach Carter's quint were Joe and Gene Brannon, Tommy Campbell, Johnny Barrett and Ed Murray.

Farrell says the Samrocks were undefeated the first year they played together and won 36 games.

Westmont High School of Johnstown played its first basketball game in this section at Mt. Savage against the Shamrocks. Carl Engh was the Westmont coach then and he's still at the helm. The Pennsy team now plays Allegany High two games annually.

Farrell recalls the time Prof. Cooling at Barton High told the Shamrocks that a series between the teams would not be worthwhile because Barton was too good. The teams met in a home-and-home series and split even.

The Shamrocks-Allegany High game at Mt. Savage wound up in a "rhubarb" and a fellow named Curry had a watch yanked out of his pocket and badly mangled in a pushing and shoving contest that climaxed the affair. Foy A. Curry is now assistant principal at Allegany High.

At the time of his death, Mr. Carter was chief of the Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Department and commander of Memorial Post American Legion.

Adam Comorosky, former Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder, who died the other day in Swoyersville, Pa., was a product of the old Blue Ridge League where he started his career in organized baseball with the Waynesboro (Pa.) Villagers in 1925.

The Blue Ridge produced such major league players of the past as Rolston Hemsley, Joe Vosmik and "Chick" Fullis, who went up from Frederick, Md.; Lewis "Hack" Wilson, Lu Blue, Johnny Neun, Robert Moses "Lefty" Grove and Roger (Doc) Cramer of Martinsburg, W. Va.

Bill Sherdel, a pitcher of note with the St. Louis Cardinals, got his start at Hanover (Pa.) in the Blue Ridge League.

Cumberland was in the Blue Ridge League for a short time before the First World War. When Chambersburg folded, Col. Nelson W. Russler bought the franchise. Drafting of players by the army, however, caused the league to do a fadeout, according to Russler.

17,000 May See Charles-Walcott Fight In Detroit Tonight

Heavy Champ Defends Title Seventh Time

Ezzard Is Favorite, Gate May Hit $95,000, Bout Set For 10 P. M.

By MURRAY ROSE

DETROIT, March 6 (AP)—This is Joe Louis' home town and a surprising capacity crowd of 17,000 may turn out tomorrow night to see heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles, who beat the Brown Bomber, and Jersey Joe Walcott, who almost did, battle it out in a title 15-rounder in the Olympia.

There has been an amazing surge of interest hereabouts in the return scrap between the two negroes, undoubtedly spurred by the news that Louis probably will face Charles again in Chicago next month. That is, of course, if Charles wins tomorrow, as expected.

The lean, lithe, 29-year-old champion is favored at odds of 3½ to 1 but there has been very little betting on the outcome so far. In New York last night the price was listed as 6 to 1 and "out." Which means you can bet on Walcott but the bookies won't take any Charles money. They consider Ezzard a cinch.

The 37-year-old Walcott, who could become the oldest challenger ever to capture the heavyweight crown if he wins.

In addition, the bout, starting at 10 p. m. (EST), will be broadcast and telecast by C.B.S.

Yet Matchmaker Nick Londes of the International Boxing Club's Detroit branch, said over $50,000 was in the till already for Charles' seventh title defense of the crown he won by whipping Walcott in Chicago 20 months ago. Nick said the show "is selling very, very well," but he frowned at the mention of "sellout." Nick doesn't want to drive any last minute customers away.

Other members of the I.B.C. say the gross gate may hit $95,000, which would be an indoor record for this town.

Charles is getting 40 per cent of the net. Walcott will collect 17.

Alleghany Loop Has Six Teams, Opens April 29

Elkins, Huttonsville Granted Franchises

PETERSBURG, W. Va., March 6 — The Alleghany Baseball League accepted the applications of the Elkins Highlanders and the Medium Security Farm team of Huttonsville at its Sunday meeting in Elkins, Clem Clower, secretary of the circuit, announced today.

The league will function with six teams this year, including the Bartow American Legion, Franklin, Petersburg and Parsons.

Marlinton dropped out of the Allegany circuit to enter the King Coal League which includes teams of Sunmmers, Raleigh, Nicholas and Pocahontas counties in West Virginia.

Bartow's franchise passes from the hands of a local business man to the American Legion post.

Franchise fees of $60 were posted by the six teams which will launch their season on April 29. Each team will engage in a four-game series with the other five clubs in the loop. The 20-game schedule will comprise Sundays and holidays.

A board of arbitration is being set up to handle all protests and disputes of the clubs.

Officials and managers will meet on April 22 to receive the player rosters of 30 men for each team. The player limits must be pared to 21 men per team by June 1.

Dates Are Approved For Ryder Matches

LONDON, March 6 (AP) — The British P. G. A. finally agreed today to the American proposal to play the Ryder Cup golf match on Nov 2. and Nov. 4, 1951.

The British had been holding out for consecutive days.

The match will be played at Pinehurst, N. C.

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 6 (INS) — Along Broadway today we find.... Tommy Loughran ...former light heavyweight champion....who in 20 years of battling probably conceded more weight than anybody in ring history.

Tommy gave away nearly 100 pounds apiece to Primo Carnera and Ray Impellittiere ...he also met more champions than any other fighter...look 'em over ..Gene Tunney, Carnera, Jack Sharkey, Jack Delaney, Mike McTigue, Pete Latzo, Jim Braddock, Mickey Walker, and Max Baer ...and beat most of them.....

Tommy says Carnera couldn't punch much .... "But he'd almost floor you when he breathed a mouthful of garlic into your face"....

Here's little Vic Marsello....manager of welterweight Charley Fusari....when asked if his boy would engage in an elimination tournament, says .... "That bridge will come when I cross it...."

Little Jimmy Murray....the fight promoter who staged that Louis-Walker sell-out in San Francisco.. vows middleweight champ Ray Robinson is eager to battle Maurice Harper in S. F.'s Cow Palace for a $35,000 guarantee....that one, says Jimmy, would draw $150,000 "in the greatest town in the world...." and that from a lad who was raised in Brooklyn....

Here's little Major Roland Wooten....who flew 186 missions in fighter planes over Germany...before being shot down and badly shot up....he says Max Schmeling former heavyweight champ... saved his life ....."at that time," says Wooten "the Nazis were bumping off every American flyer they could get their hands on and Schmeling told them I was a Polish flyer.....

Nat Rogers .... former Madison Square Garden matchmaker .... is now representing Vic Toweel ... world's bantam king....and clubs in such widely separated spots as South Africa, Minila and Tokyo.... he's now trying to arrange a match between Dado Marino and British-er Terry Allen for Tokyo....provided Gen. MacArthur okays it .... he also wants to put Bonnie Espenoso and Sandy Saddler together in Manila.....

And here's Johnny Gibson....Seton Hall College track coach.... who says his marvelous sprinter....Andy Stanfield....might surpass Jesse Owens' world records if Andy only had the same rah-rah spirit....

Even so, Gibson thinks Stanfield is the world's greatest all-around athlete since besides the sprints he can high jump six feet ... broad jump 25 feet and pole vault 11 feet without half trying....selah...

Kentucky Voted Top Cage Team

Oklahoma Aggies Cop Second Place

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Kentucky's basketball express, derailed Saturday by Vanderbilt, chugged in today as the No. 1 team for 1950-51.

The Wildcats arrived just ahead of Oklahoma A. & M. in the final Associated Press poll of the season.

Kentucky also nipped the Aggies in 1949, when the first poll was conducted.

Bradley, which placed sixth in the current poll, took top honors last year.

Kentucky's margin over Oklahoma A. & M. this time was only 26 points. Actually, the Aggies received 10 more first-place votes, 55 to 45, but the Wildcats got enough second and third place ballots to slip home first.

The 185 sports writers and broadcasters who participated in the voting gave Kentucky 1,439 points. Oklahoma A. & M. piled up 1,413 points. Standings:

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—

THERE'S NO doubt that Joe DiMaggio meant it the other night when he told the baseball writers attached to the Yankees that he'd probably call it quits after this season.

Joe is 36, and he probably had enough aches in him that night to make abdication sound enticing. When that Arizona sun massages his training wounds, and he begins hitting the ball, it all will sound very silly to him—and when he is confronted with his remarks he will be inclined to say, "Who, me?"

Friend of Joe in New York gave him a little lecture on the long distance phone, after the story broke.

"Joe," the friend said, "never say good-bye in baseball. Make baseball say good-bye to you. Already remember what happened to Ruth. He was pretty good, too.

"But he was getting along in years—a good five or six years older than you are now—and he was still the highest paid player in baseball, though he wasn't the best ballplayer on the Yankee team. Lou Gehrig was. And the business office knew it.

"So somebody needled Babe into demanding the job as Yankee manager. The Yanks had a pretty good manager at the time . . . Joe McCarthy. But Babe waded into Jake Ruppert's office and said, in effect, 'Gimme that job or I quit'. So when the time came to let him go, Ruppert had his 'out'. All he had to do was point to Babe's statement of a short time before. Otherwise, if he had just let him go, the fans would've torn down the Yankee Stadium."

Joe's friend took a deep breath—he's a rather large fellow, despite a recent flesh purge at Hot Springs, Ark.—and repeated himself:

"Never say good-bye."

Good advice, in the tricky business of sport. DiMaggio, like Joe Louis, Ted Williams and every other high-pay athlete who has come along in the uranium age of sport, can't put much away. Occasionally you read a piece saying that this or that fellow now makes more than Babe did, or Tunney, or Dempsey, or Jones and so forth, but you should laugh. When Babe made his $80,000 a year he paid about $8,000 in taxes, if that. When Tunney made nearly a million bucks for 30 minutes of work against Dempsey in their second fight, he was able to keep perhaps $900,000 of it.

The sports hero of today must keep going, if only to pay for his good years. Do you think Joe Louis, with all his inherent and ineffable dignity, would be making a spectacle of himself today if there were some other avenue open to him through which he could pay Unc?

Through his big earning years Louis probably didn't net much more than a quarter on every dollar he made . . . And since DiMag came along a little later, when the tariff was steeper, he probably netted less.

DiMag could come down with shingles around both ankles and his neck in 1951, or be benched for hitting .089 and fielding a garish .333. But unless he deliberately bows out—and he seemed to be in an abdicating mood the other night—the Yanks would still have to pay him $75,000 for the 1952 season. He makes a hundred now and, under baseball law, it's not possible for him to be offered a Yankee contract for more than a 25 per cent cut next year.

"The reason you've got to make 'em say good-bye to you," Joe's friend said, "is that they wouldn't dare, after what you've meant to them."

"Besides," he went on, "you've been headed for the Hall of Fame since the first day you came in the league. How would you feel with your kisser up there in Cooperstown if it said on the plaque that you hung up your glove when you had maybe three maybe four more good years left in you?

"Babe played until he fell down, but nobody felt anything but love for the guy Ty hit something like .328 in his final season, and he had been at it more than 20 years. Tris played right down to the nub, and so did Matty, Walter Johnson, Hornsby, Foxx, Gehringer and all those guys.

"Say it ain't so, Joe."

(Editor's Note: Besides, DiMag probably will have a wonderful year. He hasn't had as much peace of mind in years. He's gained the finest friend of his life—Joe, Jr.—the growing boy who may be the one who decides when Big Joe quits).

Abe Saperstein Sues For $50,000 Damages

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP) — Abe Saperstein, basketball promoter, today sued for $50,000 damages and other awards from an operator of a girls' cage club.

Saperstein owns the Harlem Globetrotters, a professional team. He accused Richard Hudson of Chicago, operator of National Sport Attractions, of misrepresenting his Globe Trotterettes as an auxiliary of the Globetrotters.

Saperstein's circuit court suit also asks that Hudson be forbidden to use the Globe Trotterette name and that he turn over to Saperstein all profits of his team since it began using the name in November.

317,000 Saw Baseball Series In Nippon

WICHITA, Kas., March 6 (INS)—The largest baseball attendance last year was not at the world series—but in far-off Japan.

This fact was made public today in the 1951 official baseball annual of the National Baseball Congress published today in Wichita.

More than 317,000 fans saw the eight-game series in Nippon between the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Capeharts and Japanese teams. Fort Wayne won the inter-hemisphere title.

Suspend Football

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 6 (AP)—Niagara University today suspended football for the duration of the present national emergency.

The principal reason is the shortage of player material. The university has lost some freshmen and many sophomores and juniors to the draft.

Jersey Joe Walcott Will Retire If He Is Beaten Tonight

DETROIT, March 6 (INS)—Jersey Joe Walcott plans to retire if he fails to win in his bid for the world's heavyweight boxing title in a 15-round bout against champion Ezzard Charles in Detroit tomorrow night.

Walcott's manager, Felix Bocciochio, said tonight on the eve of the bout:

"This is it. If Walcott fails to beat Charles, I'm going to retire him. Joe and I have agreed on it. I have set up a liquor business for Walcott in his hometown, Camden, N. J., and he should be able to earn a nice livelihood.

"He has given me everything I have asked of him including a few terrific thrills. Remember— this is his fourth crack at the title. Who else can match that?

"I want to emphasize: however, that we are not carrying a defeatist attitude into the ring against Charles. Walcott is serious in his insistence that he will beat Charles and even looks for a knockout.

Gulfstream Park's largest daily double paid $1,795.40 on March 14, 1947, set by Brave Bid and Abrego. Its second biggest was worth $1,624.50 on March 15, 1950, molded by Trarab and Sombor.

Kentucky Voted Top Cage Team

Oklahoma Aggies Cop Second Place

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Kentucky's basketball express, derailed Saturday by Vanderbilt, chugged in today as the No. 1 team for 1950-51.

The Wildcats arrived just ahead of Oklahoma A. & M. in the final Associated Press poll of the season.

Kentucky also nipped the Aggies in 1949, when the first poll was conducted.

Bradley, which placed sixth in the current poll, took top honors last year.

Kentucky's margin over Oklahoma A. & M. this time was only 26 points. Actually, the Aggies received 10 more first-place votes, 55 to 45, but the Wildcats got enough second and third place ballots to slip home first.

The 185 sports writers and broadcasters who participated in the voting gave Kentucky 1,439 points. Oklahoma A. & M. piled up 1,413 points. Standings:

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—THERE'S NO doubt that Joe DiMaggio meant it the other night when he told the baseball writers attached to the Yankees that he'd probably call it quits after this season.

Joe is 36, and he probably had enough aches in him that night to make abdication sound enticing. When that Arizona sun massages his training wounds, and he begins hitting the ball, it all will sound very silly to him—and when he is confronted with his remarks he will be inclined to say, "Who, me?"

Friend of Joe in New York gave him a little lecture on the long distance phone, after the story broke.

"Joe," the friend said, "never say good-bye in baseball. Make baseball say good-bye to you. Already remember what happened to Ruth. He was pretty good, too.

"But he was getting along in years—a good five or six years older than you are now—and he was still the highest paid player in baseball, though he wasn't the best ballplayer on the Yankee team. Lou Gehrig was. And the business office knew it.

"So somebody needled Babe into demanding the job as Yankee manager. The Yanks had a pretty good manager at the time . . . Joe McCarthy. But Babe waded into Jake Ruppert's office and said, in effect, 'Gimme that job or I quit'. So, when the time came to let him go, Ruppert had his 'out'. All he had to do was point to Babe's statement of a short time before. Otherwise, if he had just let him go, the fans would've torn down the Yankee Stadium."

Joe's friend took a deep breath—he's a rather large fellow, despite a recent flesh purge at Hot Springs, Ark.—and repeated himself:

Good advice, in the tricky business of sport. DiMaggio, like Joe Louis, Ted Williams and every other high-pay athlete who has come along in the uranium age of sport, can't put much away. Occasionally you read a piece saying that this or that fellow now makes more than Babe did, or Tunney, or Dempsey, or Jones and so forth, but you should laugh. When Babe made his $80,000 a year he paid about $8,000 in taxes, if that. When Tunney made nearly a million bucks for 30 minutes of work against Dempsey in their second fight, he was able to keep perhaps $900,000 of it.

The sports hero of today must keep going, if only to pay for his good years. Do you think Joe Louis, with all his inherent and ineffable dignity, would be making a spectacle of himself today if there were some other avenue open to him through which he could pay Unc?

Through his big earning years Louis probably didn't net much more than a quarter on every dollar he made . . . And since DiMag came along a little later, when the tariff was steeper, he probably netted less.

DiMag could come down with shingles around both ankles and his neck in 1951, or be benched for hitting .089 and fielding a garish .333. But unless he deliberately bows out—and he seemed to be in an abdicating mood the other night—the Yanks would still have to pay him $75,000 for the 1952 season. He makes a hundred now and, under baseball law, it's not possible for him to be offered a Yankee contract for more than a 25 per cent cut next year.

"The reason you've got to make 'em say good-bye to you," Joe's friend said, "is that they wouldn't dare, after what you've meant to them."

"Besides," he went on, "you've been headed for the Hall of Fame since the first day you came in the league. How would you feel with your kisser up there in Cooperstown if it said on the plaque that you hung up your glove when you had maybe three maybe four more good years left in you?

"Babe played until he fell down, but nobody felt anything but love for the guy Ty hit something like .328 in his final season, and he had been at it more than 20 years. Tris played right down to the nub, and so did Matty, Walter Johnson, Hornsby, Foxx, Gehringer and all those guys.

"Say it ain't so, Joe."

(Editor's Note: Besides, DiMag probably will have a wonderful year. He hasn't had as much peace of mind in years. He's gained the finest friend of his life—Joe, Jr.—the growing boy who may be the one who decides when Big Joe quits).

Abe Saperstein Sues For $50,000 Damages

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP) — Abe Saperstein, basketball promoter, today sued for $50,000 damages and other awards from an operator of a girls' cage club.

Saperstein owns the Harlem Globetrotters, a professional team. He accused Richard Hudson of Chicago, operator of National Sport Attractions, of misrepresenting his Globe Trotterettes as an auxfliary of the Globetrotters.

Saperstein's circuit court suit also asks that Hudson be forbidden to use the Globe Trotterette name and that he turn over to Saperstein all profits of his team since it began using the name in November.

317,000 Saw Baseball Series In Nippon

WICHITA, Kas., March 6 (INS)—The largest baseball attendance last year was not at the world series—but in far-off Japan.

This fact was made public today in the 1951 official baseball annual of the National Baseball Congress published today in Wichita.

More than 317,000 fans saw the eight-game series in Nippon between the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Capeharts and Japanese teams. Fort Wayne won the inter-hemisphere title.

Suspend Football

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 6 (AP)—Niagara University today suspended football for the duration of the present national emergency.

The principal reason is the shortage of player material. The university has lost some freshmen and many sophomores and juniors to the draft.

Jersey Joe Walcott Will Retire If He Is Beaten Tonight

DETROIT, March 6 (INS)—Jersey Joe Walcott plans to retire if he fails to win in his bid for the world's heavyweight boxing title in a 15-round bout against champion Ezzard Charles in Detroit tomorrow night.

Walcott's manager, Felix Bocciachio, said tonight on the eve of the bout:

"This is it. If Walcott fails to beat Charles, I'm going to retire him. Joe and I have agreed on it. I have set up a liquor business for Walcott in his hometown, Camden, N. J., and he should be able to earn a nice livelihood.

"He has given me everything I have asked of him including a few terrific thrills. Remember— this is his fourth crack at the title. Who else can match that?

"I want to emphasize, however, that we are not carrying a defeatist attitude into the ring against Charles. Walcott is serious in his insistence that he will beat Charles and even looks for a knockout.

Lemmert Urges Cut In County Expenditures

Budget Requests Due March 30

Economy in the county finances must be stressed for the fiscal year beginning July 1, William H. Lemmert, president of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, declared yesterday at the group meeting in the Court House.

Lemmert made the statement as he announced that budget requests from the various departments must be presented on or before Friday, March 30.

This will give the board three weeks in which to establish the budget and set the tax levy, the commissioners reported.

The budget covering the fiscal year between July 1, 1951, and June 30, 1952, will be announced Tuesday, April 17.

With ever-rising costs of administration of the county government and its agencies, economy will be the keynote of this year's financial setup, Lemmert added.

He was joined in this statement by Commissioners James Holmes and James Orr. The three noted that another appropriation will have to be included in this year's budget.

That is for the construction of a road to the Savage River Dam. Through the arrangement on the erection of the dam, Allegany county will pay to the Upper Potomac River Commission the cost of building about seven miles of road from Bloomington to the dam.

Departments whose budget estimations are requested, include the sheriff's office, board of Education, Sylvan Retreat, County Home and Infirmary, the county roads department, clerk of Circuit Court, County Health Department and County Welfare Board.

Union Seniority Arrangements Unacceptable To Kelly Officials

Officials of Kelly-Springfield Tire Company announced yesterday they cannot accept a vote of Local 26, United Rubber Workers, Saturday night in overruling seniority arrangements in the production division.

The majority of the 150 union members present at the meeting voted to overrule the interpretation made by the local's executive board and Acting President Ralph C. Beard concerning the shutdown of the white sidewall department.

This department, with 14 employes, has had production stopped by a government order. The company, according to F. T. Bell, personnel manager, regards this stoppage as an elimination of a department.

Beard and the executive board met with the firm's officials and agreed that they would go along with the union contract on seniority.

The clause affecting this stoppage reads: "When a rubber division production department is eliminated, employes affected there have seniority rights throughout the production division."

Furlough notices have been posted in Departments 51-E and 63, of the production division, and the 14 white sidewall employes are being transferred there, Bell said.

"We cannot accept this union action on the matter which has already been decided by the company an agreed to by Beard and the executive board," Bell commented.

"Kelly solely regards the shutdown of Department 51-H (white sidewall) as an elimination," he added.

The company was notified by letter Monday of the union's Saturday action, but Beard, vice president who is acting president during the illness of R. C. Burkhart, said yesterday he has not received Kelly's reply.

The membership of the union can submit the matter to grievance action before an umpire, Bell said. Union officials did not indicate what future action would be taken.

Bell also announced that several furloughs are being posted throughout the plant as it reverts to a five-day schedule.

The company had been working six days a week until rubber supplies were restricted by the government.

City Police Make 934 Arrests In February

Among other routine reports were the Health Department which said 21 communicable diseases were noted; 12 clinics held; 340 visits conducted. Vital statistics included 156 births and 45 deaths.

Tax collections reported by Collector George E. Davis totaled $63,142.16.

"Several days just before my period I'd feel so nervous, irritable, so restless, easily upset at the slightest thing—due to female functional monthly disturbances, I asked my druggist for something to take, and he told me Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now I get simply amazing relief from this distress. Pinkham's Compound also relieves monthly headache, backache and thosemiserable 'bearing-down' pains—due to this cause. Taken regularly—it helps build up resistance against such distress.

"What also impressed me about Lydia Pinkham's Compound is that it's made strictly from nature's roots and herbs (plus Vitamin B1). There are no harmful drugs in it. This is really a great comfort. I wish you girls troubled this way would give this great medicine a fair trial."

P. S. Pinkham's Compound tastes swell in a little fruit juice or just plain water. Or you may prefer Lydia Pinkham's TABLETS with added iron—pleasant to take and easy to carry in your purse.

English politician accused Winnie Churchill of having a Microphone built in his cigar. Winnie treats that implication with a shrug of his rather tight scalp.

• — • — •

An implication in an insinuation that's hatched. Since an American admiral took over the British Navy, we will admit Winnie has been as dazed as a Missouri cat fish in a paddle-wheel.

• — • — •

Last year, the Admirality made the last payment on the battle of Trafalgar. Now that they've got that out of the way they will take up this other matter.

Winnie says only an Englishman should command the Royal Navy, afloat or in the blue prints. If all babies look alike Winnie, has one grown up to be an admiral?

Nobody has responded to the suggestion that loaded Chinese in North Korea be admitted as displaced persons.

It was just an idea that didn't get by the committee on foreign gulfaws. Nor has Commissar Stalin depuzzled our other intricate question of protocol. How can a half-dozen Chinamen — walking single-file down a narrow street—be going to six different places?

All we know about the eastern situation is the direction. Too bad Ripley isn't here to get his meandering mandarins marching again.

Lemmert Urges Cut In County Expenditures

Budget Requests Due March 30

Economy in the county finances must be stressed for the fiscal year beginning July 1, William H. Lemmert, president of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, declared yesterday at the group meeting in the Court House.

Lemmert made the statement as he announced that budget requests from the various departments must be presented on or before Friday, March 30.

This will give the board three weeks in which to establish the budget and set the tax levy, the commissioners reported.

The budget covering the fiscal year between July 1, 1951, and June 30, 1952, will be announced Tuesday, April 17.

With ever-rising costs of administration of the county government and its agencies, economy will be the keynote of this year's financial setup, Lemmert added.

He was joined in this statement by Commissioners James Holmes and James Orr. The three noted that another appropriation will have to be included in this year's budget.

That is for the construction of a road to the Savage River Dam. Through the arrangement on the erection of the dam, Allegany county will pay to the Upper Potomac River Commission the cost of building about seven miles of road from Bloomington to the dam.

Departments whose budget estimations are requested, include the sheriff's office, board of Education, Sylvan Retreat, County Home and Infirmary, the county roads department, clerk of Circuit Court, County Health Department and County Welfare Board.

Union Seniority Arrangements Unacceptable To Kelly Officials

Officials of Kelly-Springfield Tire Company announced yesterday they cannot accept a vote of Local 26, United Rubber Workers, Saturday night in overruling seniority arrangements in the production division.

The majority of the 150 union members present at the meeting voted to overrule the interpretation made by the local's executive board and Acting President Ralph C. Beard concerning the shutdown of the white sidewall department.

This department, with 14 employes, has had production stopped by a government order. The company, according to F. T. Bell, personnel manager, regards this stoppage as an elimination of a department.

Beard and the executive board met with the firm's officials and agreed that they would go along with the union contract on seniority.

The clause affecting this stoppage reads: "When a rubber division production department is eliminated, employes affected there have seniority rights throughout the production division."

Furlough notices have been posted in Departments 51-E and 63, of the production division, and the 14 white sidewall employes are being transferred there, Bell said.

"We cannot accept this union action on the matter which has already been decided by the company an agreed to by Beard and the executive board," Bell commented.

"Kelly solely regards the shutdown of Department 51-H (white sidewall) as an elimination," he added.

The company was notified by letter Monday of the union's Saturday action, but Beard, vice president who is acting president during the illness of R. C. Burkhart, said yesterday he has not received Kelly's reply.

The membership of the union can submit the matter to grievance action before an umpire, Bell said. Union officials did not indicate what future action would be taken.

Bell also announced that several furloughs are being posted throughout the plant as it reverts to a five-day schedule.

The company had been working six days a week until rubber supplies were restricted by the government.

Among other routine reports were the Health Department which said 21 communicable diseases were noted; 12 clinics held; 340 visits conducted. Vital statistics included 156 births and 45 deaths.

Tax collections reported by Collector George E. Davis totaled $63,142.16.

"How I Relieve Distress of Monthly Female Complaints and nervous feelings several days before... with Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—truly 'the woman's friend'"

"Several days just before my period I'd feel so nervous, irritable, so restless, easily upset at the slightest thing—due to female functional monthly disturbances, I asked my druggist for something to take, and he told me Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now I get simply amazing relief from this distress. Pinkham's Compound also relieves monthly headache, backache and those miserable 'bearing-down' pains—due to this cause. Taken regularly—it helps build up resistance against such distress.

"What also impressed me about Lydia Pinkham's Compound is that it's made strictly from nature's roots and herbs (plus Vitamin B1). There are no harmful drugs in it. This is really a great comfort. I wish you girls troubled this way would give this great medicine a fair trial."

P. S. Pinkham's Compound tastes swell in a little fruit juice or just plain water. Or you may prefer Lydia Pinkham's TABLETS with added iron—pleasant to take and easy to carry in your purse.

Didwick Freed After Hearing

A B. and O. worker was acquitted Monday in Westernport on assault and battery charges preferred by his wife, who admitted stabbing him after a quarrel Saturday.

The defendant, Stanley Didwick, of McCoole, was released after a hearing before Magistrate John Laughlin.

State Police said Mrs. Mildred Didwick obtained a warrant for her husband's arrest following a dispute in which she stabbed him in the shoulder with a hunting knife. Reasons for the altercation were not revealed.

Trooper Milton G. Hart, who investigated, said the stabbing was reported by an unidentified neighbor. Didwick received medical attention for the wound, but he did not require hospitalization.

No charges were filed against Mrs. Didwick, the trooper stated.

The argument and stabbing occurred at night, he said, adding the woman later swore out the warrant in Westernport against her husband.

Three Negroes are being held in Mineral County Jail, Keyser, W. Va., for investigation, in connection with the theft of a car Monday night in Keyser. The men are Charles Washington, 32; Ward Hamilton, 36, and Gene Rolls, 42.

Authorities yesterday said the car stolen was a 1940 sedan owned by Pvt. James Howard, Jr., of Rock Street, Westernport. Pvt. 80 Attend Adult Education Class At Potomac

Electricity First Session To Start

KEYSER, W. Va.—Adult education classes opened at Potomac State School Monday evening with 80 registrations for the night class work.

Nine classes were formed as a result of requests made by the original applicants. The majority of the class work will be conducted in the administration building on the campus.

The first classes were conducted last night with elementary electricity, public speaking and elementary typing being the first to open.

Others interested in subjects selected for the term, may enroll and continue with the classes that are scheduled to hold first classes later in the week. Classes will be conducted Mondays through Fridays until the term ends.

Several applicants were interested in a chemistry class, but there were not enough to form a class at the meeting Monday. However, if more applications for chemistry are received, it is likely that a class in that subject can be arranged.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 6 (INS)—Wonder what all the smart boys, who think only sex-y actors pay off at the box office, thought when 12,000,000 teen-age girls of the YWCA voted George Montgomery their "favorite star?"

Whether his pictures play the plush movie palaces or not, that's a ready-made audience which can't be laughed off. And he brought these kids into camp because he makes only good, clean, wholesome pictures.

George's next independent will be "The Red Blizzard," a magazine story in which he'll play a half-breed Sioux Indian. Because more and more he wants to keep control over what goes into his films, he will not only star in and produce the picture—he's also the assistant director.

• — • — •

"Mutiny On The Bounty," one of the all-time big money-makers, will have a first cousin in "Rum Rebellion." Carey Wilson, who's getting the further adventures of Captain Bligh ready, says "Rum Rebellion" is not a sequel to "Mutiny" in any sense of the word.

I don't believe that anyone has had more people impersonate him than Charles Laughton as Captain Bligh in "Mutiny," unless it's Charles Boyer and his "come with me to the Casbah." These are two characters that will live as long as there are motion pictures—and imitators.

Greer Garson tells me that instead of Buddy Fogelson retiring, he is spending 15 hours a day in the Midland oil fields working hard.

"He feels fine now, and I am joining him in Dallas just as soon as they tell me I am no longer needed at M-G-M.

Making 'The Law and Lady Loverly' was a very pleasant experience," Greer told me. "We brought the picture in seven and a half days ahead of schedule. Such a contrast to the four months I spent on 'The Miniver Story' in England. If I can make pictures that fast I can still spend time with Buddy, and I must say I do like acting."

Chatter in Hollywood:

I am sorry, indeed, that there was no reconciliation for the Jeff Chandlers. He took her home from a party but they couldn't settle their difficulties. Last night Mrs. Chandler was with Johnny Grant, at the Saddle and Sirloin.

Some of Jeff's friends now say that there are two sides to every story, and that one reason for the break up was that Mrs. Chandler wanted a film career.

Well, all I can say is that after the girls see him in "Bird Of Paradise," he's going to be the hottest actor in America—and I mean hot!

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Myrna Loy has set the second week in April for her marriage to Howland Sargeant. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will be among the guests.

The blonde beauty Andy McIntyre took to Ciro's was not Marilyn Maxwell, his ex, although they look alike. She is Norma Everhardt, who was once escorted here and there by George Raft.

Zachary Scott and Peggy Morrow Hayward, still thataway, were at a table for two. Peggy wore a chapeau bedecked with birds of paradise.

Marlene Dietrich, looking like a debutante, with Michael Wilding and Jean Simmons and Stewart Granger. Jean was celebrating her new contract at RKO, which keeps her right in Hollywood.

Phil Terry, once married to Joan Crawford, and away from acting for seven years, auditioned at the west seven years, auditioned at the Philharmonic last week for the Philharmonic last week for the west coast "Guys And Dolls." Phil owns a hotel around here and has been very much out of circulation.

Bob Hope took time off to act as best man at Jennifer Holt's (Jack's daughter) wedding to Hugh David, advertising executive. They were married in Colorado Springs.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Instrument Detects Heart Disease Miniature Earthquake-Recording

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A miniature earthquake-recording instrument has been developed by government experts to detect heart disease.

The instrument is strapped across a patient's shins and is so sensitive it records the tiny vibrations caused in the body by each beat of the heart.

The principle is the same as that used in the seismograph, that records earth movements and detects quakes.

The instrument is called a "ballistocardiograph." Such an instrument has been in limited use in medmical diagnosis, an announcement said, but a government heart specialist and electronic experts have added improvements.

Describing these today, the Civil Aeronautics Administration said addition of electronic devices will make the ballistocardiograph practical for wider use and bring its price down so more doctors can afford to own one.

The development work was done by Dr. J. E. Smith of the Civil Aeronautics Administration and electronic experts.

Dr. Smith said tests now are being made on a group of people 40 to 49 years of age. He predicted one in five will be found to have some indications of heart disease, although other forms of diagnosis did not disclose them.

The new device is attached to an electrocardiograph, used for many years to detect heart difficulties.

Seven "Jail Widows" Woo Burma's Minister As Security Substitute

By DOUGLAS LACKERSTEEN

RANGOON—(AP) — Seven Karen women want Prime Minister Thekin Nu to marry them as a guarantee against poverty, hunger and loneliness.

These women have husbands, but their spouses have been detained in jails throughout the country since 1949 under emergency regulations.

The women banded themselves into a "distressed wives legion" and declared themselves open to any reasonable proposition.

The "legionnaires" held a press conference to declare Thakin Nu should marry them, since he deprived them of their husbands.

They explained an ancient Karen tribal law taught not only an eye for an eye, but a husband for a husband.

They told newsmen several hundred Karen women whose menfolk were jailed by the government at the outbreak of government-Karen hostilities early in 1949 were in "desperate straits."

The women said the government had seized their property and frozen their bank accounts, reducing most to beggery.

Several younger women, they said, had committed suicide through sheer desperation.

All the women were the wives of onetime prosperous Karen businessmen.

They said Thakin Nu had pardoned Communists and other rebels when he proclaimed "95 per cent peace" in the land, refused to free their husbands "merely because they were Karens."

When the Karen rebellion began in January, 1949, the Burmese government rounded up Karens throughout the country.

Hundreds, considered loyal, were relieved of army and civilian appointments and housed in rest camps for "their own protection." Those in government employ were retained on the payroll but were paid at half rates.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The Amateur Turns Pro

THE MOTTO at the base of the Statue of Liberty would make a very apt motto for television at its present state of development. "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses . . . the wretched refuse of your teeming shore." A good many tired (though hardly poor) folk from the movies, the theater and radio have crowded into TV and are cluttering up the joint with ancient routines designed specifically for other media.

John Crosby

Matinee idols of 20 or 30 years ago—Neil Hamilton, Conrad Nagel, Buddy Rogers—are emceeing quiz shows or audience participation shows. The matinee idol comes from silent pictures, the program idea is borrowed from radio and the quiz questions are lifted from McGuffey's Reader. Almost everybody has got into the act now—Eddie Cantor, Edgar Bergen, Jimmy Durante, Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Burns & Allen. "Pretty soon," muttered one disgruntled network vice president, "These people will have to be brought on in wheelchairs."

George Rosen in "Variety" reports: "Television in the short span of 18 months has practically gone through what it took radio 25 years to exhaust . . . Material that had a life-long guarantee in vaude and other show biz media has been drained, leaving the TV cupboard threadbare . . . Everybody is asking "Where do we go from here?"

It might be instructive to turn back to radio for guidance. Television now is about at the same milepost as radio in 1929 and with almost the same type of big show. It was in that year that the Rudy Vallee show, a tremendous success from the beginning, was launched. The graybeards among you will remember that the Vallee show was a variety show which bore a startling resemblance to both the Milton Berle and the Ed Sullivan type television shows.

Vallee procured the best vaudeville acts, the best singers, the most noted actors, chatted with them a bit and then turned them loose to do their turns. This is pretty much what Mr. Berle (though he never quite lets go) and Mr. Sullivan do now. The comedian or singer or whatever was on his own on the Vallee show and he brought his own material with him from vaudeville, night club or the stage. The Jack Benny-type of intimate, imaginative, character comedy was not born until 1932 and didn't really flower until a good many years later. Do you know who first introduced Mr. Benny to a microphone? He was a guest on the radio program of our old friend Ed Sullivan.

Mr. Vallee, as a bigtime radio entertainer, disappeared long ago and the type of show he broadcast is not to be found anywhere on the radio. Radio went on to develop its own forms. Some of them were pretty bad but at least they were distinctive to radio and could be found no where else. Jerry Colonna, for example, telephoning Bob Hope: "Bob, can you start building a 48 story building from the 12th floor" —"No!"—"Boys, come down!" That's a radio joke. It couldn't be told in any other medium.

The fact is, that television has lost its original innocence which was once its most appealing quality. Just four years ago, television was amateur sport. No one could conceivably make any money at it so no one tried. Man could be as creative or esthetic or plain elfin as he liked. Chicago fell with delight on "Kukla, Fran & Ollie." New York put on "Macbeth" which is out of Shakespeare and "The Black Robe" which came out of the Bowery. Television couldn't afford Eddie Cantor so they settled for Dave Garroway.

As I say, television was amateur sport then and, just when it was getting to be a pretty good amateur, the darn thing turned pro. The TV broadcaster is now faced with the appalling prospect of earning money, lots of money and the dirty green stuff has paralyzed its initiative. Money is a terrible thing. And just as the performers were amateurs a few years back so was the audience. The set-owner was enchanted with the fact that he could see Milton Berle. Now he expects Berle not only to be visible but to tell good jokes, an impossible demand on Berle. He wants major league standards.

Well, back in 1929 radio was just beginning to get, as they say in the trade, big. It had its early amateurs like Stoopnagle and Budd, genuinely creative spirits, who were later overwhelmed by the big shows. Television, it seems to me, is about in radio's '29 to '31 phase. As an amateur it looked all-American. As a pro, it's still in the Three-I League know the extent to which they have unwittingly damaged Anglo-American relations and stimulated the isolationist sentiment—they are so preoccupied with getting our troops out of Korea and into Europe that they are unintentionally building up a logical argument for appeasement with Moscow over all issues in Europe, too.

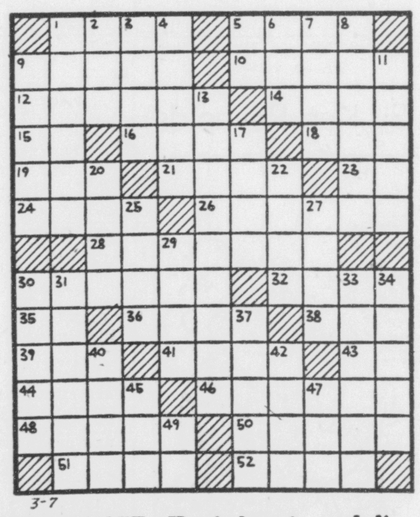
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

P A T N ' J J V L N I K V D J V S I U N V D R I P A T N ' J J S Q L R B R Q N ; S I U C D A J A J F B - B N L J O A J V D S V D O A J V V A K R T N — Z R I K.

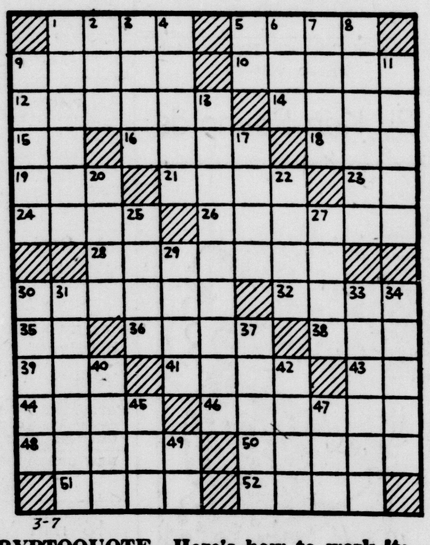
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

P A T N ' J J V L N I K V D J V S I U N V D R I P A T N ' J J S Q L R B R Q N ; S I U C D A J A J F B - B N L J O A J V D S V D O A J V V A K R T N — Z R I K.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: WHAT CONSCIENCE DICTATES TO BE DONE, OR WARNS ME NOT TO DO—POPE.

In Memoriam

In remembrance of our dear husband and father, George McMurdo, who died one year ago today, March 7, 1950.
When evening shadows fall and we are sitting all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing, If you only could be home,
Often and often our thoughts do wander,
To your grave so far away, where we laid you dearest father,
One year ago today.
Sadly missed by his Wife and Daughters

In loving memory of my dear husband, Frank W. Kane, who died March 7th, 1948.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
Loving and kind in all their ways,
Upright and just to the end of their days,
Sincere and true in hearts and minds,

In Memoriam

In remembrance of our dear husband and father, George McMurdo, who died one year ago today, March 7, 1950.
When evening shadows fall and we are sitting all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing, If you only could be home,
Often and often our thoughts do wander, To your grave so far away, where we laid you dearest father,
One year ago today.
Sadly missed by his Wife and Daughters

In loving memory of my dear husband, Frank W. Kane, who died March 7th, 1948.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
Loving and kind in all their ways,
Upright and just to the end of their days,
Sincere and true in hearts and minds,

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Are mentally healthy people "cheerful"?

Answer: As a rule, yes—most of the time. If you are willing to adjust yourself to life as it is and make the most of it, you will usually find ways of getting enough satisfaction out of it to keep you reasonably cheerful and contented. But this does not mean that being cheerful proves you to be healthy-minded. There is a false, "Pollyanna" kind of cheerfulness which is achieved by refusing to face the fact that you are inwardly unhappy and frustrated. And this may lead to potentially disastrous inner conflicts.

Must you "learn to like yourself"?

Answer: It would be more accurate to say that you must learn to recognize your right to like yourself, since you cannot help doing so with the more primitive part of your mind and your feeling that you ought not to only causes needless emotional conflict. But liking yourself does not mean thinking you are perfect—it means ceasing to attempt to judge or evaluate yourself (which you cannot do in any case because you cannot see yourself objectively) and concentrating on what you should do to get and give a maximum amount of happiness.

May psychoanalysis release suicidal trends?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Louis S. London, Washington psychiatrist. He describes a patient who, after partial analysis had liberated a "Jehovah Complex," had to be committed to a mental hospital and later killed himself with an overdose of sleeping tablets. Had the analysis been continued, the physician should have been able to eliminate or control the patient's repressed hostile urges by letting him "work them out" in his relations with the analyst. A person who understands the meaning of the impulse to kill himself usually will not do so.

Band Parents' Leader Named

FROSTBURG—Mrs. Robert Wilson, Frost Avenue, was elected president of the Beall High School Band Parents Association at a recent meeting held in the music room of the school.

Robert Wilson told of a similar organization that has been doing splendid work for the Fort Hill High School Band in Cumberland.

Other officers elected were Stanley Chidester, treasurer, and Mrs. Edgar Miller, membership chairman. The remaining officers will be named at the next meeting.

Membership cards will be obtained and made available to interested parents or patrons. Another meeting of the group will be held at the school Tuesday, March 13, 7:30 p. m.

Registration Planned

BARTON—The spring registration of beginning children will be held in the first grade room of Barton School. It is important that all children whose sixth birthday falls on or before Dec. 31, 1951, be enrolled for the September first grade class. The birth certificate for the child should also be presented on registration day. Definite date will be announced later.

priority on new troops from the United States.

However, after the Russians seized a group of small islands off the northeast coast of Japan, the Joint Chiefs hastily reconsidered. These islands constitute the Habomai group, which Russia apparently will claim as part of the Kurile chain.

Helping Small BMusiness

Veteran Washington observers would be a lot happier about the recently hurly-burly over helping small business if more was being done and less said about it. Here is a typical example involving one of our scarest materials, aluminum, needed for aircraft and other defense equipment.

The National Production Authority has drastically restricted the manufacture of aluminum clothespins, coasters, toys, furniture and other things produced chiefly by little business firms. No patriotic American—including small business fabricators, who must either fold up or use a substitute material—will argue with this order.

Defense uses of aluminum have priority over toys and clothespins.

However, the NPA so far has ordered only moderate restrictions on the manufacture of aluminum pots and pans, produced chiefly by the Wearever Company, a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America, though millions of pounds of aluminum are used yearly for kitchen utensils.

The NPA has also banned the use of aluminum roofing and siding in homes in which little business firms specialize. However, no such restrictions affects industrial siding and corrugated roofing for barns and factories, produced chiefly by the big Reynolds and Kaiser companies.

Washington Pipeline

The Glenn Martin Company will mass-produce the amazing new British jet bomber, the Canberra. Put out by the English Electric Co., the Canberra is the first plane designed by that company since 1918. Twelve a month are now being produced in England. Martin will turn out 12 a week within a short time . . . Ike Eisenhower's biggest beef is that only a fifth of our troops are used for combat, while the Soviet percentage is 75 per cent . . . Anna Rosenberg, the Assistant Secretary of Defense, is the star attraction at the Pentagon and is trotted out for brief speeches at all big-time gatherings . . . One of the colorful veterans of Congress, Rep. Robert "Muley" Doughton of North Carolina, looked over the lineup against reciprocal trade agreements on the House floor and whispered in a voice that carried to the galleries: "The Republicans got enough votes today to repeal the 10th Commandment."

Scattered Strength Fails To Bring Market Advance

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP) — A lot of scattered strength in the stock market failed to bring about a general advance today.

The leadership in many cases was good, but the market as a whole failed to follow through decisively.

As a result prices closed on the up side by a few cents to as much as $2 a share while those on the losing side posted losses of a few cents to a little more than a dollar a share.

Packard closed up ⅞ at 6¼, a new high for 1950-51. It was the day's most active issue with 99,600 shares changing hands.

General Motors, the fourth most active issue with 23,900 shares traded, closed up ½ at 51.

Some issues most active and higher were National Power & Light up 2-16 at 15-16, Radio ⅝ at 19¾, American Airlines ⅞ at 15¼, Pepsi Cola ⅛ at 7⅝, and Missouri Pacific preferred (15th most active) 1¾ at 29.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 30 cents at $94.90 with the industrial component down 30 cents, rails 20 cents, and utilities off 40 cents.

There were 1,160 individual issues traded of which 317 advanced and 602 declined. There were 29 new highs and one new loy—Food Fair stores preferred.

The volume was of especial interest, shrinking to 1,490,000 shares, the lowest since Sept. 7.

Seaboard Air Line Railroad was up 2 at 56¾ after declaration of a $1 dividend.

After the market closed Cerro De Pasco declared a 25-cent cash dividend and a five per cent stock dividend, the first payments on common since May, 1949. The stock closed off ½ at 38.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BIDDING A 3-CARD SUIT

YOU WON'T often see a chance to bid a three-card suit and know that it is a sound try to play the hand in that declaration. It could be sound, of course, only if you could infer that your partner held enough cards of it to make it playable. That could be the fact in a number of unusual situations which develop from time to time. One of those is in sight when your opponents have bid and raised another suit and your partner then cue-bid their suit, indicating a probable blank in it and plenty of cards elsewhere.

	♠ K Q J 7 3 ♥ None ♦ Q J 10 ♣ A J 10 8 3
♠ 8 4 2 ♥ Q J 7 4 3 ♦ A 8 5 ♣ Q 6	N W E S	♠ A 5 ♥ A K 9 6 ♦ 9 6 4 3 2 ♣ K 9
	♠ 10 9 6 ♥ 10 8 5 2 ♦ K 7 ♣ 7 5 4 2

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	Pass	3 ♥	4 ♥
Dbl	?

What would you do in South's position. The brilliant player who sat there reflected on the information given by his partner's call. Clearly North had taken responsibility for the side's high-card strength, and clearly he was ready to stand sponsor for anything South did. But, as South pondered, he realized that North must be at least as well fixed for spades as for anything else, probably better. In fact, five spades were likely to be found in North's hand. If that was the case, three in his own would be enough for South, with the pair holding eight.

So South bid 4-Spades. West doubled that, and it required a certain amount of hold-steady nerves, combined with confidence in his partner, to keep South from running out to 5-Clubs. But he remained steadfast and passed.

The heart Q lead was ruffed by the spade 3 and the diamond Q led to the A. West led back the 5 to the diamond K. The club 2 was led to the A and the club J given up. Later the spade A won a trick for the defenders, but it was only their third.

Can you notice how things might have been complicated for South if West had led a second heart at trick three, to force a second ruff in the dummy? Just follow that through, if you want to see something interesting. This, however, is the story of what actually did happen, not what could have happened.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ 8 6 4 ♥ Q 9 ♦ 7 4 3 ♣ Q J 10 7 2
♠ Q J 10 5 ♥ 7 6 ♦ 10 8 ♣ 9 8 6 4 3	N W E S	♠ K 9 3 ♥ 5 3 2 ♦ K J 6 5 2 ♣ A K
	♠ A 7 2 ♥ A K J 10 8 4 ♦ A Q 9 ♣ 5

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

Can you outline any natural play of the cards which would make East's use of his heart 5 the vital factor in whether South makes 4-Hearts or fails?

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Are mentally healthy people "cheerful"?

Answer: As a rule, yes—most of the time. If you are willing to adjust yourself to life as it is and make the most of it, you will usually find ways of getting enough satisfaction out of it to keep you reasonably cheerful and contented. But this does not mean that being cheerful proves you to be healthy-minded. There is a false, "Pollyanna" kind of cheerfulness which is achieved by refusing to face the fact that you are inwardly unhappy and frustrated. And this may lead to potentially disastrous inner conflicts.

Must you "learn to like yourself"?

Answer: It would be more accurate to say that you must learn to recognize your right to like yourself, since you cannot help doing so with the more primitive part of your mind and your feeling that you ought not to only causes needless emotional conflict. But liking yourself does not mean thinking you are perfect—it means ceasing to attempt to judge or evaluate yourself (which you cannot do in any case because you cannot see yourself objectively) and concentrating on what you should do to get and give a maximum amount of happiness.

May psychoanalysis release suicidal trends?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Louis S. London, Washington psychiatrist. He describes a patient who, after partial analysis had liberated a "Jehovah Complex," had to be committed to a mental hospital and later killed himself with an overdose of sleeping tablets. Had the analysis been continued, the physician should have been able to eliminate or control the patient's repressed hostile urges by letting him "work them out" in his relations with the analyst. A person who understands the meaning of the impulse to kill himself usually will not do so.

Band Parents' Leader Named

FROSTBURG—Mrs. Robert Wilson, Frost Avenue, was elected president of the Beall High School Band Parents Association at a recent meeting held in the music room of the school.

Other officers elected were Stanley Chidester, treasurer, and Mrs. Edgar Miller, membership chairman. The remaining officers will be named at the next meeting.

Membership cards will be obtained and made available to interested parents or patrons. Another meeting of the group will be held at the school Tuesday, March 13, 7:30 p. m.

Registration Planned

BARTON—The spring registration of beginning children will be held in the first grade room of Barton School. It is important that all children whose sixth birthday falls on or before Dec. 31, 1951, be enrolled for the September first grade class. The Merry-Go-Round priority on new troops from the United States.

However, after the Russians seized a group of small islands off the northeast coast of Japan, the Joint Chiefs hastily reconsidered. These islands constitute the Habomai group, which Russia apparently will claim as part of the Kurile chain.

Helping Small BMusiness

Veteran Washington observers would be a lot happier about the recently hurly-burly over helping small business if more was being done and less said about it. Here is a typical example involving one of our scarest materials, aluminum, needed for aircraft and other defense equipment.

The National Production Authority has drastically restricted the manufacture of aluminum clothespins, coasters, toys, furniture and other things produced chiefly by little business firms. No patriotic American—including small business fabricators, who must either fold up or use a substitute material—will argue with this order.

Defense uses of aluminum have priority over toys and clothespins.

However, the NPA so far has ordered only moderate restrictions on the manufacture of aluminum pots and pans, produced chiefly by the Wearever Company, a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America, though millions of pounds of aluminum are used yearly for kitchen utensils.

The NPA has also banned the use of aluminum roofing and siding in homes in which little business firms specialize. However, no such restrictions affects industrial siding and corrugated roofing for barns and factories, produced chiefly by the big Reynolds and Kaiser companies.

Washington Pipeline

The Glenn Martin Company will mass-produce the amazing new British jet bomber, the Canberra. Put out by the English Electric Co., the Canberra is the first plane designed by that company since 1918. Twelve a month are now being produced in England. Martin will turn out 12 a week within a short time . . . Ike Eisenhower's biggest beef is that only a fifth of our troops are used for combat, while the Soviet percentage is 75 per cent . . . Anna Rosenberg, the Assistant Secretary of Defense, is the star attraction at the Pentagon and is trotted out for brief speeches at all big-time gatherings . . . One of the colorful veterans of Congress, Rep. Robert "Muley" Doughton of North Carolina, looked over the lineup against reciprocal trade agreements on the House floor and whispered in a voice that carried to the galleries: "The Republicans got enough votes today to repeal the 10th Commandment."

Scattered Strength Fails To Bring Market Advance

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP) — A lot of scattered strength in the stock market failed to bring about a general advance today.

The leadership in many cases was good, but the market as a whole failed to follow through decisively.

As a result prices closed on the up side by a few cents to as much as $2 a share while those on the losing side posted losses of a few cents to a little more than a dollar a share.

Packard closed up ⅞ at 6¼, a new high for 1950-51. It was the day's most active issue with 99,600 shares changing hands.

General Motors, the fourth most active issue with 23,900 shares traded, closed up ½ at 51.

Some issues most active and higher were National Power & Light up 2-16 at 15-16, Radio ⅝ at 19¾, American Airlines ⅞ at 15¼, Pepsi Cola ⅛ at 7⅝, and Missouri Pacific preferred (15th most active) 1¾ at 29.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BIDDING A 3-CARD SUIT

YOU WON'T often see a chance to bid a three-card suit and know that it is a sound try to play the hand in that declaration. It could be sound, of course, only if you could infer that your partner held enough cards of it to make it playable. That could be the fact in a number of unusual situations which develop from time to time. One of those is in sight when your opponents have bid and raised another suit and your partner then cue-bid their suit, indicating a probable blank in it and plenty of cards elsewhere.

What would you do in South's position. The brilliant player who sat there reflected on the information given by his partner's call. Clearly North had taken responsibility for the side's high-card strength, and clearly he was ready to stand sponsor for anything South did. But, as South pondered, he realized that North must be at least as well fixed for spades as for anything else, probably better. In fact, five spades were likely to be found in North's hand. If that was the case, three in his own would be enough for South, with the pair holding eight.

So South bid 4-Spades. West doubled that, and it required a certain amount of hold-steady nerves, combined with confidence in his partner, to keep South from running out to 5-Clubs. But he remained steadfast and passed.

The heart Q lead was ruffed by the spade 3 and the diamond Q led to the A. West led back the 5 to the diamond K. The club 2 was led to the A and the club J given up. Later the spade A won a trick for the defenders, but it was only their third.

Can you notice how things might have been complicated for South if West had led a second heart at trick three, to force a second ruff in the dummy? Just follow that through, if you want to see something interesting. This, however, is the story of what actually did happen, not what could have happened.

Senate Passes County School Board Measure

Kauffman Defends Reorganization Bill

The Senate yesterday passed with only one negative vote Senator Robert B. Kimble's bill to reorganize the Allegany County Board of Education.

Senators have approved the same suggestions twice in the past, only to have it fail in the House.

Senate Bill 249, introduced by the Senate minority leader, specifies that the Allegany County School Board shall be composed of five persons appointed by the governor.

Two of the school board members must be women and at least two members of the political party that polled the second highest number of votes in the most recent gubernatorial election.

Kauffman Testifies

Two department heads were at odds before the House Ways and Means Committee. Director I. Alvin Pasarew of the State Planning Commission favored a reorganization of his agency into three divisions. Two would handle research and planning, commerce and economic development. The other would provide information services, and in so doing absorb the present department of information.

John P. Trimmer, former newspaperman now director of the department at $6,000 a year, charged in a prepared statement that he had not been consulted about a bill seeking the transfer. Neither were some members of the planning commission, Trimmer contended.

The hearings was recessed before Trimmer spoke, but William S. Wilson, Jr., of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, attacked the bill.

Pasarew defended it, as did David Kaufman of Cumberland. Kaufman, chairman of Allegany County's Steering Committee on Economic Development, saw in the proposed commission a boon to industrial expansion. Western Maryland still has acute unemployment troubles, Kaufman said.

"Our bellies up there are not full enough to be detached and academic about this matter," he said.

Governor Signs Bill

Joint Resolution 5, introduced by Delegates See and Kelley, has been signed by Governor McKeldin.

It requests the Office of Defense Mobilization to establish defense industries in the City of Cumberland.

Pushes City Program

W. Earle Cobey was in Annapolis yesterday conferring with the Allegany County Delegation on the city's legislative program, most of which is still in the hands of the delegation.

Cobey is expected to remain there today in an effort to push the city sponsored bills through before the session ends this month.

Seek Finance Data

Senate Democrats called upon state fiscal officers yesterday to give them a down to earth report on Maryland finances—stripped of all frills—so that they may get a quick answer to the question:

Speed Long Distance Calls

Operators at the Cumberland exchange of the C. and P. Telephone Company are seen using the modern operator toll dial equipment to speed long distance telephone calls. Mrs. Evelyn Bazell, 229 Union Street, (right) is seen punching one of the keys which route the call to its destination. Miss Winona Iden, RFD 5, at her left, is operating another place on the 19 position long distance board. The complex mechanism works similarly to a dial system but is much faster.

Safety Patrol Will Visit Washington

Annual Trip Is Set For May 12

Nearly 600 Allegany county Safety Patrol members will make their annual visit to Washington May 12 under the sponsorship of the Western Maryland Motor Club.

Arrangements for the affair are in the hands of the safety committee of the Allegany County Council of Parents and Teachers and the Elementary School Principals' Association.

J. Walter Byer, president of the Western Maryland AAA, said it has been nine years since an accident has occurred in any school safety zone where a patrolman has been on duty in the county, and the trip to Washington is a reward to the members for their outstanding work.

The trip for the local students is financed by donations from the PTA, fraternal organizations, Mayor and Council of Cumberland, Allegany County Commissioners and other groups.

The large group will make the trip by train. Byers said there will be one leader for every 25 children.

Lunch will be provided the group on the train. The patrolmen will dress in uniform, and the delegation will return home the same evening.

Last year 512 patrolmen attended the gathering in Washington with Allegany High's band leading the group in the parade. The Fort Hill High band is expected to go this year.

Fire Chiefs Will Plan Aid Program

The Allegany-Garrett Volunteer Fire Chiefs Association will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Corriganville Fire Hall.

The fire chiefs will discuss plans for mutual aid in protecting area communities and industrial plants from fire hazards.

Tentative plans have already been worked out, at conferences with Assistant Fire Chief R. Paul Reid, for fire protection of areas which might be prime targets during an atomic war.

Seek Dumping Warrant

Health Department officials reported yesterday they will seek warrants today against two trucks reported dumping refuse on the Country Club Road. J. B. Dowling, state sanitarian, said the alleged violations occurred Monday.

New Equipment Speeds Long Distance Calls

Push Buttons Used To Activate Circuits

Operator toll dial switching equipment installed several months ago in the Cumberland Exchange of the C. and P. Telephone Company is improving the speed and accuracy of long distance calls to and from this city.

Richard E. Harman, manager, said the equipment is becoming increasingly useful as additional metropolitan areas are placed on the automatic circuits.

The key pulsing equipment is similar in operation to a dial system but is much faster, since the dialing operation is replaced by push buttons.

The operator simply plugs into the desired metropolitan circuit and then punches out upon a set of 10 buttons the code number which actuates the mechanism.

In calls going to or through New York or Philadelphia, the operator here is able to complete the call directly to the distant telephone in a matter of seconds.

Harman said the use of such equipment has been a big factor in speeding long distance calls. In 1920, he said, an average of 14 minutes was required to complete an out-of-town call. When the new equipment was installed last August the average was down to one and one-half minutes.

The equipment is now used on some 1,500,000 calls a day, about one-third of the calls handled by the Bell System's long distance operators.

The Cumberland exchange long distance board has 14 positions for outgoing long distance calls and five for incoming messages.

For nearby communities which have dial systems, the incoming calls are completed automatically.

Ultimately, it will be possible for telephone users to dial anyone anywhere in the United States, or perhaps in the world, Harman said.

In some cities, it is now possible for customers to dial many of their own long distance calls.

A new automatic accounting system automatically punches a record of the call into a tape which translates the data into billing information so the customer will be charged for the call.

Soldier Is Held

City Police picked up Pvt. Richard E. Redman, 512 Hill Street, Monday and held him for Army authorities. Military Police were notified to pick up the soldier.

Many Kinfolk Named In Lengthy Will

Nieces, Nephews Among Recipients

A lengthy nine-page will in which Frank J. Bealky, 82, of 8 Massachusetts Avenue, left real estate to three nephews, a niece and a grand nephew and cash bequests totaling $5,100 to other nieces and nephews was admitted to probate yesterday in Orphans Court.

Bealky, a native of Hamburg, Germany, came to Cumberland 77 years ago. He died last Wednesday. A Baltimore and Ohio Railroad car inspector for 25 years, he later was employed by a steel company in Pittsburgh, Pa., and in more recent years operated service stations on Oldtown Road and Maryland Avenue. He was active in the development of the Oldtown Road-Mapleside area.

Wilbur V. Wilson, 320 Schley Street, Bealky's friend and attorney, was named executor of the estate and trustee of property remaining after the various bequests were made.

Trust Fund For Widow

His widow, Mrs. Sadie Nickel Bealky, was bequeathed all household goods and furniture in fee simple and a life estate in property at 10 Massachusetts Avenue. The will also provided that she be paid $50 per month from the trust.

Recipients of portions of their uncle's real estate were Joseph F. Andrews, nephew, service station and other buildings on or near Oldtown Road; Mrs. Mary T. Dressman, niece, property at 8 Massachusetts Avenue; Bernard Bealky, Jr., nephew, property at 39 New Hampshire Avenue; Robert Bealky, nephew, property at 41 New Hampshire Avenue; Frank L. Dressman, grand-nephew, Lot No. 206 in Mapleside Addition.

A $1,000 cash bequest was made to Bernard Andrews, a nephew. Six $500 bequests were accorded to George L. Bealky, nephew; Raymond R. Valentine, Sr., surviving husband of his niece, Mary E. Bealky Valentine; Anna M. Bealky, niece; Charles H. Kabosky, nephew; Mrs. Virginia Payne, grand-niece, and Francis Sprigg, Jr., grand-nephew.

Bequest To Church

In another provision of the will a $1,000 United States Savings Bond was left to St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church for masses for himself and his first wife, Mary A. Bealky. The children of his deceased brother, Bernard Bealky, Sr., were left Lot No. 7 in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Upon Bealky's widow's death, all of the trust estate provided in the will shall be sold and converted into cash. This cash will be divided equally among seven nephews and one niece. They are John Andrews, Frank Andrews, Clarence Andrews, Bernard Andrews, Robert Bealky, Bernard Bealky, Jr., George Lewis Bealky and Mary A. Clarke.

Rep. Beall Says No Decision Made On Army QM Lab Site

No definite decision has been made in selection of a site for the new Quartermaster Corps laboratory according to a letter received by Francis A. Kenney, chairman of the Allegany County Industrial Promotion Committee from Rep. J. Glenn Beall.

"I have been in constant contact with government officials relative to Cumberland being selected at the site for the new Quartermaster Corps Laboratory," Beall said in the letter. "Just this morning I contacted General Marshall's office, and as of today no definite decision has been made."

The letter from the Sixth District representative was in reply to a letter from Kenney to the effect that a rumor has been circulating in this area that the laboratory may be located in Philadelphia, Pa. Kenney pointed out to Beall that Philadelphia is rated as a "B" area which means that it is an area of high employment while Cumberland is rated as a "E" area which is an area of exceptionally low employment.

"If this rumor is true," Kenney said, "it appears that the federal government is attempting to locate the project in an area where it will be difficult, or even impossible, to find the necessary personnel to staff the facility."

Congressman Beall indicated he understands the desirability of having the laboratory located here and promised to do everything possible to get it here.

Complaints Will Be Investigated By Liquor Board

Frostburg Reports Under Advisement

The Allegany County Liquor Control Board announced yesterday it will hold questions concerning rumored violations by two Frostburg license-holding establishments under advisement until a full and official investigation is made.

The board yesterday asked John C. Davis, license holder at the Camellia Room, and Harry Frost, president and one of the licensees at the Century Club, to testify in connection with complaints listed in two anonymous letters received by the board.

Walter C. Capper, chairman, reported following the hearing, that the board found no truth in the charges listed in the unsigned letters.

He added that it is the duty of the board to investigate any complaints it receives.

The board also has a duty, he emphasized, to stand by the license holder and publicly clear him of charges in the event the evidence shows he is not guilty.

The letters charged that on February 18, several persons were seen leaving the Camellia Room at 5:30 a. m. where the "rumor" has been that there had been a "brawl."

Denies Brawl Rumor

Davis said he was in Florida on that date, but his investigation disclosed that his bartender, Ray Kimmel, of Cumberland, who had been left in charge, had been in the place between 5:45 a. m. and 5:30 a. m.

Kimmel, under oath, told the board that he had been to a private party in Frostburg after he closed the cocktail lounge at 1 a. m.

He said he returned from the party with two companions shortly before 5 to check the register and get the cash receipts to take to his home in Cumberland.

Kimmel stated that there had not been any brawl. They added that the front window curtains had been open and the main light on during the time Kimmel was attending to the financial matter.

Men Ordered Out

There was also reference made to a "high source" being interested in operation at the Camellia Room. The "high source" was not identified.

In a reference to the rumored ownership of the Camellia Room, Davis said he could submit evidence that he and his wife, Mrs. Mary Davis, were the sole owners.

Frost admitted that Saturday, February 17, near midnight, a scrap developed between two men in the Century Club.

He said he ordered the men out of the club and broke up the fight that continued on the stair landing outside the club.

Frost informed the board the club had never been cited for violations or for being a "rough place".

R. G. LETOURNEAU

Industrialist To Speak To Church Group

R. G. LeTourneau Here Next Sunday

R. G. LeTourneau, pioneer industrialist and machine builder, will address a mass meeting Sunday, March 11 at 2:30 p. m. at Centre Street Methodist Church here.

The meeting will be presided over by Rev. Arthur Scrogrum, minister of the Living Stone Church of the Brethren and president of the Cumberland Ministerial Association which is sponsoring the appearance of the well-known manufacturer.

Robert Gilmour LeTourneau pioneered the mammoth earth-moving machines used in huge construction jobs such as dams, airports, army cantonments, highways, and large buildings.

He was abong the first to use pneumatic tires on these huge machines overcoming heavy and costly obstacles encountered with his bulldozers, scrapers, angledozers, tractors, Tournacranes and other large earth movers.

LeTourneau has given much of his personal fortune to the advancement of Christian work and spends much of his time traveling from city to city preaching the Gospel. He and his wife have established the LeTourneau Foundation "to teach, promulgate and disseminate the Gospel of Jesus Christ throughout the world."

The genial businessman is deeply sincere in his role as "God's Businessman," and relates his story of the practical application of Christian principles to his business which has helped him raise to his present position. His platform is "speed, the welding torch, and the Bible."

Speaking to audiences of more than two million people in his tours LeTourneau told them "There are two things I like to do. One is to design machinery and the other is to tell people about the power of the Gospel and see it work in their lives."

Labor Group To Take Stand On Home Rule Bill

The Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference will take a definite stand on constitutional home rule for Cumberland at its meeting March 15 at 7:30 p. m. in Allegany Trades Council Hall.

A delegation from the Unity Conference conferred with the Mayor and Council Monday night on the home rule plan.

The delegates, C. E. Stutzman Charles E. Bramble, Paul L. Burley, Edwin C. Hoffman and Kenneth Carbaugh, were instructed to make a study of the legislation at a recent meeting of the labor group.

Burley said the conference at that time discussed a motion to endorse the home rule bill but decided to defer definite action pending a conference with city officials.

Details of the legislation were presented by Mayor Thomas S. Post, Commissioner George H. Tedrick and City Attorney W. Earle Cobey.

Burley said the committee is expected to go along with the city on the plan which would give Cumberland the right to control its own destiny.

Whitehair Again Nominated For VFW Commander

Everstine Bows Out As Quartermaster

Raymond F. Whitehair was nominated without opposition for a second one-year term as commander of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, but Roy F. Everstine, post quartermaster since 1940, declined to seek reelection, last night.

When Everstine's name was placed in nomination he withdrew, nominating Paul W. Moore as his successor. Everstine said he thought a World War II veteran should have the important quartermaster job.

Others nominated last night were George Speis, senior vice-commander; William Raymond, junior vice-commander; Thomas K. Whalley, judge-advocate; Russell Reynolds, chaplain; Dr. Richard J. Williams, surgeon, and Edward C. Kilroy, three-year term as trustee.

The election will be held at the Post Home, 205 Union Street, Tuesday, March 20.

In another action last night the post voted unanimously to support Frank Webb for senior vice-commander of the State VFW. He now is junior vice-commander.

Plans also were advanced to extend the circulation of the post news letter so that all Cumberland area men in the service can receive copies.

Trooper Gilmore Resigns From State Police

Was Stationed At Westernport

Trooper Timothy J. Gilmore, 29, resigned from Maryland State Police force effective yesterday. The trooper, a native of Crellin, had been stationed in Westernport for the past three years.

Gilmore, a veteran of World War II, joined the State Police in 1946, serving two years in Bel Air before being assigned to the LaVale barracks here. He then was reassigned from LaVale to Westernport.

Gilmore spent two years as a tank driver with the Army in Europe. He was discharged in 1944 with the rating of Corporal. A graduate of Oakland High School in 1939 Gilmore went to work at the Kelly tire plant after his army discharge.

After working two years with Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Gilmore joined the Maryland State Police and spent five years in the service before his resignation yesterday.

Members of the LaVale barracks said Gilmore gave no reason for his resignation and stated no definite plans for the future. His letter of resignation was turned over to Lt. W. E. O'Hara, commander of the LaVale sub-station.

Hill Charged With Felonious Assault

Tucker County Grand Jury returned five indictments yesterday at Parsons, W. Va., in a four and a half hour session. Three were felonies and two misdemeanors.

Two indictments were returned against Haven Hill, Thomas, W. Va., after a shooting fracas last month. Hill allegedly fired three shots from a .38 calibre revolver at William Cousins, wounding the latter in the left hand. Hill was charged with felonious assault and carrying firearms. Authorities said a long-standing feud existed between the two men.

A joint indictment was returned against Hershell Blake Rowan, Clyde Crossland and Sammy Nelson for theft of a 52 gallon barrel of gasoline, the property of Edward Miller, Jr., of Davis, W. Va. The theft allegedly occurred several weeks ago.

The third felony charge was lodged against Delbert Turner, Hendricks, for incest.

The fifth indictment, a misdemeanor, was placed on Hoye White, Thomas, W. Va., for brandishing a weapon. White is charged with attacking James Nazelrode with an axe last month after an argument.

Trial docket will be set today at 10 o'clock.

Senate Passes County School Board Measure

Kauffman Defends Reorganization Bill

The Senate yesterday passed with only one negative vote Senator Robert B. Kimble's bill to reorganize the Allegany County Board of Education.

Senators have approved the same suggestions twice in the past, only to have it fail in the House.

Senate Bill 249, introduced by the Senate minority leader, specifies that the Allegany County School Board shall be composed of five persons appointed by the governor.

Two of the school board members must be women and at least two members of the political party that polled the second highest number of votes in the most recent gubernatorial election.

Kauffman Testifies

Two department heads were at odds before the House Ways and Means Committee. Director I. Alvin Pasarew of the State Planning Commission favored a reorganization of his agency into three divisions. Two would handle research and planning, commerce and economic development. The other would provide information services, and in so doing absorb the present department of information.

John P. Trimmer, former newspaperman now director of the department at $6,000 a year, charged in a prepared statement that he had not been consulted about a bill seeking the transfer. Neither were some members of the planning commission, Trimmer contended.

The hearings was recessed before Trimmer spoke, but William S. Wilson, Jr., of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, attacked the bill.

Pasarew defended it, as did David Kaufman of Cumberland. Kaufman, chairman of Allegany County's Steering Committee on Economic Development, saw in the proposed commission a boon to industrial expansion. Western Maryland still has acute unemployment troubles, Kaufman said.

"Our bellies up there are not full enough to be detached and academic about this matter," he said.

Governor Signs Bill

Joint Resolution 5, introduced by Delegates See and Kelley, has been signed by Governor McKeldin.

It requests the Office of Defense Mobilization to establish defense industries in the City of Cumberland.

Pushes City Program

W. Earle Cobey was in Annapolis yesterday conferring with the Allegany County Delegation on the city's legislative program, most of which is still in the hands of the delegation.

Cobey is expected to remain there today in an effort to push the city sponsored bills through before the session ends this month.

Seek Finance Data

Senate Democrats called upon state fiscal officers yesterday to give them a down to earth report on Maryland finances—stripped of all frills—so that they may get a quick answer to the question:

Speed Long Distance Calls

Operators at the Cumberland exchange of the C. and P. Telephone Company are seen using the modern operator toll dial equipment to speed long distance telephone calls. Mrs. Evelyn Bazell, 229 Union Street, (right) is seen punching one of the keys which route the call to its destination. Miss Winona Iden, RFD 5, at her left, is operating another place on the 19 position long distance board. The complex mechanism works similarly to a dial system but is much faster.

Safety Patrol Will Visit Washington

Annual Trip Is Set For May 12

Nearly 600 Allegany county Safety Patrol members will make their annual visit to Washington May 12 under the sponsorship of the Western Maryland Motor Club.

Arrangements for the affair are in the hands of the safety committee of the Allegany County Council of Parents and Teachers and the Elementary School Principals' Association.

J. Walter Byer, president of the Western Maryland AAA, said it has been nine years since an accident has occurred in any school safety zone where a patrolman has been on duty in the county, and the trip to Washington is a reward to the members for their outstanding work.

The trip for the local students is financed by donations from the PTA, fraternal organizations, Mayor and Council of Cumberland, Allegany County Commissioners and other groups.

The large group will make the trip by train. Byers said there will be one leader for every 25 children.

Lunch will be provided the group on the train. The patrolmen will dress in uniform, and the delegation will return home the same evening.

Last year 512 patrolmen attended the gathering in Washington with Allegany High's band leading the group in the parade. The Fort Hill High band is expected to go this year.

Fire Chiefs Will Plan Aid Program

The Allegany-Garrett Volunteer Fire Chiefs Association will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Corriganville Fire Hall.

The fire chiefs will discuss plans for mutual aid in protecting area communities and industrial plants from fire hazards.

Tentative plans have already been worked out, at conferences with Assistant Fire Chief R. Paul Reid, for fire protection of areas which might be prime targets during an atomic war.

Seek Dumping Warrant

Health Department officials reported yesterday they will seek warrants today against two trucks reported dumping refuse on the Country Club Road. J. B. Dowling, state sanitarian, said the alleged violations occurred Monday.

New Equipment Speeds Long Distance Calls

Push Buttons Used To Activate Circuits

Operator toll dial switching equipment installed several months ago in the Cumberland Exchange of the C. and P. Telephone Company is improving the speed and accuracy of long distance calls to and from this city.

Richard E. Harman, manager, said the equipment is becoming increasingly useful as additional metropolitan areas are placed on the automatic circuits.

The key pulsing equipment is similar in operation to a dial system but is much faster, since the dialing operation is replaced by push buttons.

The operator simply plugs into the desired metropolitan circuit and then punches out upon a set of 10 buttons the code number which actuates the mechanism.

In calls going to or through New York or Philadelphia, the operator here is able to complete the call directly to the distant telephone in a matter of seconds.

Harman said the use of such equipment has been a big factor in speeding long distance calls. In 1920, he said, an average of 14 minutes was required to complete an out-of-town call. When the new equipment was installed last August the average was down to one and one-half minutes.

The equipment is now used on some 1,500,000 calls a day, about one-third of the calls handled by the Bell System's long distance operators.

The Cumberland exchange long distance board has 14 positions for outgoing long distance calls and five for incoming messages.

For nearby communities which have dial systems, the incoming calls are completed automatically.

Ultimately, it will be possible for telephone users to dial anyone anywhere in the United States, or perhaps in the world, Harman said.

In some cities, it is now possible for customers to dial many of their own long distance calls.

A new automatic accounting system automatically punches a record of the call into a tape which translates the data into billing information so the customer will be charged for the call.

Rep. Beall Says No Decision Made On Army QM Lab Site

No definite decision has been made in selection of a site for the new Quartermaster Corps laboratory according to a letter received by Francis A. Kenney, chairman of the Allegany County Industrial Promotion Committee from Rep. J. Glenn Beall.

"I have been in constant contact with government officials relative to Cumberland being selected at the site for the new Quartermaster Corps Laboratory," Beall said in the letter. "Just this morning I contacted General Marshall's office, and as of today no definite decision has been made."

The letter from the Sixth District representative was in reply to a letter from Kenney to the effect that a rumor has been circulating in this area that the laboratory may be located in Philadelphia, Pa. Kenney pointed out to Beall that Philadelphia is rated as a "B" area which means that it is an area of high employment while Cumberland is rated as a "E" area which is an area of exceptionally low employment.

"If this rumor is true," Kenney said, "it appears that the federal government is attempting to locate the project in an area where it will be difficult, or even impossible, to find the necessary personnel to staff the facility."

Congressman Beall indicated he understands the desirability of having the laboratory located here and promised to do everything possible to get it here.

Complaints Will Be Investigated By Liquor Board

Frostburg Reports Under Advisement

The Allegany County Liquor Control Board announced yesterday it will hold questions concerning rumored violations by two Frostburg license-holding establishments under advisement until a full and official investigation is made.

The board yesterday asked John C. Davis, license holder at the Camellia Room, and Harry Frost, president and one of the licensees at the Century Club, to testify in connection with complaints listed in two anonymous letters received by the board.

Walter C. Capper, chairman, reported following the hearing, that the board found no truth in the charges listed in the unsigned letters.

He added that it is the duty of the board to investigate any complaints it receives.

The board also has a duty, he emphasized, to stand by the license holder and publicly clear him of charges in the event the evidence shows he is not guilty.

The letters charged that on February 18, several persons were seen leaving the Camellia Room at 5:30 a. m. where the "rumor" has been that there had been a "brawl."

Denies Brawl Rumor

Davis said he was in Florida on that date, but his investigation disclosed that his bartender, Ray Kimmel, of Cumberland, who had been left in charge, had been in the place between 5:45 a. m. and 5:30 a. m.

Kimmel, under oath, told the board that he had been to a private party in Frostburg after he closed the cocktail lounge at 1 a. m.

He said he returned from the party with two companions shortly before 5 to check the register and get the cash receipts to take to his home in Cumberland.

Kimmel stated that there had not been any brawl. They added that the front window curtains had been open and the main light on during the time Kimmel was attending to the financial matter.

Men Ordered Out

There was also reference made to a "high source" being interested in operation at the Camellia Room. The "high source" was not identified.

In a reference to the rumored ownership of the Camellia Room, Davis said he could submit evidence that he and his wife, Mrs. Mary Davis, were the sole owners.

Frost admitted that Saturday, February 17, near midnight, a scrap developed between two men in the Century Club.

He said he ordered the men out of the club and broke up the fight that continued on the stair landing outside the club.

Frost informed the board the club had never been cited for violations or for being a "rough place".

R. G. LETOURNEAU

Industrialist To Speak To Church Group

R. G. LeTourneau Here Next Sunday

R. G. LeTourneau, pioneer industrialist and machine builder, will address a mass meeting Sunday, March 11 at 2:30 p. m. at Centre Street Methodist Church here.

The meeting will be presided over by Rev. Arthur Scrogrum, minister of the Living Stone Church of the Brethren and president of the Cumberland Ministerial Association which is sponsoring the appearance of the well-known manufacturer.

Robert Gilmour LeTourneau pioneered the mammoth earth-moving machines used in huge construction jobs such as dams, airports, army cantonments, highways, and large buildings.

He was abong the first to use pneumatic tires on these huge machines overcoming heavy and costly obstacles encountered with his bulldozers, scrapers, angledozers, tractors, Tournacranes and other large earth movers.

LeTourneau has given much of his personal fortune to the advancement of Christian work and spends much of his time traveling from city to city preaching the Gospel. He and his wife have established the LeTourneau Foundation "to teach, promulgate and disseminate the Gospel of Jesus Christ throughout the world."

The genial businessman is deeply sincere in his role as "God's Businessman," and relates his story of the practical application of Christian principles to his business which has helped him raise to his present position. His platform is "speed, the welding torch, and the Bible."

Speaking to audiences of more than two million people in his tours LeTourneau told them "There are two things I like to do. One is to design machinery and the other is to tell people about the power of the Gospel and see it work in their lives."

Labor Group To Take Stand On Home Rule Bill

The Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference will take a definite stand on constitutional home rule for Cumberland at its meeting March 15 at 7:30 p. m. in Allegany Trades Council Hall.

A delegation from the Unity Conference conferred with the Mayor and Council Monday night on the home rule plan.

The delegates, C. E. Stutzman Charles E. Bramble, Paul L. Burley, Edwin C. Hoffman and Kenneth Carbaugh, were instructed to make a study of the legislation at a recent meeting of the labor group.

Burley said the conference at that time discussed a motion to endorse the home rule bill but decided to defer definite action pending a conference with city officials.

Details of the legislation were presented by Mayor Thomas S. Post, Commissioner George H. Tedrick and City Attorney W. Earle Cobey.

Burley said the committee is expected to go along with the city on the plan which would give Cumberland the right to control its own destiny.

Whitehair Again Nominated For VFW Commander

Everstine Bows Out As Quartermaster

Raymond F. Whitehair was nominated without opposition for a second one-year term as commander of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, but Roy F. Everstine, post quartermaster since 1940, declined to seek reelection, last night.

When Everstine's name was placed in nomination he withdrew, nominating Paul W. Moore as his successor. Everstine said he thought a World War II veteran should have the important quartermaster job.

Others nominated last night were George Speis, senior vice-commander; William Raymond, junior vice-commander; Thomas K. Whalley, judge-advocate; Russell Reynolds, chaplain; Dr. Richard J. Williams, surgeon, and Edward C. Kilroy, three-year term as trustee.

The election will be held at the Post Home, 205 Union Street, Tuesday, March 20.

Plans also were advanced to extend the circulation of the post news letter so that all Cumberland area men in the service can receive copies.

Was Stationed At Westernport

Trooper Timothy J. Gilmore, 29, resigned from Maryland State Police force effective yesterday. The trooper, a native of Crellin, had been stationed in Westernport for the past three years.

Gilmore, a veteran of World War II, joined the State Police in 1946, serving two years in Bel Air before being assigned to the LaVale barracks here. He then was reassigned from LaVale to Westernport.

Gilmore spent two years as a tank driver with the Army in Europe. He was discharged in 1944 with the rating of Corporal. A graduate of Oakland High School in 1939 Gilmore went to work at the Kelly tire plant after his army discharge.

After working two years with Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Gilmore joined the Maryland State Police and spent five years in the service before his resignation yesterday.

Members of the LaVale barracks said Gilmore gave no reason for his resignation and stated no definite plans for the future. His letter of resignation was turned over to Lt. W. E. O'Hara, commander of the LaVale sub-station.

Tucker County Jury Returns 5 Indictments

Hill Charged With Felonious Assault

Tucker County Grand Jury returned five indictments yesterday at Parsons, W. Va., in a four and a half hour session. Three were felonies and two misdemeanors.

Two indictments were returned against Haven Hill, Thomas, W. Va., after a shooting fracas last month. Hill allegedly fired three shots from a .38 calibre revolver at William Cousins, wounding the latter in the left hand. Hill was charged with felonious assault and carrying firearms. Authorities said a long-standing feud existed between the two men.

A joint indictment was returned against Hershell Blake Rowan, Clyde Crossland and Sammy Nelson for theft of a 52 gallon barrel of gasoline, the property of Edward Miller, Jr., of Davis, W. Va. The theft allegedly occurred several weeks ago.

The third felony charge was lodged against Delbert Turner, Hendricks, for incest.

The fifth indictment, a misdemeanor, was placed on Hoye White, Thomas, W. Va., for brandishing a weapon. White is charged with attacking James Nazelrode with an axe last month after an argument.

Trial docket will be set today at 10 o'clock.

Senate Move To Clamp Ceiling On Armed Manpower Delays Progress On Draft-UMTS Bill

Agrees To Vote Today On Sen. Morse's Amendment For 3,500,000-Man Limit

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— Senators put on a bitter fight today over proposals to clamp a ceiling of 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 on the nation's armed manpower. They agreed finally to vote on the question tomorrow afternoon.

For a time there appeared a prospect that the Democratic and Republican leadership might get together on a compromise somewhere between those figures. Some of the head men hoped by that means to head off further talk on the issue which unexpectedly held up progress on the bill for 18-year-old draft and a system of universal military training.

The Senate finally recessed with an agreement to vote at 1:30 p. m. EST Wednesday on the amendment by Sen. Morse (R-Ore) for a 3,500,000-man limit on the combined strength of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marines. They have had no ceiling since the August flurry of defense legislation after the outbreak of war in Korea.

Enlistment Term Cut—Rejected

Morse first proposed a limit of 3,000,000, then went to 3,100,000 and finally 3,500,000, the figure President Truman uses in talk about plans.

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) then proposed 4,000,000. He withdrew that proposal when the voting agreement was reached, but said he will reoffer it separately later if Morse's amendment loses.

The subject of a manpower limit came up shortly after the Senate by a 77-14 vote had turned down a proposal by Morse to cut all the services down to the three-year enlistment term which is the Army's minimum for volunteers. Morse accused the Air Force, Navy and Marines of "stockpiling" manpower at the Army's expense by high pressuring youths to enlist for longer terms in order to avoid ground forces duty.

The debate ranged around the idea that all the other services require four years or more from volunteers but the Marine Corps said it is taking three-year enlistments.

Simultaneously with the Senate debate there were these related developments on the military manpower front:

Army Wants 60,000 In May

1. The Army called on Selective Service for 60,000 men in May, 20,000 less than it has been calling monthly since January. The May inductions will bring to 590,000 the number drafted for the Army since last year. The other services still get all their men by voluntary enlistment. Army officials said the reduced call-up represents no change of plans but was plotted weeks ago.

2. Selective Service advised draft boards that only students actually selected for Reserve Officers Training Corps programs are eligible for draft deferment on that account. Aides to Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said the bulletin was issued because many boards mistakenly believe a college student is automatically deferred by ROTC service.

Purchases Of Tin For U. S. Stockpile Are Suspended

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— The government announced today all new purchases of tin for the national stockpile will be suspended immediately.

Suspension of the purchases for the stockpile had been recommended by the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee until Britain and other non-Communist countries agreed to stop what the senators termed "gouging" of American taxpayers by tin mine owners and speculators.

Announcing the decision to stop new purchases, the General Services Administration said:

"The policy is expected to continue until the price of tin reaches a reasonable level."

Murray Defends Support Of RFC Loan For Hotel

Action Was Routine, Senator Contends

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— Sen. Murray (D-Mont.) defended today his support of a $1,000,000 RFC loan for a Florida hotel and challenged investigating senators to make public a complete list of congressional contracts with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Publication of "all phone calls, interviews and letters" between members of Congress and the RFC since its inception would show that his own action in the Florida case was routine, Murray contended.

Son Received Fee

A Senate Banking Subcommittee inquiring into alleged political influence on the lending policy of the RFC heard evidence yesterday that Murray went to bat for a loan for the Sorrento Hotel of Miami Beach at a time when his son, James Murray, was acting as attorney for the hotel in loan negotiations.

Murray said his son was a lawyer "conducting proper and ethical services for his clients." He added "I can see no reason why, because he is my son, I should treat him any differently than I would any other lawyer."

Hits Conduction Of Hearing

"When he called my attention to the problems he and his associates were encountering in connection with this matter," Murray went on, "and when investigation convinced me that his facts were correct, I volunteered to make exactly the same sort of representation to the RFC that I have made in many similar cases for other citizens."

Murray charged indignantly that yesterday's subcommittee hearing was conducted to leave the impression that the Sorrento loan was "improper or unusual."

La Prensa's Editor Puzzled By Charge

BUENOS AIRES, March 6 (AP) — Dr. Alberto Gainza Pas, editor and publisher of the government-closed La Prensa, said today he could not understand the federal police charge that he had violated the security of the state.

The charge was filed late last night, but more than 20 hours later there was no effort to take Gainza Paz before a federal judge for questioning.

LaPrensa has been closed down for 40 days, first by a news venders' union boycott and a sympathy strike of printers. Non-striking employes attempted to reopen the plant. A street battle outside the printing plant ensued when the pro-government union men tried to block them. One man was killed and a federal police judge closed the plant while he investigated.

More Stars Summoned

GIFTED BY SALESMAN—Actress Rosemary Williamson poses at New York after telling District Attorney Frank Hogan she received gifts from Sidney M. Levy, textile salesman arrested on charges of grand larceny of $40,000, which he told Hogan he spent on the showgirl. Truman Should "Clean House," Knowland Says

Irked By Criticism Of Probe Speeches

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP) — Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) demanded tonight that President Truman returns from his Florida vacation and "clean house." He said some officials are weakening "the moral fibre of the country."

Knowland made this demand in the Senate after Sen. McFarland of Arizona, the Democratic leader, chided Republicans for making what he called "political speeches" criticizing a Senate committee's investigation of the Maryland senatorial election last November.

McFarland asserted that the Republicans had interrupted Senate action on the important draft bill to inject politics into the debate.

Knowland Fires Back

Obviously angered, Knowland fired back the demand that Mr. Truman cut short his vacation at Key West, Fla., and return to Washington.

"With all of this testimony about mink coats in the White House, conditions in the RFC and the buying of jobs in Mississippi, the President of the United States should return from his Florida vacation and clean house where it is needed," Knowland shouted.

He alluded to testimony before a Senate Banking Subcommittee which involved a White House stenographer's mink coat, reputed efforts to influence RFC board members on loans, and an inquiry demanded by Mississippi senators into reports that federal jobs were peddled in their state.

Knowland said that he believes there are "more things striking at the moral fabric of America than the Maryland election."

Probe Tyding's Charges

A Senate Elections Subcommittee headed by Sen. Monroney (D-Okla) is inquiring into charges by former Sen. Millard Tydings that unfair tactics were used against him when he was defeated last November by Sen. Butler (R-Md.)

Tydings cited a composite picture showing him with Earl Browder, former Communist leader.

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) and Brewster (R-Me) said the picture was labeled "composite," adding that far rougher tactics had been used against candidates in other campaigns than that.

N. Y. Cotton Exchange To Reopen Tomorrow

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP) — The New York Cotton Exchange will resume futures trading Thursday after a suspension of almost six weeks pending clarification of the government's price freeze order on January 26.

The governors of the exchange announced the reopening tonight after an afternoon-long meeting.

The way to resumption of trading was paved by a decision of the Office of Price Stabilization today setting a uniform price ceiling of 45.39 cents a pound for all transactions on the cotton futures markets, regardless of the location of delivery points.

Salesman Spends $40,000 He Swindled On Showgirl

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP) — A small-time guy with big ideas was arrested today, accused of swindling $40,000 to keep a beautiful brown-eyed showgirl in diamonds, minks and Cadillacs.

And all the gal, lovely Rosemary Williamson, had to say for his efforts was that "he was such a pest he annoyed me."

The man was 27-year-old Sidney M. Levy, who made $75 a week as a textile salesman—an income that won't let a fellow do much in the showgirl whirl.

So, said District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, Levy picked up $40,000 illegally and spent about half of it on Rosemary, a very shapely doll of 23.

Levy was charged with grand larceny.

Hogan said Levy told two dentists and a night club manager he had a deal with textile mills to buy nylon goods for $1 a yard and sell it for $1.50 a yard. There never was any such deal, the district attorney added.

However, Hogan said Dr. Henry P. Dwork went for $18,000 and a fellow - dentist, Dr. Walter B. Nicora, for $15,000 to bankroll Levy. And Constance Kaplan, who runs a Manhattan nightclub, chipped in another $7,000.

The district attorney said Levy spent $15,000 to $20,000 on Miss Williamson, a Dayton, O., brunette who was married at 16 and later divorced. She has a six-year-old son.

Sharp Clashes Mark Big Four Deputies Talks

Gromyko Delivers Propaganda Blast

PARIS, March 6 (AP)—A controversy that has bogged down so many East-West meetings — how basic issues should be interpreted—caused sharp clashes between Russia's Andrei Gromyko and Western Power delegates at the Big Four deputies meeting today.

The deputies are working on proposed agendas for a foreign ministers conference on world problems.

A western official who attended said a split developed over what topics should be taken up and Gromyko made an hour and a half propaganda speech which violated Russia's own stipulation that this conference should not go into the issues involved.

One western representative summed it up with a sigh and the remark: "Here we go again."

Another Session Scheduled

He was referring to the way previous East-West meetings have bogged down in clashes over basic issues and repetitious statements of fundamental and unchanging policies by each side.

But no one appeared yet willing to write this conference off as finished. Another meeting is being held tomorrow, with Gromyko presiding.

"It seems to be a lot of the same old thing, but I suppose we shouldn't be defeatists," said one official.

"Given good will and a desire to bring about a meeting of the foreign ministers, there is no reason why the space between the two agendas (of Russia and the West) cannot be bridged," said a British spokesman.

Russians Give No Briefings

The Russians were giving no briefings to the Western press on what occurred inside.

The deputies — Gromyko, U. S. Ambassador-at-Large Philip Jessup, British Chief Delegate Ernest Davies, and Alexandre Parodi, French permanent undersecretary of foreign affairs—met in Paris' Pink Palace Monday. They are trying to agree on what subjects to talk about at a new foreign ministers conference. Russia originally demanded a Council of Foreign Ministers last November to take up the question of Germany—especially the plans of the Western Powers to bring Germany into their defense setup.

De Gasperi Wins Confidence Vote

ROME, March 6 (AP)—The Italian Chamber of Deputies gave Premier Alcide De Gasperi a 325 to 16 vote of confidence tonight in a tumultous session during which the whole Communist bloc walked out.

The vote actually was on the government's defense appropriation bill, but De Gasperi had announced that the ballot would be taken as a vote of confidence.

An hour before the vote, Communists and allied pro-Communist Socialist deputies shouldered their way angrily from the chamber, shouting that the ballot would be improper and illegal. They had been overruled in demands for a secret ballot and for a three-day notification period by the government.

The government bloc and most of the middle-of-the-road independents voted solidly for the government. The monarchist deputies abstained because their motion for a separate vote of confidence for the defense minister was denied.

It was the wildest night session the Italian parliament has had in months. Speakers were heckled with shouts of "swine" and "goldbricker," scuffles developed between angry deputies. The presiding officer once threatened to suspend the session unless the right of free speech was observed.

U. S. Demanding Action Against Red China

LAKE SUCCESS, March 6 (AP)— The United States, confronted by an apparent snub by Red China to U. N. peace feelers, was reported today to be renewing demands for action by a special U. N. committee set up to study possible forms of punishment.

Nasrollah Entezam, Iran, president of the U. N. General Assembly and chairman of the U. N. Good Offices Committee for Peace, acknowledged there had been no developments since the committee sent a feeler two weeks ago to see if Red China would deal with the group on the Korean war.

Informed sources said the three-man group sent a second message last Friday urging Peiping to reply to the first overture.

Atomic Spy Trial Begins In New York

Selection Of Jury Progresses Slowly

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Three Americans, charged with betraying atom bomb secrets to the Russians during World War II, went on trial today in federal court.

It is the first atomic spy case in history to come to trial.

Choosing of a jury progressed slowly. Numerous prospective jurors were excused after they said international tensions might keep them from giving a fair verdict.

Others were ruled out after they said they opposed the death penalty.

Jury Still Not Selected

At the end of the day the jury still had not been selected. The process will be resumed tomorrow.

Conviction could bring death to the three defendants — Electrical Engineer Julius Rosenberg, 34, his youthful-looking wife, Ethel, 34, and Radar Expert Morton Sobell, 33.

All are New Yorkers.

Government attorneys have indicated they will seek the death penalty for the trio, arrested after the Klaus Fuchs espionage ring was uncovered last year.

Gold, Greenglass To Testify

The case against British Scientist Fuchs, now in prison in England, never came to trial because he pleaded guilty. So did a confessed member of the ring, Philadelphia Chemist Harry Gold.

Gold, now serving a 30-year term, and another admitted atom spy, David Greenglass, 29, of Manhattan, are scheduled to testify for the prosecution.

Greenglass, a former Army sergeant who worked on the a-bomb at Los Alamos, N. M., is a brother of Mrs. Rosenberg, whose fate may hinge on his testimony. He himself is awaiting sentence on his guilty plea.

Midwest's Blizzard Blows Itself Out

[By The Associated Press]

The northern midwest's blizzard blew itself out Tuesday, but intense cold remained over the area and—in milder form—was heading eastward.

Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota had frigid weather, with readings as low as -27 at Glasgow, Mont. and -19 at Minot, N. D. At noon Tuesday Glasgow had warmed up only to -15, and Minot to -4.

Cold wave warnings were issued for Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota Tuesday night as the Arctic air pushed southward and eastward.

Mother Drowns Three Children In Bathtub

WESTFIELD, Mass., March 6 (INS)—A deranged mother who told police the noise of her children bothered her drowned three of them today in the bathtub of their Westfield home.

Authorities quoted Mrs. Wanda Kozierad, 33, as saying, "I just couldn't stand it any longer." She later led police to the half-filled bathtub, containing the bodies of her children, Frances, 4; Alice, 2; and Peter, five-months.

Labor Break With Pay Board Shows Some Signs Of Healing

Union Leaders, Johnston Confer; Wilson Doesn't Know What "Shooting" Is About

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— Organized labor's break with the government's mobilization program showed some signs of healing today.

But across the breach, union chiefs traded hot words with Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson.

It was a confused day.

In Washington, there were peace talks. Union leaders met with Economic Stablizer Eric Johnston for the first time since they pulled out of the mobilization program last week. They said later they were hopeful at least part of their differences with the government could be settled.

In Florida, Wilson flew to see President Truman, who is semi-vacationing at Key West. Wilson said later that "nothing and nobody" must interfere with the country's buildup of military strength. And he said neither he nor the President knew what "all the shooting" by labor leaders is about.

Labor "Terms" Outlined

Tonight organized labor was reported to have agreed on a set of terms under which it would reenter the government's wage stabilization program.

A leading figure in the United Labor Policy Committee, whose name could not be used, gave this unofficial outline of the terms:

The major requirement is that a new wage board of 18 members be set up with power to handle disputes.

Other terms involve the relaxing of the 10 per cent ceiling on wage increases above the Jan. 15, 1950, levels. One would be to lift that ceiling every three months to the extent of percentage rises in the government's cost of living index.

Wilson Statement Denied

As for settling the dispute with Mobilization Director Wilson, the ULPC said all it wants is co-equal standing in the organization—a staff appointment on a level with Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Attorney Sidney Weinberg.

One controversy arose today before Wilson took a plane from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to talk with Mr. Truman.

The Fort Lauderdale News quoted Wilson, former head of General Electric Co., as saying "allocation of manpower is the real issue" in his row with organized labor.

"Shockingly untrue," was the response of the United Labor Policy Committee, made up of most major American unions.

3 Die When B-26 Dives Into Ocean

EASTVILLE, Va., March 6 (AP)— A B-26 bomber from Langley Air Force Base plunged into the Atlantic Ocean late today near an island off Virginia's eastern shore, killing three men.

It was the second fatal crash of a Langley-based B-26 in less than 24 hours in Virginia. Another of the Air Force's attack-bombers crashed late last night near Staunton, killing both crewmen aboard.

Bodies of two airmen had been recovered from the second crash early tonight, according to the Cobbs Island Coast Guard Station. A third man was missing. Names of the three crewmen were withheld.

Collazo Admits He Fired First

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)— Oscar Collazo conceded in federal court today he fired the first shot in the Blair House gun battle last Nov. 1.

And the little Puerto Rican Nationalist acknowledged that he intended to hit Private Donald T. Birdzell of the White House police.

But Collazo insisted, both in direct testimony and under cross-examination, that he did not intend to kill Birdzell, President Truman or anyone else.

Collazo, the only defense witness called to the stand in his first-degree murder trial, completed his testimony at 11:10 a. m. Then defense and prosecution attorneys told Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough they had no further testimony.

The indictment against Collazo contains two first-degree murder counts. Both are based on the slaying of Private Leslie Coffelt of the White House police.

"Cardiac Kitchen" Makes Life Easier For Housewife

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—A model "cardiac kitchen" that makes life easier for the housewife was on view today at Women and Children's Hospital.

It was designed for women who have heart ailments. But Dr. Margaret H. Austin, staff cardiologist, says there is no reason why others shouldn't take advantage of its time-and-work saving efficiency.

"By arranging their appliances and work spaces as we have done," she said, "women can easily save two hours daily in tiresome chores."

The kitchen has a compact 9½ by 11 feet area. Its features include:

The work centers—stove, refrigerator, sink and work table—are close to each other.

Shelves are no higher than 6½ feet from the floor—within easy reach of the average woman.

The refrigerator has a left door swing, so the housewife can reach into it without rising from her chair at the adjacent table.

A top (high) oven on the stove is used, cutting down on stooping.

There also is a rocking chair. The housewife can sit down in it and rest while she plans her work day.

Reds Launch Heavy Central Front Attack

May Be Opening Of Counteroffensive

TOKYO, Wednesday, March 7 (AP) —Allied infantry today crossed the Han River east of Red-held Seoul but enemy forces loosed an attack in East-Central Korea which may mark the beginning of an expected Red counteroffensive.

The Han crossings were made at two points east of Seoul in a flanking move against that ancient Korean capital.

The crossing, achieved after artillery pounded Chinese Reds on the north bank, broke the quiet of the long dormant western front. The attack opened at 6:15 a. m.

After getting to the north bank, the infantrymen moved across sandy flatlands against moderate resistance.

Blow Falls In Mountain Area

Allied officers told AP Correspondent Tom Stone this blow, struck eight to 12 miles northeast of the Allied-held highway town of Pangnim, might be the opening of a Red counteroffensive. However, it fell in a mountainous terrain unsuitable for any swift movements.

One regiment of the South Korean Seventh Division reported it was under attack at 6 a. m. by four Red regiments.

West of the South Koreans, two American divisions — the Seventh and Second—have been cutting up North Korean units and chasing them deeper into the trackless mountains.

The Second Division slogged forward Tuesday more than a mile in a blizzard on the trail of casualty-riddled Korean Reds.

Field dispatches said that while the snowstorm grounded Allied planes it helped the American troops to follow the tracks of the elusive Communists. Along the route lay the frozen bodies of "hundreds of enemy dead" killed in recent fighting.

Allies In Changpyong

Farther east, the U. S. Seventh Division was reported by Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. 8th Army commander, to be in possession of the highway communication center of Changpyong.

A field dispatch, however, said a tank-led force that entered Changpyong Monday withdrew at nightfall. An Eighth Army briefing officer reported a Seventh Division armored patrol drew stiff Communist anti-tank and mortar fire Tuesday one mile south of the town.

In the center of the United Nations line of attack Chinese Communists battled stubbornly at two road approaches to Hongchon — headquarters of the Chinese 66th Army Corps.

Hongchon, 22 air miles south of the 38th parallel, forms the apex of a defense triangle formed by three vital roads. It is reputed to be the focal point of a 300,000-man Red buildup.

Heiress' Divorce Try Hits Snag

CUERNAVACA, Mexico, March 6 (AP) —A snag in Barbara Hutton's effort to divorce Prince Igor Troubetzkoy seemingly showed up today.

Melvin Belli, attorney for the 39-year-old Lithuanian prince, said in San Francisco a "quickie divorce" try by the 38-year-old Woolworth heiress had been "stopped at the last minute."

Court officials here wouldn't talk.

No official would confirm that attorneys for the Prince had filed an answer to the charge of mental cruelty. But some persons who visit daily at the dingy, sprawling, nondescript little courthouse said a contest had been filed.

Budget Tops Soviet Parliament's Agenda

MOSCOW, March 6 (AP) — The Soviet Parliament met today with adoption of a 1951 budget as its chief item of business for the five-day session.

Foreign diplomats, on hand at the opening, were keenly interested in whether the defense budget, which will be presented tomorrow night by Finance Minister Arseny G. Zverev, will show a big increase.

The 1950 budget provided for total expenditures of 427,900,000,000 rubles ($106,975,000,000 at the Soviet rate of 25 cents for the value of the ruble). The defense budget was 79,400,000,000 rubles, up 400,000,000 rubles from 1949.

W. Va. House Set To OK Medical School Bill

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 6 (AP)—The House of Delegates defeated all amendments and moved up for passage tomorrow a bill to give Gov. Patteson authority to pick a site for a medical school.

The major vote came as the House, 54-32, rejected a proposal that the site be picked jointly by the Governor and the university board of governors.

Delegate Ambler (D-Monongalia) offered that as "a sort of compromise proposal."

Teacher Pay Hike Backers Given Little To Cheer About

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 6 (AP)—Democrats who want to give school teachers a pay raise without hoisting taxes had little to cheer about after conferring with state fiscal officers today.

Three members assigned to probe further into revenue prospects by a party caucus conferred at length with Comptroller J. Millard Tawes and aides this morning.

What they learned will be passed on to the Senate's 18-member majority tomorrow. No announcement followed the meeting with Tawes but there were plain indications the comptroller had offered slight hope for another windfall from present state taxes.

That would throw the problem of teachers' pay right back where it was last weekend.

Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) forced the Senate to pull up again on the Democrats' plan for mapping a new congressional district into Maryland.

Sen. Dippel (D-Balto 3rd) presented a sheaf of amendments to revise boundaries recommended for Baltimore City districts. He said his division would reduce chances of a Republican victory in the new district next year.

When Dippel offered his amendments, Kimble invoked a simple parliamentary device to block consideration until tomorrow. He asked that the elections committee's favorable report on the bill lay over for a day. The rules say such a request must be honored.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 6 (AP)—A drastic reduction in truck weight limits on Maryland highways was proposed to the General Assembly today.

The bill also would include a unique requirement designed to eliminate "creepers"—the monster trucks which crawl up hills with heavy loads while you fret along behind until you can find a place to pass them safely.

The legislation was based on findings made by the Maryland Truck Commission.

It would reduce the axle load limit to 18,000 pounds, in line with a commission finding that the present limit of 22,400 pounds results in heavy damage to most of Maryland's highways.

The section designed to curb "creepers" would permit trucks to carry no more pounds than 500 times the net brake horsepower of their engines.

Mollet Fails In Bid To End French Crisis

PARIS, March 6 (AP)—Premier-Designate Guy Mollet, a Socialist deputy who pleaded for parliamentary help in forming a new cabinet to show all is not confusion in France, failed of confirmation by 25 votes in the National Assembly tonight.

Mollet needed 311 votes in the 621-member assembly for confirmation. The official vote was 286 for him, to 259 against. He was beaten by moderate and rightist groups which oppose his party's socialistic policies.

The outcome means President Vincent Auriol must find someone else as a possible successor to Premier Rene Pleven.

French Bakers Strike

PARIS, Wednesday, March 7 (AP)—Bakers throughout bread-loving France went on a 24-hour strike today. They are protesting that there is too big a gap between the price of flour and bread that sells for 38 francs (16 cents).

German Controls Eased By Allies

BONN, Germany, March 6 (AP)—The Western Powers went a long way toward freeing West Germany from occupation controls today—just as Big Four deputies in Paris debated tackling afresh an all-German peace treaty.

At the same time the Allies were taking steps to ease controls over West Berlin by revising that city's basic law.

The western action was not exactly a bombshell, however, and the first German reaction was "Not enough."

The Allied High Commission announced that the Bonn government has immediate permission to set up a foreign ministry. German ambassadors and diplomats again will be accredited to friendly foreign nations of the West. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who probably will head the new ministry himself, will have almost complete control over Germany's foreign relations.

The three powers also gave up most of their controls over German internal affairs, foreign trade and exchange. No longer will German laws be subject to prior Allied approval.

But the occupation authorities hold the reserve power to step in and take complete charge if necessary to preserve Western security and German democratic government or to fulfill their international obligations.

DAR Backs Teachers

BALTIMORE, March 6 (AP)—The Maryland Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution went on record today favoring a general increase in salaries of public school teachers.

Steelworker Charged With Woman's Slaying

BALTIMORE, March 6 (AP)—Baltimore County police said today a murder charge against a young steelworker in the death of a 56-year-old woman will be taken directly to the grand jury without a preliminary hearing.

Police have charged Erving Herman Donner, 25, with the slaying early last Thursday of Miss Thelma Parker, an aircraft plant metal worker.

Police still were trying to determine a motive for the killing.

School Board Refuses To Bar Lattimore

BALTIMORE, March 6 (AP)—The city's school commissioners today defied the City Council and said it would be all right for Owen Lattimore to address a high school assembly tomorrow.

"We do not agree with the suggestion that high school students should be shielded from all controversial subjects and personalities."

The City Council, after a storm three-hour debate, voted 13 to 6 last night to ask the school board to ban Lattimore from school rostrums.

The Old Second Guesser

Is Denver Getting Its Face Lifted?

DENVER, Colo. IT WAS IN 1913 when I was starting out as a traveling salesman to try to get editors to buy Mutt and Jeff by Bud Fisher, I arrived in Kansas City. Otto Floto, an old friend and sporting editor of the Denver and Kansas City Posts, sent a telegram to Harry Tammen in Denver to see whether he would talk to me on Sunday, informing him of the time of my arrival. I first went from the station to the Brown Palace Hotel to police up a little. When I walked into his office, he demanded:

"Where you been, kid?" Somewhat surprised to be addressed by one of the proprietors of a big newspaper in this fashion, I answered,

"I went up to the hotel to take a bath and change my shirt after I got off the train."

"Listen, kid," he went on. "You don't ever need to polish up to see me. I started in this town as a bartender in the Windsor Hotel, and, when we closed up at night, I took all the gold coins and threw them at the ceiling. What stuck belonged to the boss. I kept the rest, so don't expect anything."

This was my introduction to one of two colorful characters who were as much a part of Denver as the streets, the mint, and the other landmarks. Later I checked up on Mr. Tammen's frequently made remark about his financial start behind the mahogany and found he had once worked as a bus boy briefly and had nothing to do with handling the money, gold or otherwise. He said of his partner, Fred Bonfils.

"Fred's a mighty shiny diamond. I'm strictly in the rough." It was his pose.

To many he met Tammen seemed utterly scornful of rules and conventions and vastly fond of shocking the credulous with tales of what a tough character he was. There was the time, for instance, when in a lawsuit, one of the judges observed pompously during a recess Tammen would be sure to get justice.

"Justice, hell," said he. "What I want is the best of it."

For days he chuckled, remembering the outrage that blossomed on the jurist's pan.

The city of that day was one of four or five colorful towns in the United States, such as San Francisco, New Orleans, New York, etc. The citizens were rough and ready, many carrying six-guns, not too well concealed, and wearing cowboy boots to dances. There is a story the first manicurist who showed up in town did a big business and died wealthy getting customers who had never heard of such a treatment before. Everything is genteel today. I was noticing the equipment in the Brown Palace barber shop last evening, and now a partition under the table separates the operator from the customer.

The city seems to be getting its face lifted, changing from a cow town, which drifted along through two or three generations after the pioneers, to a modern metropolis with shiny new buildings and fancy hotels with fancier prices. The place is slipping into the groove and pattern of a hundred others with the citizens standing on street corners obeying the traffic signals, even though there is no cop in sight. Of course, the new Governor, Dan Thornton, sports cowboy boots for everyday wear because he claims they are more comfortable—maybe for him but not for me.

An old-timer reminded me of the fabulous story of "Haw" Tabor and the beautiful Baby Doe. He started running a grocery store in Leadville, became one of the richest men in the country, and died broke. As the tale goes, he was married in the White House in the presence of President Chester A. Arthur and other distinguished citizens, but not a woman attended, because he had persuaded his bride to leave her former husband which ladies in those days felt was against the game laws. How things have changed!

He owned the great Matchless Silver Mine in Leadville, lived here in an enormous mansion, and even had diamond buttons on his nightshirt. Baby Doe was more beautiful than ever. Then silver collapsed, and so did the Tabors. On his deathbed he told her always to hold on to the Matchless which would make her rich again and in her old age, she stayed there alone in a shack, running anyone who approached off with a gun. My friend last saw her one day in Denver, an old hag, with gunny sacks on her feet and rags for clothes. A short time later, she was found frozen to death, still standing guard at the mine which never came back.

Much of the glitter is wearing off the town now, so if you want to see it before it fades into the background as just another American city, you had better hurry.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A river-boat captain was approached by a smuggler during the Civil War, narrates Gilbert Lynne and offered a bribe to carry some contraband through the Northern blockade. "It's worth $250 to me," whispered the smuggler. "No," said the captain firmly. "I'm a man of honor." The smuggler raised his offer to $500, then $750, but the captain still turned a deaf ear. Finally the smuggler said, "I'll give you $1,000."

The captain drew a gun and shouted, "Off my ship, you varmint! You're getting too close to my price."

A roving correspondent from a big news weekly was interviewing a brand new movie star over a luncheon table at Romanoff's. She had just assured him she as a graduate of Wellesley when the waiter asked, "How would you like your coffee, Miss? "Large cup or demi-tasse?" "Just give it to me straight," she commanded. "I don't go in for those foreign didoes."

Japan And Pacific Security

Return of John Foster Dulles from a series of exploratory discussions in the Far East has raised hopes of an early peace settlement with Japan. A previous attempt to conclude peace, initiated by the United States in 1947, was abandoned when the Soviet Union objected to the proposed treaty-making procedure. Prospects that Russia, or Communist China, will participate in the current effort are virtually nil, but the other interested powers seem ready to go ahead independently.

A settlement without the concurrence of the Soviet Union or of the power in control of China, though far from ideal, is evidently considered preferable to indefinite continuance of the occupation and of a technical state of war. Soviet abstention and complications resulting from conflicting attitudes of the other nations toward the rival Chinese governments make it probable that the settlement with Japan will take the form, not of a single treaty negotiated at a peace conference, but of a series of parallel bilateral treaties negotiated through diplomatic channels. And it appears likely that the peace treaty or treaties will be supplemented by some kind of Pacific security treaty.

The wartime Cairo, Yalta, and Potsdam agreements shaped the terms of the territorial settlement with Japan. In accordance with those agreements, Formosa was returned to China immediately after the war; the Soviet Union took over the Kurile islands and Southern Sakhalin, as well as Japanese rights in Manchuria; and Korea was taken away from Japan and scheduled for independence. The United States was assigned a UN trusteeship over the mandated Pacific islands and remained in occupation of the Ryukyu, Bonin, and other islands. Although Japan has nourished hopes of regaining the latter possessions, this country has made it known that it wants to hold them under trusteeship. It is indicated, therefore, that the peace settlement will make no change in the Potsdam edict that Japan was to be restricted to its four main islands.

In other respects the settlement may impose few limitations or obligations. The Philippines have been counting on additional reparations, but Dulles, while offering in Manila to consider any workable plan, said frankly that no feasible means of extracting substantial reparations from a defeated nation had yet been discovered. Dulles has gone on record also for a treaty without restrictions on Japanese rearmament. When he visited Australia, he expressed fear that such restrictions would only have the effect of dissipating the present strong pacifist sentiment in Japan. Australians and New Zealanders, however, are still apprehensive of a revival of Japanese militarism and may insist on placing some limits on Japan's right to rearm.

It is largely to quiet such fears that the United States has been giving sympathetic consideration to a regional security pact for the Pacific. It has been suggested that such a pact be limited initially to the United States, Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines with the possible inclusion of Japan as an associate or full-fledged member. It is recognized that special provisions will have to be made for the defense of Japan. The nation has been so thoroughly demilitarized that it would be an easy prey to aggression if American forces were withdrawn.

When Dulles was in Tokyo, he said the United States was prepared to retain armed forces in and about Japan to help meet the threat of aggression, but only on condition that Japan make some preparations to defend itself. Though he spoke in terms of security rather than rearmament, this could only mean a measure of Japanese remilitarization. The hope obviously is that by associating Japan closely in general collective security arrangements, any danger of future Japanese aggression will be virtually elminated.

It is no secret that the western powers are now seeking to secure Japan's cooperation in efforts to check the spread of Soviet and Communist influence in Asia. In so doing they are reverting to the policy of half a century ago, when the United States and Great Britain supported the development of Japan to balance the then rapidly growing power of Russia in Manchuria and Korea.

Kitchen Cabinet

The unsavory scandals uncovered in the RFC have again caused tongues in Washington to wag about a "kitchen cabinet." The term originated more than a century ago, in Jackson's administration.

Andrew Jackson, one of the strongest Presidents, was a man of little learning or culture. He looked on government as a personal prerogative for rewarding one's friends and punishing one's enemies. However, he had found it politic to bestow several Cabinet posts on followers of his bitter enemy, Vice President John C. Calhoun.

So for a time the Jackson Cabinet was an unharmonious body, and the President found contacts more congenial with some his rough-and-ready supporters outside of the Cabinet. The outstanding of these characters were given minor government posts, in which they carried out the Jacksonian spoils system. After several years the President ousted the Calhoun men from his official Cabinet, which then became more influential than the Kitchen Cabinet with the Chief Executive.

Every president inevitably has close advisers outside of the Cabinet, for which the Constitution makes no provision as such. The term "kitchen cabinet" was applied also to the unofficial advisers of Tyler, Johnson, certain of the later presidents. The men who brought the greatest disrepute to the Harding Administration were hardly a kitchen cabinet inasmuch as they held high government positions.

The chief advisers of President F. D. Roosevelt early in the New Deal became known as the Brain Trust. Some of them held important government jobs for a brief period—Harry L. Hopkins (Secretary of Commerce), A. A. Berle (Assistant Secretary of State), Raymond Moley (ditto), Rexford G. Tugwell (Under Secretary of Agriculture). Others remained outside of the federal government—Judge Rosenman and Felix Frankfurter (until appointed to the Supreme Court in 1939).

Editorial Paragraphs

Someone says Washington doesn't have its old-time color. What about Treasury red, Pentagon blue and State Department pink?

What worries the Democrats is that technicality in the two-term amendment to the Constitution which makes it possible for Truman to run again in 1952.

Many people find that trying to keep up with their good intentions sets too strenuous a pace.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

The Fourth 'H'

THE 4-H CLUBS all over the country have a membership of 1,850,000 boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20. Our interest in this organization stems from the fact that one of the four "H's" stands for health. This aspect has never received the same amount of publicity as the projects in dairying, forestry, soil conservation canning, and sewing; but in the last few years there has been an increased accent on good personal and community hygiene.

A habit is something we have done so many times it becomes automatic. Health habits fall into this category and there is no better time to acquire them than in childhood and youth. Once well established, they are likely to last a lifetime. Basically this amounts to acquiring a proper outlook on rest, exercise, cleanliness, and nutrition. In addition, 4-H'ers accumulate a storehouse of knowledge on community health. They not only practice but preach health and each member is a living example of the benefits derived from group activities of this type.

The members of 39 clubs in one part of the country kept a food chart for one month to determine whether their daily meals contained the basic seven foods. It is difficult to beat enthusiasm like this and every family could be helped by keeping similar records. These youngsters learned more about eating habits by working on a practical problem than they did by reading books or listening to lectures. The chances are excellent that when they grow up and become parents they will continue to practice what they learned about balanced diets.

Many 4-H'ers participated in campaigns against flies, mosquitoes, and rats. This not only is good training but entails something that must be done to be appreciated; the individual who has never seen the filth and damage wrought by rodents could have no idea of the enormity of the problem. Another group became interested in collecting samples of suspected water and having them tested; 27 of the 30 samples were found to be contaminated. Another club in cooperation with the local health department, established a permanent library of health literature and formed classes in nutrition, first aid, home nursing, and child care.

Movies often are employed to give demonstrations on posture, accident prevention, and other topics relating to health. The members study the pasteurization of milk and methods of improving the health of cattle and swine. This is important because many diseases are transmitted to humans from our barnyard friends The sooner the farmer appreciates this hazard the quicker will such diseases as brucellosis and trichinosis be eliminated.

One reason why adults are in favor of such clubs is that they make for better citizenship. Furthermore, good health encourages a wholesome mental attitude. One juvenile court judge has stated that no 4-H'er ever came before his court. Juvenile delinquency, which is greater in cities, is a problem that must be met in every way possible and now that the 4-H movement is spreading to urban centers, help may come from this quarter.

TOMORROW: Victims of tuberculosis no longer "chase the cure," says Dr. Van Dellen.

EXERTION AND CORONARIES

M. Z. writes: Does physical exertion encourage coronary thrombosis?

REPLY

The majority of attacks occur when the individual is asleep or at rest altho the condition has followed severe exertion, emotional upsets, or a heavy meal.

WRIST EXERCISE

J. L. writes: After having a cast removed from a broken wrist, is it wise to use the hand to the point of pain?

REPLY

In general, this is good advice but your physician could give you a better answer as he knows the details in your case.

CHLORIDES

G. T. writes: I know that sodium chloride is salt but what are potassium and ammonium chloride?

REPLY

Different types of salt. Ammonium and potassium chloride are much more bitter than sodium chloride and are not recommended, therefore, for table use. Salt is the word used to denote a mixture of compounds. Throughout the ages it has become associated with sodium chloride, which is ordinary table salt.

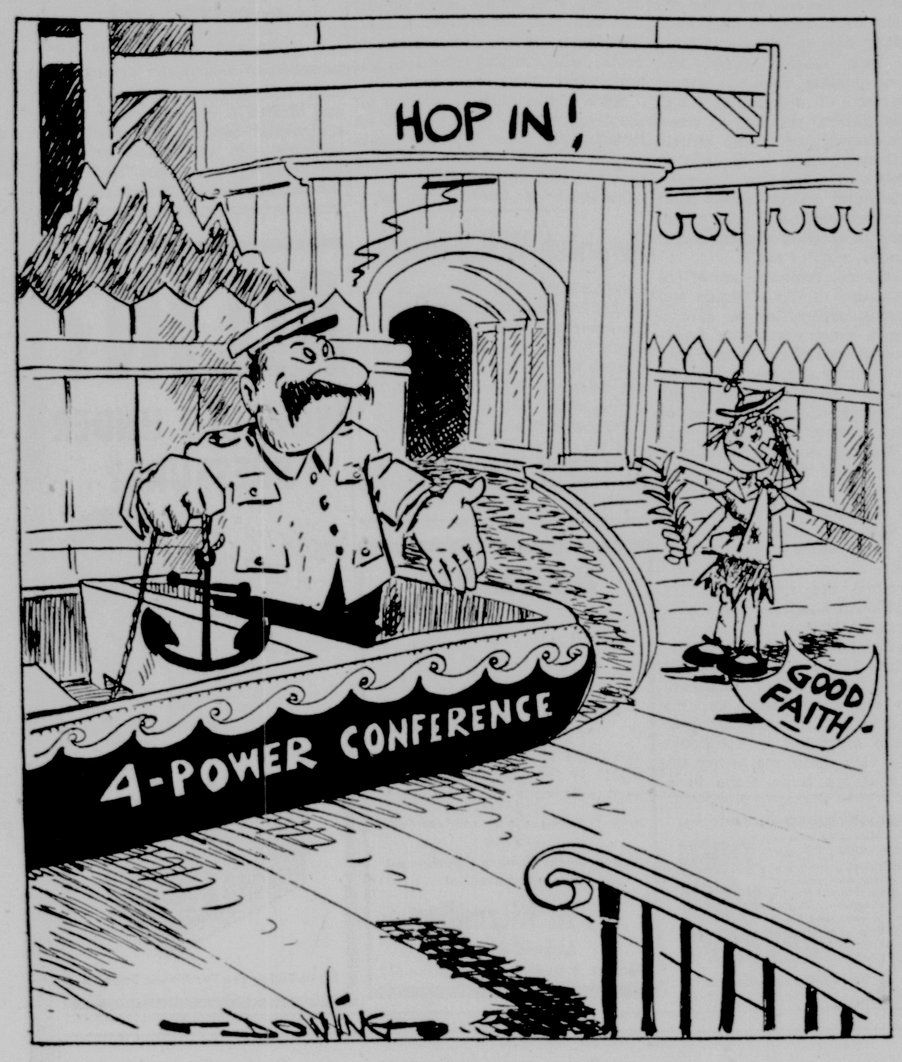
DISCOMFORT AFTER EATING

E. S. writes: Whether I take a cup of tea or a full meal, I become short of breath after eating. What can this be?

REPLY

Pressure on the diaphragm or reflexy through the coronary circulation may be responsible. Digestion requires a large amount of blood and when a vital organ like the heart is robbed of its normal supply temporarily, it tends to rebel. This explains why some individuals are more likely to develop angina after eating and it is conceivable that the same mechanism may lead to shortness of breath.

Very Well, Once More Then



DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Army Still Holds Back On Casualties In Korea War; FCC Afraid To Investigate Interstate Telephone Rates; No Fire At The Achesons.

WASHINGTON—It may be denied, but the Army is still holding back the true casualty figures of our troops in Korea from the public. For example, nearly 12,000 men are missing who have not been listed in the casualty reports. The official figures also fail to include the non-combat casualties, which the Army hasn't even compiled but which number into the thousands.

Even the late Gen. Walton Walker, called the Korean War's No. 1 casualty, wasn't officially counted as a casualty because he happened to be killed in a jeep accident. This is also true of more than 5,300 frostbite cases, who suffered so severely from frozen hands and feet that the Defense Department authorized the Purple Heart for them. Yet they are not included on the official casualty lists.

Most of the 12,000 missing men, still unannounced, disappeared during the December retreat from Seoul. However, one reason the Army has withheld their names is that many are believed to be AWOL (absent without leave) rather than missing in action. For example, several "missing men" have turned up in the Pusan area, taking in USO entertainment and Red Cross hospitality. Others have bribed pilots to fly them back to Tokyo for unofficial "recuperation." Technically, some of these men could be arrested for desertion.

The latest official casualty toll is 50,675. However, by omitting everyone not killed or injured as a result of direct enemy action, the Army has given a false picture of our casualty losses. These noncombat casualties plus the 12,000 unreported missing men would increase our casualty figures by nearly 50 per cent.

This column believes the American people can take the truth without sugar-coating from the Army.

NOTE—Meanwhile, the State Department is secretly negotiating through the Swedish Foreign Office to exchange Chinese prisoners for American prisoners.

Phone Rate Hearing Postponed

The public set a record last year in long-distance telephoning, particularly G.I.'s calling home. As a result, Bell System profits were the highest in 21 years. Yet a move to share the benefits with the public by reducing long-distance rates has been knifed by Senate Majority Leader Ernest McFarland.

The inside story is that the Federal Communications Commission is trying to reduce the public telephone bill. Yet two weeks after the FCC ordered a hearing into interstate rates, McFarland sent acting Commissioner Paul Walker a sharp letter of protest. This had the effect of an ultimatum to the FCC, since McFarland is not only Senate leader but also second in command of the Senate Commerce Committee, which has life-and-death power over the FCC.

As a result, the FCC postponed the hearing from April 16 to August 20, and is nervous about going ahead with an investigation.

Because of past FCC policing, the coast-to-coast day rate for three minutes has been reduced from $10.25 in 1936 to $2.50 today.

"Long-distance telephone service at rates which could be paid by the small users was a godsend to the men and women in the armed services during the war, and likewise to the parents whose principal contact during this trying period was through the long-distance telephone," Walker wrote back to McFarland. "It will likewise be true in the present national emergency when the long-distance telephone will furnish the principal dependable person-to-person contact between parents and sons and daughters."

Acheson's Address

Dinner guests at Secretary of State Acheson's home got to swapping amusing experiences the other evening.

Starting off, Senator Magnuson of Washington told of an incident on the way to the Achesons. His cab was flagged down, he related, by the driver of a stalled gasoline truck. Sheepishly the driver admitted he was hauling 5,000 gallons of gasoline, but had left his own tank run dry. since he had no way to siphon gas from his cargo, he begged for a ride to the nearest gas station.

Acheson, amused by the story, was reminded of an incident that his night-secretary had just reported over the phone. Quoting the secretary, Acheson said that a reporter had called his office and inquired excitedly whether the Secretary of State lived at 2839 P Street, N. W. The answer was that Acheson lived at 2805 P Street, N. W.

"Oh," sighed the reported, obviously disappointed. "There's big fire at 2839 P Street."

Soviet Buildup

Inside reason the Joint Chiefs of Staff abruptly ordered the 40th and 45th National Guard divisions to Japan is the recent Soviet buildup on Sakhalin Island, just 40 miles north of Japan.

Reports from Japanese prisoners of war, released by the Russians, claim the daggerlike island has been converted into an air, submarine and amphibious training base.

Last December General MacArthur became alarmed at this menacing Soviet buildup and urgently cabled Washington for National Guard divisions to be sent to Japan. The Joint Chiefs turned MacArthur down, claiming Europe had

Wage-Price Spiral

By MARK SULLIVAN

ATTEMPTS to describe the inflationary mechanism now active in a way simple to understand commonly picture it as a spiral. In the spiral two forces move alternately upward, wages and prices, a frequent term for the mechanism is "wage-price spiral."

Speaking roughly, this picture is correct enough, though all attempts to simplify frequently result in over-simplifying. The inflationary mechanism that now distorts the country's economy and threatens destruction of it is infinitely complex, no brief description can include all the factors in it. Yet the principal parts of it are illustrated plainly by events taking place at the present time and during the past five years. The sum of them can be pictured by any of several figures of speech. Some in familiar use are automatic spiral, vicious circle, spreading web, endless chain.

One link in the chain is wage raises, and this is exemplified with especial force by grant of a raise last week to workers on railroads. This will result in increased cost of operating railroads. Following this it can be expected that the railroads will ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant them higher freight rates, which in effect is increased price of transportation.

While practically all price increases feed the inflationary mechanism, increase of freight rates is peculiarly potent, because of a ramifying effect it has. It increases the cost, and hence the price, of practically all goods carried on railroads. Much coal is carried on railroads, and an increase in the price of coal that is used as fuel in factories results in increased cost, and hence increased price of goods made in such factories.

Support Prices

Here enters a factor in the inflationary wage-price spiral which is comparatively modern in our history, and which is very potent because it comes from government. After prices of goods generally, especially manufactured goods, have been increased, the Department of Agriculture computes the cost of what farmers must pay for the goods they buy. From this computation the Department derives what it calls "parity price"—that is, the price that farmers ought to receive for the crops they sell. This parity price, or a percentage of it, is declared to be the "support price" and this is the basis of the government policy and practice of price support of farm crops. Price support of farm crops leads to higher prices of food of cost of living. Labor, taking notice of this, demands higher wage rates. The spiral goes up another round.

Another factor in the wage-price spiral is a quite recent innovation. Heads of industry, observing that increased cost of living leads to demands for higher wages, and believing this to be inevitable, have made agreements with labor unions which are called "escalator contracts." Under these, after an increase in cost of living has taken place, an increase in wage rates follow automatically. Again, another round in the upward spiral takes place.

Politics Contributory

Contributory to the inflationary wage-price spiral has been politics. President Truman, in his 1948 campaign for the Presidency, made a special appeal to farmers and labor. He said in so many words that they owed gratitude to him and his party; and by strong implication, in some cases explicitly, promised them reason for more gratitude. Expected fulfillment of these promises would be, in the case of farmers a continuation of price support for farm crops, and, in the case of labor, more power.

More power for labor, in the form of a larger part in the recently set up mobilization for war, is at the heart of the present mobilization crisis. And continuation of price support of farm crops is sustained by a majority of Congress. While many members recognize that price support has now operated as a factor in infiltration, not many are yet willing to change it.

Prices and wages have entered far into government because of the authoritative power government has in large areas of them. Agencies of government make rather more decisions about wages than are arrived at by negotiation between labor and industry. As respects prices, government has long had a large hand in them, and this is greatly increased by the setting up of control agencies in the organization for mobilization. Almost it could be said that today a vast majority of all prices are determined by government. In this condition preservation of the country from a great economic danger calls for separation of government from politics, either in the ordinary sense or in the sense of group pressure.

These Days

Republicans At Odds

THE Republican Party, since it lost the presidency in 1932, has missed opportunity after opportunity to regain the majority position because of really great differences among its leadership, but even more, because the presidency has become a lure that corrupts men.

Once a Republican is smitten by the virus of presidential ambition, his personality takes on the desperations of auto-intoxication. Perhaps that is not the science of it, but they look queer; they act queer; and they say things which bring joy to the heart of every Democrat. Republican candidates for the presidency usually talk themselves out of the job, and often they do it even before the convention.

That would not be such a catastrophe, one way or the other, if the Democrats came up with a worthy candidate. In 1944, they gave us a fourth term for the dying Roosevelt, who soon enough gave the country Yalta and his catafalque at Hyde Park. Any Republican with courage and conviction should have defeated Roosevelt in 1944, but Dewey muffed it.

Whereupon Harry Truman became President and the Democrats have since been laboring upon a formula for defeating him without defeating themselves. At the 1948 Democratic Convention, he was unwanted. But out of the millions of Democrats in the United States, they seemed to be able to find no better, the choice narrowing between Harry Truman and Henry Wallace, with Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court as a lame runner-up. So they took Truman and have had no end of trouble since.

The Republicans nominated Thomas E. Dewey to run against Truman, hoping that his really fine record as an adminisrator in the State of New York would win him votes. But Dewey is a complex personality who probably, in his subconscious, is bored with much of the fripperies of politics and who runs counter to most in his party on international affairs.

The real strength of the Republican party lies west of the Hudson River, while east of that lovely stream is a confusion of Europeans and European-minded Americans who are called "internationalists" by those who dislike them and "globalists" by themselves. And their heart is in the city of London. For psychological reasons, which I am not competent to analyze, Dewey, who comes from Owosso, Michigan, and should normally dislike this Wall Street-Park Avenue concept of life, has actually become its philosopher. That did much to defeat him in 1948 and has eliminated him from presidential prospects in 1952.

The Dewey-Stassen emphasis on General Eisenhower as the Republican candidate for the presidency is splitting this party wide open again and should be most comforting to the Democrats.

Here in New York, the Eisenhower candidacy is most popular, particularly among Republican business men, Democrats and liberals. The reason for their excitement is that they fear Robert A. Taft might be nominated. Even more, some of them fear that he might be elected. Such people as supported Willkie in 1940 and Stassen in 1948 tend to be for Eisenhower now. Dewey is publicy Eisenhower. They will do anything to defeat Taft and I fear that anything might even mean electing a Democrat.

Their difficulty is, of course, that Eisenhower has put himself above party, and his protagonists are running a propaganda that he would only run if co-opted and that he would prefer to run on both parties. That is an offensive notion to most Americans who cannot believe that any human is bigger than God, no matter who he is. Those who place General Eisenhower on that unfortunate pinnacle do him a disservice. He, I am sure, has no such aspirations.

Apart from that the General will not say that he is a Republican nor has he registered as such. Even Wendell Willkie, the Tammany Democrat, switched and registered as a Republican. If General Eisenhower does not register as a Republican in the 1951 election, whether he is in Europe or here, it will be a strong argument against him. The Republicans, on the whole, would prefer someone who says he belongs to them.

So there is a fight on and it is going to be very nasty and might even restore Harry Truman's good humor.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America and Great Britain are talking again about the possible crossing of the 38th Parallel by ground troops, and this time, fortunately, the official discussion is not being broadcast for the enemy to hear.

When Kenneth Younger, minister of state, told the House of Commons on Monday that an agreement between the United States and Great Britain had been reached on whether Allied troops in Korea should cross the 38th Parallel, he added that no statement could be made about future operations because of "security."

This is good so far as it goes, but the fact that Great Britain wants to put restrictions on the military operations of ground troops is known to the enemy because the information has been broadcast from London. It means that the Communist generals now can make their plans and line up their troops in a "privileged sanctuary" in North Korea while UN troops might be compelled to stay south of the parallel.

Opposed To Occupation

Actually there is no argument as to the right of any military commander to patrol and conduct reconnaissance but the British evidently have become sticklers for the point that there should be no "military occupation" north of the 38th Parallel.

This form of surrender will astonish those in the free world who have believed up to now that the purpose of the UN troops in Korea was to punish the aggressor and to liberate all of Korea. The situation is perhaps best explained from the British viewpoint by the "London Times," which a few days ago said editorially, in part:

"Therefore, whether the prospect is liked or not, a military division of Korea for some time seems inevitable. For many reasons the line of division is more likely to be established on or near the 38th Parallel than anywhere else; and that provides the chief reason why the United Nations troops should not cross the parallel in force with a view to occupying large areas north of the line.

"Yet so long as the real Chinese intentions are unknown—so long, indeed, as Chinese propaganda declares that the Western 'aggressors" must be defeated—it is hard to see that the companies could be prevented from carrying out reconnoitering and spoiling raids over the line. Unless a cease-fire were to be arranged and supervised they could not risk being beset by new attacks from north of the line.

"What seems to be advisable is a definite understanding that the parallel and its immediate neighborhood shall be the limit of military occupation until it can be seen whether the Chinese are ready, on that basis, for an unacknowledged cease-fire that might in time become more precise and lead to a settlement."

The foregoing is just plain nonsense from a military viewpoint. No military commander could plan his operations with such a handicap imposed on him. It is the same kind of nonsense which certain Americans are preaching about the defense of Europe by our sea and air power alone and not with our ground troops.

May Revive Reds

Just why the 38th Parallel has become sacrosanct in British eyes is difficult to understand. Bombardments by naval vessels and by our airplanes are going on all the time north of the 38th Parallel. If it be thought that the Chinese Communists will be impressed by a faltering, hesitating ground army which regards the 38th Parallel as untouchable, then a revival of Communist defiance rather than a diminution of its fervor may confidently be expected.

What the "London Times" proposes really is to return to the line of June 26 last and thus tell the mothers and fathers of the 50,000 American boys who have been killed or wounded that the Korean expedition had no real objective at the outset and today has no purpose at all except to restore the status quo and call it a day.

The omission from British statements and utterances of any expressed desire to punish the Communist aggression is significant. Instead, the Munich psychology is back again, as it is proposed to negotiate for peace along the 38th Parallel. Our British friends do not

IN GALATIA

Henceforth let no man trouble me; for I bear branded on my body the marks of Jesus.

Galatians 6:17. Read Luke 23.

There was trouble in the Galatian church. Some teachers had gotten in who were leading the people away from the gospel that Paul had preached to them. They were charlatans, and were interested in their own advancement rather than in the liberty and freedom of Jesus Christ. They wanted to fasten onto the Galatian church a human dogma instead of a religion that found its deepest experience in the things for which Jesus lived and died.

There was a time too, when they had accepted Paul as their spiritual leader. Now many of the people in the church were turning against him. They had been led to believe that Paul was a traitor to the Jewish laws and customs.

But Paul stood his ground and told them that no matter what they thought, two things he would drive home to them: First, all their righteousness was as nothing, so long as they did not love their neighbor as themselves. Second, a real Christian could not escape the Cross. A man is a Christian only as he bears the marks of Jesus.

Les Us Pray: Father in heaven, when we have run the race that is set before us, and our work is done, may there be something about us that shows us as branded with the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Preston Grand Jury Convenes To Probe Redmen Act Violations

A special session of the Preston county grand jury will convene at 9 a. m. today in Kingwood, W. Va., to investigate what has been termed as "repeated violations of the Redman Act."

A "citizen's committee" was formed last week by approximately 60 business men and civic leaders. The grand jury was called following a meeting of a subcommittee with Circuit Court Judge Charles P. Wilhelm, Prosecutor R. Doyne Halbritter and Lt. W. F. Murphy, who is in charge of the West Virginia State Police in the Preston county area.

Harry Myers, of Morgantown, W. Va., a UMW field representative, and 22 pickets were given preliminary hearings Tuesday on charges of stoning a group of non-union miners last week as they were enroute to work at the Hartman mine, near Kingwood.

Preston County Sheriff J. H. Benson yesterday said no further demonstrations had been reported to his office. He added that the usual number of pickets, between 30 and 45 carloads, were patrolling the area.

Sheriff Benson said Ray Sisler, of Corinth, W. Va., reported that he had been stoned by two carloads of pickets yesterday while enroute to visit a neighbor. Incidents reported to the sheriff's office over the weekend included an attack on Elmer Strawer, of Terra Alta, W. Va., while returning from his brother's skating ring. He is an employe of the Kray Coal Company.

A car, owned by Junior Wilhelm, of Route 2, Albright, W. Va., was riddled by bullets outside his house Saturday night, Sheriff Benson said, adding that a barn housing ponies used in the Schmidle mine, near Albright, was torn from its foundation Saturday night or Sunday morning. The ponies were not injured.

Approximately 700 union miners of Valley District in Preston county are on a sympathy strike called yesterday over the dismissal of a weighman by the Bretz Fuel Company.

A Bretz Company official said John Bartoletti, of Masontown, was dismissed February 24 and that two of the company's mines were closed then by other employes. Yesterday, the strike spread to other Bretz mines and to the Zinn Mining Company, the Taylor-McMillen Coal Company, the DeBoni Coal Company, the Sisler-Perry Coal Company and the Ball and Fullmer Coal Company mines. No violence was reported.

Two Wills Are Filed In Orphans Court

Two wills of local women who died in the past two weeks were admitted to probate in the Allegany County Orphans Court yesterday.

Mrs. Hannah Sheffler, 328 Fayette Street, who died March 1, leaves her household and personal effects to her daughter, Miss Rose Sheffler, at home.

One half of the residue of the estate is bequeathed to Miss Sheffler; and one-quarter each to two other daughters, Mrs. Bertha Saperstone and Mrs. Ruth Drucker.

Evelyn M. Wolford, former WAC and beauty shop operator who died two weeks ago in Newton D. Baker VA Center, Martinsburg, W. Va., bequeathed government bonds and a house at Cook's Mills, Pa., to her mother, Mrs. Annie Mason.

She also left rings to her two nieces and nephew. Mrs. Lucie Wagner was named administrator of the estate.

There are about 15 million Americans with diminished hearing ranging from slight to complete deafness.

IF YOU DON'T FEEL GOOD
Don't Put Off Finding Relief

HADACOL May Bring the Relief You Are Seeking If Your Condition Is Due to Lack of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin and Iron.

Luther Harris

If more folks would remember the old saying, "Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today," there's no telling how much better off they'd all be. And the worst thing about it all is that folks usually put off the most important things until a later date. For instance, there are a lot of folks who don't feel like they should who put off doing something about it. Luther Harris, 516 Chestnut St., Bowling Green, Kentucky, didn't feel good for a time, but he acted when he heard how HADACOL was helping people suffering from nervousness, aches and pains and run-down conditions caused by deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin. Yes, Mr. Harris started taking HADACOL and now he says he feels good.

Here is what he says:

"For quite some time I was nervous and run-down, and I suffered from aches and pains I was weak, and I could hardly do a day's work. I started taking HADACOL and from my first bottle I felt better. Now I feel good, and I can do a good day's work. I am still taking HADACOL and I wouldn't do without it. I praise HADACOL very highly."

HADACOL Attacks Real Cause

Remember, HADACOL is not a quick-acting product that only attacks the symptoms of your ailments, but actually relieves the real cause of these disturbances when due to such deficiencies.

Allegany Homemakers To Honor Venia M. Kellar

Reception To Be Held Apr. 13

Allegany County Council of Homemakers' Clubs will entertain with a reception honoring Miss Venia M. Kellar, assistant director of extension service of the University of Maryland, April 13.

Miss Kellar will be in Allegany county April 13-14 for her last official visit to Allegany friends. The reception is being held in Centre Street Methodist Church parlors from 8 until 10 p. m.

Miss Kellar, who for 34 years has been on the staff of the University of Maryland Extension Service, has announced her retirement, effective March 31. She started as home demonstration agent in Dorchester county in 1917, and the following year went to the university as state leader of home demonstration agents. In 1935 she was named assistant director of extension.

A native of Nebraska, Miss Kellar graduated from Wesleyan University, Lincoln, was principal of a school in Western Nebraska, later resigning to be the first home demonstration leader in South Dakota. She took advance study at the University of Nebraska and Columbia University.

Twelve years ago she inaugurated a Negro home demonstration program in Maryland, but is most noted for her nationally-known Rural Women's Short Course or "College Week for Women," as it is sometimes called, begun in 1923.

Last November Miss Kellar received and accepted an invitation to tell of the project in a 15 minute broadcast on the "Voice of America" series.

Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent, said yesterday that Miss Kellar will continue to guide Maryland homemakers until after the RWSC, and many Allegany women will be happy to enroll for the 25th anniversary of College Week for Women June 18-25.

First WSCS Plans Two Meetings

Plans for the April and Zone 2 meetings were formulated at the meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist Church, Monday evening at the church.

The April meeting will be in the form of a covered dish supper with Circle leaders in charge. Election of officers is to be held at that time.

Zone 2 meeting will be March 16 at 7 p. m., in First Methodist Church.

It also was decided to send the NEWS to the boys in service.

Mrs. Clarke Bittinger presided and routine reports were given. Mrs. George Coffman was in charge of the program, "A Lesson on Symbols." She was assisted by Mrs. Ruth Eversole as a Moslem native; Mrs. Bittinger represented a Christian and Mrs. Virgil Ice, an Arab Christian mother. Mrs. Anetta Montgomery read the Scripture and led in prayer. Mrs. Fannie Stein was pianist.

Concluding the evening refreshments were served by Circle 1, Mrs. Lillian Smith, leader. Approximately 25 members attended.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON.

GOLD . . . Gold . . . Gold . . .A river of gold flows out of our national hoard at the rate of $50 million a week . . . The yellow metal is being acquired by most of the governments we do business with . . . Partly, because our imports give the other nations a dollar balance, and they are converting it into gold . . . We sell our gold to the various governments for $35 an ounce (the same as U. S. pays for it) and the foreign countries sell it to their home folks . . . Unlike the U. S., it's not against the law for individuals to own or hoard gold . . . For instance, the French, Mexicans, and others, distrust their own paper currency and like to keep gold in the family larder . . . Their governments readily sell it to them . . . So many women, particularly in the backward areas we are helping with Point Four, would rather go naked than without a weighty assortment of earrings, bracelets, belts, anklets, et al, of gold, especially gold coins . . . The ladies in Asia, India, the Arabian States, the Balkans, and our own Latin America, may often be weighted down with as much gold as they can carry, anything from $50 or $100 to $5,000 or $10,000.

There are, however, more serious drains than those which could be charged to vanity or rainy-day saving.

The black market in gold grows rapidly . . . Other nations which mine gold are selling it in the open or black market . . . They get anywhere from $45 to $60 an ounce, instead of selling at the U. S. rate of $35 an ounce to us . . . Gold of this kind demanded by nations and companies wishing to make purchases in markets outside the U. S. talks louder than the American dollar . . . Gold has a particularly loud voice in buying officials or their votes in some of the so-called remote countries.

Russia has finally invaded European gold marts . . . No one in the U. S. officially knows how much gold they have . . . Except that Russian gold is flooding into Paris, Switzerland, Asia, the Near East and Latin America . . .

• — • — •

A trifling bit of U. S. gold is escaping to dentists, jewelry manufacturers, and other small consumers . . . They buy it from the Treasury for the same $35 an ounce. "There is no objection to this" say officials, "except that some are getting more than they can possibly use and are either hoarding it or selling it!"

Although it's a little known fact, many foreigners and their governments have stashed in N. Y. a gold balance of more than $5,000,000,000 . . . Now they have decided it's unsafe . . . Every day are sending it to "better havens"—nations they believe less likely to be bombed than the U. S.

The foreigners may also be placing their gold in safer havens outside the U. S. because if their homelands are attacked the U. S. would seize their gold and other assets banked in America . . . It has been Uncle Sam's custom to hold foreign gold until the shooting ends, then restore it . . . These gold hoarders would rather have their stuff banked in Canada, Mexico or Uruguay (considered highly safe and financially sound) where they'd have a better chance of digging into it quickly.

• — • — •

Another gold hoard may be building up at this time in the rich Arabian oil fields—Saudi Arabia, Iran, The Sheikdom of Kuwait, Lebanon, Trans-Jordan—where billions of barrels of oil ooze like black gold.

Until fairly recently, wily old King Ibn Saud, the Shah of Iran, the Sheik of Kuwait, and others have been perfectly content to take American $$$$$$ or British sterling as royalties, paid for the billions of barrels of oil extracted from their countries.

Now the old boys are demanding and getting gold . . . They know that the Russians have gold and Russia borders Iran . . . So if we want oil they figure we'll pay the price . . . In one way or another British and United States interests are finding the gold to match that of the USSR.

So week by week a river of gold washes out of America. . . Outflow last year was $3.8 billion . . . In 1951 the Treasury expects we'll lose $4,000,000,000 . . . Or about $50,000,000 a week . . . But the Treasury Dept. says they're not too worried . . . They can impose controls on foreign exchange. . . And on gold export to control it . . . However, they admit they would have no control over the sale of gold by countries mining it . . . Nor could they hope to control Russia's sales.

Nor, do they entertain the faintest ray of hope that the exotic ladies of the world could be de-nuded of their gold ornaments.

Planning your Easter wardrobe? Select your most becoming lines from this list of new silhouettes.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

WITH the variety of silhouettes currently offered and the great ingenuity of detail, within the silhouette itself, even though Easter is early this year, planning your wardrobe will be only a pleasure and anything but difficult.

There's something for every type of figure, and something to add a fillip to every personality. Just decide what is right for you and you are sure to come through with a distinguished wardrobe. Here is your fashion scout's report:

Silhouette Line Up

Coats are narrower and much less casual. The loose but straight coat is your best fashion and figure bet. Popular as this style is destined to be, by selecting a model with a detail or two that reflects your individuality you can wear it with distinction. This might be a short-cuffed, wide or bloused sleeve, a scarfed neckline, a tuxedo revere or sailor collar, an oblique arrangement of button trim, or a surprise lining of striped or printed silk.

Unless you are tall and slim as a pole, think twice before you let the barrel-type model of the equally desirable topper style tempt you. The short, boxy or slack topper is sure to look better on you. If your figure is magnificently proportioned, shun a loose coat altogether and choose the high-fashioned fitted coat with a flared skirt.

Whatever type of coat you buy, be sure to relate your dress or suit carefully to it. The ensemble look is and will continue to be a big factor in your fashion future, so signify your smartness by taking advantage of it.

The Costume Look

The suit with an affinity for the oose coat, and most wearable, is not extreme in any detail. It is straight in skirt, rounded in hip, nipped in waist, broader in shoulder, diagonal in detail and feminine in feeling. Note, too, that the tailored jacket is likely to be longer, (twenty-five to twenty-seven inches); the skirt length remains turned at mid-calf. Alternates are the slack and boxy suit and the incoming looking but figure demanding!

With variations, the formula for dresses is still the sheath. For double becomingness, be sure your sheath dress incorporates some oblique details to slash the figure girth or a moderate side or back flare to release the skirt. For double duty, see that it's topped by its own tunic, fitted or bolero jacket.

Residents of Cumberland will be among the people in the eastern and southern section of the United States who will be able to get out their smoked glass today and see a partial eclipse of the sun if skies are clear.

The eclipse will be annular in the South Pacific and Central America, with the moon centered over the sun, leaving a bright ring around the sun's circumference.

However, in this section a partial eclipse will be seen, pending of course on atmospheric visibility conditions.

As the sun dips low in the western horizon today, the moon swings between the earth and the sun.

For Western Marylanders the eclipse will begin at 5:04 p. m. and end at 5:44 p. m. Seventeen per cent of the sun will be covered to residents of this area.

For observing the first of two partial eclipses scheduled this year, a heavy smoked glass or a dense film is advocated. Trying to look at the phenomenon without much protection may result in some damage to the eyes.

Eastern North America will have its second eclipse of the year on September 1 and will be a better one to view than the one today because more of the sun will be covered.

Bids To Be Accepted On New Lonaconing School

Sealed bids for the construction of Central High School at Lonaconing will be accepted by the Allegany County Board of Education until April 13 at 2 p.m., Edgar A. Dashiell, president of the board, announced.

The bidders may submit proposals on any or all of the three prime contracts, — general construction; heating, plumbing and ventilating, and electrical.

The Board of Education said the successful bidder will be required to furnish a satisfactory performance bond in the full amount of the contract.

The new school will cost in the neighborhood of $1,300,000, according to the plans prepared by S. Russ Minter, local architest.

The school will be built of concrete, brick and directional glass blocks and will have one floor in some sections and two floors in others.

To be used as a junior-senior high school, it will have 33 classrooms, a large gymnasium, auditorium, cafeteria and three shops.

The contract documents, including plans and specifications which have been approved by the State Department of Education, are on file at the office of the architect, Minter, 307 South Centre Street.

The bids will be opened Friday, April 13, at 2 p.m. at a meeting of the Board of Education.

Beryl Soldier Dies In Texas Auto Crash

Police Seek Clues On Missing Youth

City Police reported yesterday they have received no word on the disappearance of Thomas Nies, 20, of 708 North Mechanic Street.

Nies was reported missing by his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Nies, who said he left home Sunday evening, February 18, saying he was going for a walk.

When last seen he was wearing blue jeans, brown and red plaid jacket and blue sweater. He is 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 120 pounds, has dark brown hair and brown eyes.

Nies attended St. Patrick's Catholic School but was unemployed due to a physical handicap.

The youth's family said no word or contact had been made about him since he was reported as missing.

Senate Passes

Can money be raised to boost school teachers' salaries without upping taxes?

They want an answer to that question not later than today, so that they can fix party policy on the subject that has become as ticklish as any to come before the legislature this session, the Associated Press reported.

The powerful Senate Democratic Steering Committee hoped to get agreement at a caucus Monday on an economy policy which would have excluded teacher raises if it meant new taxation.

But the 18 party senators got into a wrangle on the subject.

Some felt it would be bad policy — and worse politics — to shut the door to possible school boosts.

No Agreement Reached

One or two reportedly favored increased taxation, if necessary, to get the $4,300,000 necessary to pay each teacher an extra $300, or $7,300,000 for $500 across-the-board raises.

The upshot of almost two hours of argument was that the senators failed to reach agreement on anything.

As a compromise, they appointed a subcommittee to meet with fiscal officials.

Until the dissension in Democratic ranks became apparent, most observers at the State House were of the opinion that the teachers had little chance of getting more money. Now, they are not so sure.

Republican Governor McKeldin has stated unequivocably that he intends to hold the present tax line unless it is proven to him that residents are willing to pay more taxes in order to hike the salaries of the men and women who teach their children.

He also feels that it is a problem that should be tackled by the counties and Baltimore City, rather than by the state.

Lower Pay Scales, Absence Of Unions Induce Textile Industry To Move To South

By WILBUR JENNINGS

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Textile manufacturers are quitting New England for the South, chiefly because of lower wage scales and the absence of organized labor, a Senate Labor subcommittee reports.

The subcommittee stated that southern employers, businessmen and churches conspired to destroy or block unionization of southern mills.

The findings are set forth in a 64-page report yet to be passed on by the full Labor Committee.

The subcommittee, attacking efforts to halt unions in southern textile mills, declared that "only education of the South in the benefits of organized labor could constitute an effective solution."

Members of the subcommittee were Sens. Murray (D-Mont), Taft (R-Ohio), Morse (R-Ore), Neely (D-WVa), and Humphrey (D-Minn). Two senators, defeated for reelection, also served with the group. They were Forrest C. Donnell, Missouri Republican, and Claude Pepper, Florida Democrat.

The subcommittee reported that some 80 per cent of the textile industry now is located in the South and only 20 per cent in New England. A quarter of a century ago these figures were reversed, the subcommittee added.

The group admitted that the South offered other advantages to the textile industry, including lower construction costs because of a milder climate, more favorable power rates in some instances, closer sources of raw materials, lower taxes and less state regulation of industrial operations.

But it said the principal reasons for the migration of textile mills was the absence of unions and lower wage scales in the south.

The subcommittee held hearings last year on conditions at five southern mills—the American Enka Co., Morristown, Tenn.; the American Thread Co., Tallapoosa, Ga.; the Anchor Rome Mill, Rome, Ga.; the Celanese Corp., plant at Rome, and a study of the activitees of a citizens' committee at Anderson, S. C., to prevent unionization of the Orr and other mills.

Since the subcommittees findings were made public, spokesmen for two of the three Georgia firms mentioned strongly denied that their firms mentioned strongly denied that their firms had entered any conspiracy against labor unions.

W. A. Egerton, general attorney and assistant secretary of the American Enka Corp. at Asheville, said of the report "we have no knowledge whatsoever of any such alleged conspiracy and therefore have nothing to say about it."

Leland Sadler, chairman of the Anderson citizens' committee, said he had no comment.

Commenting on the calling out of the National Guard during trouble at the American Enka Corp. in Tennessee, the report stated that the "situation in this strike was further aggravated by brutal, unlawful, and completely inexcusable behavior on the part of National Guard men, state highway patrolmen, and the sheriff's deputies."

The report stated that "the subcommittee strongly feels that the National Guard ought not to be used in labor disputes, except to meet a real and serious state emergency. The very presence of the National Guard, even if it does not act, implies that the government is in danger of attack, and raises in the minds of those against whom the National Guard is called out the feeling that their government is allied with their enemies against them.

"In this case, and understandably, no state or local officer would acknowledge that he had been responsible for the calling out of the guard, because the presence of the guard was wholly unjustified. This is demonstrated by the lack of serious violence after the arrival of the guard and by its prompt removal.

"Its presence had been desired simply to overawe the striking employes, and that was its only result. However blameless those who had ordered out the guard may have been, it had been effectively used as a strike-breaking agency."

It is estimated the millionth American will be killed in traffic during 1951 or early 1952. Sane driving by everyone can change that.

HAGERSTOWN, March 6 — Fort Hill High School of Cumberland waded through to the finals of District No. 1 in Maryland's Class "A" basketball tournament tonight by defeating the scrappy Frederick High School Cadets on the Hagerstown High School court before a gathering of approximately 800 persons. The score was 59-55.

Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Sentinels from the Queen City qualified to meet Hagerstown High School on Thursday night at 8 o'clock on the Fort Hill floor in the District No. 1 final. Fort Hill beat the Hubs twice during the season, 53-41 and 66-49.

Score 21st Victory

Tonight's victory was the 21st in 23 starts for Fort Hill while Frederick, coached by Homer Brooks, Cumberland, suffered its third loss against 17 victories.

Frederick took a 13-12 lead in the first quarter but was trailing by seven points at intermission, 30-23, and eight points at the close of the third stanza. Early in the final heat the Sentinels held an 11-point lead.

Individual scoring honors went to Ronnie Tyeryar, jump shot specialist of the Cadets, who banged in 23 tallies. He counted nine times from the field and meshed five of nine free throws.

Lynn Beightol, center, Eddie Landis, guard, and George McGregor, forward, sparked the Fort Hill attack with 17, 15 and 12 markers. Beightol and Landis had six goals each.

Randall "Skeets" Starkey, the Wiley Ford light-heavyweight, came near being flattened in one heat in his fourth pro fight in New York, he told us yesterday.

Harry Daniels, Harlem scrapper, who had gone 10 rounds with Harold Green, well known Brooklyn middleweight, dropped Starkey in the opening round of their match at the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club in Brooklyn, February 17.

"It was the first time that I've been decked in 19 pro fights," Starkey related. "I weathered the storm O. K., and knocked out Daniels in 44 seconds of the 2nd stanza."

"Skeets" is home now and hopes to return to New York soon. He passed his physical for the army and may receive greetings from Uncle Sam any day now.

Starkey's third victory in New York was a decision over Eddie Godbold of Harlem in four rounds at the White Plains Community Center.

The tall West Virginia battler who got his start here as an amateur now tips the beam at 171 pounds.

Kinsley McDonald, deputy clerk at the court house, was a member of Barton High School's first county championship soccer team and we believe his story about Barton losing a soccer game in the afternoon and defeating the same team in basketball the same night is worth re-telling.

It happened in the fall of 1920. The Braves won the county title by defeating Beall on a mud-soaked field in Barton, 1-0.

Then Barton whipped the Garrett county champions and also Hagerstown, Washington county's standard bearer.

These games were followed by an unusual delay in arranging for Barton's next opponent and snowstorms interfered with soccer practice. So the Braves started basketball drills.

Late in the year, however, Barton was called upon to play Sparrows Point High booters at Patterson Park, Baltimore where the Braves received a trimming. Not to be outdone, Barton challenged Sparrows Point to a basketball game that very evening. The game was played and Barton won.

U. S. Track Team Wins P-A Events

Takes Three Relays, 50,000 See Contests

BUENOS AIRES, March 6 (INS) —The United States racked up four smashing victories today to clinch the track and field team title at the Pan-American games.

U. S. foursomes swept to victory in the men's 400 and 1600 meter relays and in the women's 400-meter relay while Henry Laskau of New York ambled home first in the 10,000 meter walk.

A crowd of 50,000 spectators was in the sun-swept River Plata Stadium to witness the last of the spiked shoe events.

The U. S. 400-team, anchored by spring champion Arthur Bragg, scored a three-yard victory over Cuba's quartet, anchored by Rafael Chacon. The winning time of 41 seconds flat established a South American record and was only one and two-tenths of a second short of the world mark.

The other three men on the U. S. team were Don Campbell of Sterling, Colo., Dick Attlessey of Los Angeles and John Voight of Oklahoma A. and M.

Mal Whitfield, the Army sergeant Olympic champ from Columbus, O., anchored the victorious 1600-meter team home in a breeze. The stateside quartet, composed of Whitfield, Hugo Maiocco of New York, Voight and Bill Brown of BelAir, Maryland, won the race in 3:09.9. It finished more than 40 yards ahead of Chile.

Lanky Jean Patton of Nashville, Tenn., anchored the U. S. triumph by three yards in the women's 400-meter final, to beat the Chilean entry. The winning time was 48.7 seconds.

Saturday Night

7:45 p. m. — St. Bonaventure (18-5) vs. Cincinnati (18-3).

10 p .m. — LaSalle (22-6) vs. St. Louis (21-7).

The four seeded teams St. Johns of Brooklyn (22-3), North Carolina State (28-4), Brigham Young (23-7) and Arizona (23-4) will play the survivors of Saturday's games on Monday and Tuesday with the semifinals scheduled for Thursday March 15 and the final on Saturday, March 17.

17,000 May See Charles-Walcott Fight In Detroit Tonight

Heavy Champ Defends Title Seventh Time

Ezzard Is Favorite, Gate May Hit $95,000, Bout Set For 10 P. M.

By MURRAY ROSE

DETROIT, March 6 (AP)—This is Joe Louis' home town and a surprising capacity crowd of 17,000 may turn out tomorrow night to see heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles, who beat the Brown Bomber, and Jersey Joe Walcott, who almost did, battle it out in a title 15-rounder in the Olympia.

There has been an amazing surge of interest hereabouts in the return scrap between the two negroes, undoubtedly spurred by the news that Louis probably will face Charles again in Chicago next month. That is, of course, if Charles wins tomorrow, as expected.

The lean, lithe, 29-year-old champion is favored at odds of 3½ to 1 but there has been very little betting on the outcome so far. In New York last night the price was listed as 6 to 1 and "out." Which means you can bet on Walcott but the bookies won't take any Charles money. They consider Ezzard a cinch.

The 37-year-old Walcott, who could become the oldest challenger ever to capture the heavyweight crown if he wins.

In addition, the bout, starting at 10 p. m. (EST), will be broadcast and telecast by C.B.S.

Yet Matchmaker Nick Londes of the International Boxing Club's Detroit branch, said over $50,000 was in the till already for Charles' seventh title defense of the crown he won by whipping Walcott in Chicago 20 months ago. Nick said the show "is selling very, very well," but he frowned at the mention of "sellout." Nick doesn't want to drive any last minute customers away.

Other members of the I.B.C. say the gross gate may hit $95,000, which would be an indoor record for this town.

Charles is getting 40 per cent of the net. Walcott will collect 17.

Members of that Barton soccer-basketball team were C. O. Moyer, Giffen "Squirt" McCormick, Courtney "Pete" Andrews (now deceased), Jimmie McDonald, Joe Longridge, Kinsley "Tickle" McDonald, Claude "Pink" Waring, John Harvey, Cecil Smith (now deceased), Myrle Mowbray, Emory Mowbray and Wilbur McDonald.

Joseph N. Carter, 58, who died Monday morning in Allegany Hospital, was the first coach of St. Patrick's Shamrocks, an outstanding Mt. Savage basketball team of the 1920s.

Ryan Farrell of the C. D. Kenny Corporation, was a member of that team which beat Barton High School, Salisbury (Pa.) High School when the Cardinals' lineup included "Rip" Engle, now Penn State head football coach and the Lichliter Brothers—"Wib" and Pickles"—and Allegany High School.

Other members of Coach Carter's quint were Joe and Gene Brannon, Tommy Campbell, Johnny Barrett and Ed Murray.

Farrell says the Samrocks were undefeated the first year they played together and won 36 games.

Westmont High School of Johnstown played its first basketball game in this section at Mt. Savage against the Shamrocks. Carl Engh was the Westmont coach then and he's still at the helm. The Pennsy team now plays Allegany High two games annually.

Farrell recalls the time Prof. Cooling at Barton High told the Shamrocks that a series between the teams would not be worthwhile because Barton was too good. The teams met in a home-and-home series and split even.

The Shamrocks-Allegany High game at Mt. Savage wound up in a "rhubarb" and a fellow named Curry had a watch yanked out of his pocket and badly mangled in a pushing and shoving contest that climaxed the affair. Foy A. Curry is now assistant principal at Allegany High.

At the time of his death, Mr. Carter was chief of the Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Department and commander of Memorial Post American Legion.

Adam Comorosky, former Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder, who died the other day in Swoyersville, Pa., was a product of the old Blue Ridge League where he started his career in organized baseball with the Waynesboro (Pa.) Villagers in 1925.

The Blue Ridge produced such major league players of the past as Rolston Hemsley, Joe Vosmik and "Chick" Fullis, who went up from Frederick, Md.; Lewis "Hack" Wilson, Lu Blue, Johnny Neun, Robert Moses "Lefty" Grove and Roger (Doc) Cramer of Martinsburg, W. Va.

Bill Sherdel, a pitcher of note with the St. Louis Cardinals, got his start at Hanover (Pa.) in the Blue Ridge League.

Cumberland was in the Blue Ridge League for a short time before the First World War. When Chambersburg folded, Col. Nelson W. Russler bought the franchise. Drafting of players by the army, however, caused the league to do a fadeout, according to Russler.

Alleghany Loop Has Six Teams, Opens April 29

Elkins, Huttonsville Granted Franchises

PETERSBURG, W. Va., March 6 — The Alleghany Baseball League accepted the applications of the Elkins Highlanders and the Medium Security Farm team of Huttonsville at its Sunday meeting in Elkins, Clem Clower, secretary of the circuit, announced today.

The league will function with six teams this year, including the Bartow American Legion, Franklin, Petersburg and Parsons.

Marlinton dropped out of the Allegany circuit to enter the King Coal League which includes teams of Sunmmers, Raleigh, Nicholas and Pocahontas counties in West Virginia.

Bartow's franchise passes from the hands of a local business man to the American Legion post.

Franchise fees of $60 were posted by the six teams which will launch their season on April 29. Each team will engage in a four-game series with the other five clubs in the loop. The 20-game schedule will comprise Sundays and holidays.

A board of arbitration is being set up to handle all protests and disputes of the clubs.

Officials and managers will meet on April 22 to receive the player rosters of 30 men for each team. The player limits must be pared to 21 men per team by June 1.

Dates Are Approved For Ryder Matches

LONDON, March 6 (AP) — The British P. G. A. finally agreed today to the American proposal to play the Ryder Cup golf match on Nov 2. and Nov. 4, 1951.

The British had been holding out for consecutive days.

The match will be played at Pinehurst, N. C.

NEW YORK, March 6 (INS) — Along Broadway today we find.... Tommy Loughran ..former light heavyweight champion... who in 20 years of battling probably conceded more weight than anybody in ring history.

Tommy gave away nearly 100 pounds apiece to Primo Carnera and Ray Impellittiere ...he also met more champions than any other fighter....look 'em over ..Gene Tunney, Carnera, Jack Sharkey, Jack Delaney, Mike McTigue, Pete Latzo, Jim Braddock, Mickey Walker, and Max Baer ...and beat most of them.....

Tommy says Carnera couldn't punch much .... "But he'd almost floor you when he breathed a mouthful of garlic into your face"....

Here's little Vic Marsello....manager of welterweight Charley Fusari....when asked if his boy would engage in an elimination tournament, says .... "That bridge will come when I cross it...."

Little Jimmy Murray....the fight promoter who staged that Louis-Walker sell-out in San Francisco.. vows middleweight champ Ray Robinson is eager to battle Maurice Harper in S. F.'s Cow Palace for a $35,000 guarantee....that one, says Jimmy, would draw $150,000 "in the greatest town in the world...." and that from a lad who was raised in Brooklyn....

Here's little Major Roland Wooten....who flew 186 missions in fighter planes over Germany...before being shot down and badly shot up....he says Max Schmeling former heavyweight champ... saved his life ...."at that time," says Wooten "the Nazis were bumping off every American flyer they could get their hands on and Schmeling told them I was a Polish flyer....

Nat Rogers .... former Madison Square Garden matchmaker .... is now representing Vic Toweel ... world's bantam king....and clubs in such widely separated spots as South Africa, Minila and Tokyo.... he's now trying to arrange a match between Dado Marino and British-er Terry Allen for Tokyo....provided Gen. MacArthur okays it .... he also wants to put Bonnie Espenoso and Sandy Saddler together in Manila.....

And here's Johnny Gibson....Seton Hall College track coach.... who says his marvelous sprinter....Andy Stanfield....might surpass Jesse Owens' world records if Andy only had the same rah-rah spirit....

Even so, Gibson thinks Stanfield is the world's greatest all-around athlete since besides the sprints he can high jump six feet ... broad jump 25 feet and pole vault 11 feet without half trying....selah...

Kentucky Voted Top Cage Team

Oklahoma Aggies Cop Second Place

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Kentucky's basketball express, derailed Saturday by Vanderbilt, chugged in today as the No. 1 team for 1950-51.

The Wildcats arrived just ahead of Oklahoma A. & M. in the final Associated Press poll of the season.

Kentucky also nipped the Aggies in 1949, when the first poll was conducted.

Bradley, which placed sixth in the current poll, took top honors last year.

Kentucky's margin over Oklahoma A. & M. this time was only 26 points. Actually, the Aggies received 10 more first-place votes, 55 to 45, but the Wildcats got enough second and third place ballots to slip home first.

The 185 sports writers and broadcasters who participated in the voting gave Kentucky 1,439 points. Oklahoma A. & M. piled up 1,413 points. Standings:

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—THERE'S NO doubt that Joe DiMaggio meant it the other night when he told the baseball writers attached to the Yankees that he'd probably call it quits after this season.

Joe is 36, and he probably had enough aches in him that night to make abdication sound enticing. When that Arizona sun massages his training wounds, and he begins hitting the ball, it all will sound very silly to him—and when he is confronted with his remarks he will be inclined to say, "Who, me?"

Friend of Joe in New York gave him a little lecture on the long distance phone, after the story broke.

"Joe," the friend said, "never say good-bye in baseball. Make baseball say good-bye to you. Already remember what happened to Ruth. He was pretty good, too.

"But he was getting along in years—a good five or six years older than you are now—and he was still the highest paid player in baseball, though he wasn't the best ballplayer on the Yankee team. Lou Gehrig was. And the business office knew it.

"So somebody needled Babe into demanding the job as Yankee manager. The Yanks had a pretty good manager at the time . . . Joe McCarthy. But Babe waded into Jake Ruppert's office and said, in effect, 'Gimme that job or I quit'. So, when the time came to let him go, Ruppert had his 'out'. All he had to do was point to Babe's statement of a short time before. Otherwise, if he had just let him go, the fans would've torn down the Yankee Stadium."

Good advice, in the tricky business of sport. DiMaggio, like Joe Louis, Ted Williams and every other high-pay athlete who has come along in the uranium age of sport, can't put much away. Occasionally you read a piece saying that this or that fellow now makes more than Babe did, or Tunney, or Dempsey, or Jones and so forth, but you should laugh. When Babe made his $80,000 a year he paid about $8,000 in taxes, if that. When Tunney made nearly a million bucks for 30 minutes of work against Dempsey in their second fight, he was able to keep perhaps $900,000 of it.

The sports hero of today must keep going, if only to pay for his good years. Do you think Joe Louis, with all his inherent and ineffable dignity, would be making a spectacle of himself today if there were some other avenue open to him through which he could pay Unc?

Through his big earning years Louis probably didn't net much more than a quarter on every dollar he made . . . And since DiMag came along a little later, when the tariff was steeper, he probably netted less.

DiMag could come down with shingles around both ankles and his neck in 1951, or be benched for hitting .089 and fielding a garish .333. But unless he deliberately bows out—and he seemed to be in an abdicating mood the other night—the Yanks would still have to pay him $75,000 for the 1952 season. He makes a hundred now and, under baseball law, it's not possible for him to be offered a Yankee contract for more than a 25 per cent cut next year.

"The reason you've got to make 'em say good-bye to you," Joe's friend said, "is that they wouldn't dare, after what you've meant to them."

"Besides," he went on, "you've been headed for the Hall of Fame since the first day you came in the league. How would you feel with your kisser up there in Cooperstown if it said on the plaque that you hung up your glove when you had maybe three maybe four more good years left in you?

"Say it ain't so, Joe."

(Editor's Note: Besides, DiMag probably will have a wonderful year. He hasn't had as much peace of mind in years. He's gained the finest friend of his life—Joe, Jr.—the growing boy who may be the one who decides when Big Joe quits).

Abe Saperstein Sues For $50,000 Damages

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP) — Abe Saperstein, basketball promoter, today sued for $50,000 damages and other awards from an operator of a girls' cage club.

Saperstein owns the Harlem Globetrotters, a professional team. He accused Richard Hudson of Chicago, operator of National Sport Attractions, of misrepresenting his Globe Trotterettes as an auxiliary of the Globetrotters.

Saperstein's circuit court suit also asks that Hudson be forbidden to use the Globe Trotterette name and that he turn over to Saperstein all profits of his team since it began using the name in November.

317,000 Saw Baseball Series In Nippon

WICHITA, Kas., March 6 (INS)—The largest baseball attendance last year was not at the world series—but in far-off Japan.

This fact was made public today in the 1951 official baseball annual of the National Baseball Congress published today in Wichita.

More than 317,000 fans saw the eight-game series in Nippon between the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Capeharts and Japanese teams. Fort Wayne won the inter-hemisphere title.

Suspend Football

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 6 (AP)—Niagara University today suspended football for the duration of the present national emergency.

The principal reason is the shortage of player material. The university has lost some freshmen and many sophomores and juniors to the draft.

Jersey Joe Walcott Will Retire If He Is Beaten Tonight

DETROIT, March 6 (INS)—Jersey Joe Walcott plans to retire if he fails to win in his bid for the world's heavyweight boxing title in a 15-round bout against champion Ezzard Charles in Detroit tomorrow night.

Walcott's manager, Felix Bocciochio, said tonight on the eve of the bout:

"This is it. If Walcott fails to beat Charles, I'm going to retire him. Joe and I have agreed on it. I have set up a liquor business for Walcott in his hometown, Camden, N. J., and he should be able to earn a nice livelihood.

"He has given me everything I have asked of him including a few terrific thrills. Remember— this is his fourth crack at the title. Who else can match that?

"I want to emphasize: however, that we are not carrying a defeatist attitude into the ring against Charles. Walcott is serious in his insistence that he will beat Charles and even looks for a knockout.

MIAMI, Fla., March 6 (AP)—A handful of customers (42 ticket holders) collected at the rate of $1,574.70 when All British and War Stim, a couple of outsiders, formed the third largest daily double in Gulfstream Park's history today.

However, it was not the largest of the current winter season. Tropical Park hung out a daily double of $6,740.50 formed by Frilly Frock and Rough Cookie on January 13.

Gulfstream Park's largest daily double paid $1,795.40 on March 14, 1947, set by Brave Bid and Abrego. Its second biggest was worth $1,624.50 on March 15, 1950, molded by Trarab and Sombor.

Robinson-Mims Bout Is Reset For April 5

MIAMI, Fla., March 6 (AP) — The 10-round non-title fight between middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson and Holly Mims of Washinton has been tentatively reset for April 5 at Miami Stadium.

Dr. James J. McCormick of the Miami Boxing Board, examined Robinson again today and reported the fighter, ill with virus x, should be able to resume training within 10 days and be fit to fight within a month.

The fight originally was set for March 8 but was postponed when Robinson became ill last week.

Ellis Ryan To Vote For Happy Chandler

CLEVELAND, March 6 (AP)—Ellis Ryan, Cleveland Indians' president, confirmed reports today that he is going to vote for the re-election of A. B. (Happy) Chandler as commissioner of baseball.

He declared he could see no reason why the commissioner should be fired.

Heads of all the major league clubs are to meet Monday at Miami Beach, Fla., on whether the former Kentucky senator should be retained.

Lemmert Urges Cut In County Expenditures

Budget Requests Due March 30

Economy in the county finances must be stressed for the fiscal year beginning July 1, William H. Lemmert, president of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, declared yesterday at the group meeting in the Court House.

Lemmert made the statement as he announced that budget requests from the various departments must be presented on or before Friday, March 30.

This will give the board three weeks in which to establish the budget and set the tax levy, the commissioners reported.

The budget covering the fiscal year between July 1, 1951, and June 30, 1952, will be announced Tuesday, April 17.

With ever-rising costs of administration of the county government and its agencies, economy will be the keynote of this year's financial setup, Lemmert added.

He was joined in this statement by Commissioners James Holmes and James Orr. The three noted that another appropriation will have to be included in this year's budget.

That is for the construction of a road to the Savage River Dam. Through the arrangement on the erection of the dam, Allegany county will pay to the Upper Potomac River Commission the cost of building about seven miles of road from Bloomington to the dam.

Departments whose budget estimations are requested, include the sheriff's office, board of Education, Sylvan Retreat, County Home and Infirmary, the county roads department, clerk of Circuit Court, County Health Department and County Welfare Board.

Union Seniority Arrangements Unacceptable To Kelly Officials

Officials of Kelly-Springfield Tire Company announced yesterday they cannot accept a vote of Local 26, United Rubber Workers, Saturday night in overruling seniority arrangements in the production division.

The majority of the 150 union members present at the meeting voted to overrule the interpretation made by the local's executive board and Acting President Ralph C. Beard concerning the shutdown of the white sidewall department.

This department, with 14 employes, has had production stopped by a government order. The company, according to F. T. Bell, personnel manager, regards this stoppage as an elimination of a department.

Beard and the executive board met with the firm's officials and agreed that they would go along with the union contract on seniority.

The clause affecting this stoppage reads: "When a rubber division production department is eliminated, employes affected there have seniority rights throughout the production division."

Furlough notices have been posted in Departments 51-E and 63, of the production division, and the 14 white sidewall employes are being transferred there, Bell said.

"We cannot accept this union action on the matter which has already been decided by the company an agreed to by Beard and the executive board," Bell commented.

"Kelly solely regards the shutdown of Department 51-H (white sidewall) as an elimination," he added.

The company was notified by letter Monday of the union's Saturday action, but Beard, vice president who is acting president during the illness of R. C. Burkhart, said yesterday he has not received Kelly's reply.

The membership of the union can submit the matter to grievance action before an umpire, Bell said. Union officials did not indicate what future action would be taken.

Bell also announced that several furloughs are being posted throughout the plant as it reverts to a five-day schedule.

The company had been working six days a week until rubber supplies were restricted by the government.

"How I Relieve Distress of Monthly Female Complaints and nervous feelings several days before... with Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—truly 'the woman's friend'"

"Several days just before my period I'd feel so nervous, irritable, so restless, easily upset at the slightest thing—due to female functional monthly disturbances, I asked my druggist for something to take, and he told me Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now I get simply amazing relief from this distress. Pinkham's Compound also relieves monthly headache, backache and those miserable 'bearing-down' pains—due to this cause. Taken regularly—it helps build up resistance against such distress.

"What also impressed me about Lydia Pinkham's Compound is that it's made strictly from nature's roots and herbs (plus Vitamin B1). There are no harmful drugs in it. This is really a great comfort. I wish you girls troubled this way would give this great medicine a fair trial."

P. S. Pinkham's Compound tastes swell in a little fruit juice or just plain water. Or you may prefer Lydia Pinkham's TABLETS with added iron—pleasant to take and easy to carry in your purse.

Baering Down On The News

English politician accused Winnie Churchill of having a Microphone built in his cigar. Winnie treats that implication with a shrug of his rather tight scalp.

• — • — •

An implication in an insinuation that's hatched. Since an American admiral took over the British Navy, we will admit Winnie has been as dazed as a Missouri cat fish in a paddle-wheel.

• — • — •

Last year, the Admirality made the last payment on the battle of Trafalgar. Now that they've got that out of the way they will take up this other matter.

• — • — •

Winnie says only an Englishman should command the Royal Navy, afloat or in the blue prints. If all babies look alike Winnie, has one grown up to be an admiral?

• — • — •

Nobody has responded to the suggestion that loaded Chinese in North Korea be admitted as displaced persons.

• — • — •

It was just an idea that didn't get by the committee on foreign guffaws. Nor has Commissar Stalin depuzzled our other intricate question of protocol. How can a half-dozen Chinamen — walking single-file down a narrow street—be going to six different places?

• — • — •

All we know about the eastern situation is the direction. Too bad Ripley isn't here to get his meandering mandarins marching again.

P. S. Maybe the Commissar would like to stop the electric fan and clean out that egg?

The city officials also agreed to pay the town's share or the extra expense necessary of operating the two way radio FM radio control system for Keyser, Piedmont, Luke and Westernport providing all of the rest of the communities cooperate.

The extra expense includes $90 for an aerial for the master station at Keyser; $290 for a device to keep the station on its proper channel and $20 per month for George Freeland of Romney to service the police cars of the four towns and the master station at Keyser. Didwick Freed After Hearing

A B. and O. worker was acquitted Monday in Westernport on assault and battery charges preferred by his wife, who admitted stabbing him after a quarrel Saturday.

The defendant, Stanley Didwick, of McCoole, was released after a hearing before Magistrate John Laughlin.

State Police said Mrs. Mildred Didwick obtained a warrant for her husband's arrest following a dispute in which she stabbed him in the shoulder with a hunting knife. Reasons for the altercation were not revealed.

Trooper Milton G. Hart, who investigated, said the stabbing was reported by an unidentified neighbor. Didwick received medical attention for the wound, but he did not require hospitalization.

No charges were filed against Mrs. Didwick, the trooper stated.

The argument and stabbing occurred at night, he said, adding the woman later swore out the warrant in Westernport against her husband.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 6 (INS)—Wonder what all the smart boys, who think only sex-y actors pay off at the box office, thought when 12,000,000 teen-age girls of the YWCA voted George Montgomery their "favorite star?"

Whether his pictures play the plush movie palaces or not, that's a ready-made audience which can't be laughed off. And he brought these kids into camp because he makes only good, clean, wholesome pictures.

George's next independent will be "The Red Blizzard," a magazine story in which he'll play a half-breed Sioux Indian. Because more and more he wants to keep control over what goes into his films, he will not only star in and produce the picture—he's also the assistant director.

"Mutiny On The Bounty," one of the all-time big money-makers, will have a first cousin in "Rum Rebellion." Carey Wilson, who's getting the further adventures of Captain Bligh ready, says "Rum Rebellion" is not a sequel to "Mutiny" in any sense of the word.

I don't believe that anyone has had more people impersonate him than Charles Laughton as Captain Bligh in "Mutiny," unless it's Charles Boyer and his "come with me to the Casbah." These are two characters that will live as long as there are motion pictures—and imitators.

Greer Garson tells me that instead of Buddy Fogelson retiring, he is spending 15 hours a day in the Midland oil fields working hard.

"He feels fine now, and I am joining him in Dallas just as soon as they tell me I am no longer needed at M-G-M.

Making 'The Law and Lady Loverly' was a very pleasant experience," Greer told me. "We brought the picture in seven and a half days ahead of schedule. Such a contrast to the four months I spent on 'The Miniver Story' in England. If I can make pictures that fast I can still spend time with Buddy, and I must say I do like acting."

Chatter in Hollywood:

I am sorry, indeed, that there was no reconciliation for the Jeff Chandlers. He took her home from a party but they couldn't settle their difficulties. Last night Mrs. Chandler was with Johnny Grant, at the Saddle and Sirloin.

Some of Jeff's friends now say that there are two sides to every story, and that one reason for the break up was that Mrs. Chandler wanted a film career.

Well, all I can say is that after the girls see him in "Bird Of Paradise," he's going to be the hottest actor in America—and I mean hot!

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Myrna Loy has set the second week in April for her marriage to Howland Sargeant. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will be among the guests.

The blonde beauty Andy McIntyre took to Ciro's was not Marilyn Maxwell, his ex, although they look alike. She is Norma Everhardt, who was once escorted here and there by George Raft.

Zachary Scott and Peggy Morrow Hayward, still thataway, were at a table for two. Peggy wore a chapeau bedecked with birds of paradise.

Marlene Dietrich, looking like a debutante, with Michael Wilding and Jean Simmons and Stewart Granger. Jean was celebrating her new contract at RKO, which keeps her right in Hollywood.

Phil Terry, once married to Joan Crawford, and away from acting for seven years, auditioned at the west seven years, auditioned at the Philharmonic last week for the Philharmonic last week for the west coast "Guys And Dolls." Phil owns a hotel around here and has been very much out of circulation.

Bob Hope took time off to act as best man at Jennifer Holt's (Jack's daughter) wedding to Hugh David, advertising executive. They were married in Colorado Springs.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Instrument Detects Heart Disease Miniature Earthquake-Recording

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A miniature earthquake-recording instrument has been developed by government experts to detect heart disease.

The instrument is strapped across a patient's shins and is so sensitive it records the tiny vibrations caused in the body by each beat of the heart.

The principle is the same as that used in the seismograph, that records earth movements and detects quakes.

The instrument is called a "ballistocardiograph." Such an instrument has been in limited use in medmical diagnosis, an announcement said, but a government heart specialist and electronic experts have added improvements.

Describing these today, the Civil Aeronautics Administration said addition of electronic devices will make the ballistocardiograph practical for wider use and bring its price down so more doctors can afford to own one.

The development work was done by Dr. J. E. Smith of the Civil Aeronautics Administration and electronic experts.

Dr. Smith said tests now are being made on a group of people 40 to 49 years of age. He predicted one in five will be found to have some indications of heart disease, although other forms of diagnosis did not disclose them.

The new device is attached to an electrocardiograph, used for many years to detect heart difficulties.

Seven "Jail Widows" Woo Burma's Minister As Security Substitute

By DOUGLAS LACKERSTEEN

RANGOON—(AP) — Seven Karen women want Prime Minister Thekin Nu to marry them as a guarantee against poverty, hunger and loneliness.

These women have husbands, but their spouses have been detained in jails throughout the country since 1949 under emergency regulations.

The women banded themselves into a "distressed wives legion" and declared themselves open to any reasonable proposition.

The "legionnaires" held a press conference to declare Thakin Nu should marry them, since he deprived them of their husbands.

They explained an ancient Karen tribal law taught not only an eye for an eye, but a husband for a husband.

They told newsmen several hundred Karen women whose menfolk were jailed by the government at the outbreak of government-Karen hostilities early in 1949 were in "desperate straits."

The women said the government had seized their property and frozen their bank accounts, reducing most to beggery.

Several younger women, they said, had committed suicide through sheer desperation.

All the women were the wives of onetime prosperous Karen businessmen.

They said Thakin Nu had pardoned Communists and other rebels when he proclaimed "95 per cent peace" in the land, refused to free their husbands "merely because they were Karens."

When the Karen rebellion began in January, 1949, the Burmese government rounded up Karens throughout the country.

Hundreds, considered loyal, were relieved of army and civilian appointments and housed in rest camps for "their own protection." Those in government employ were retained on the payroll but were paid at half rates.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The Amateur Turns Pro

THE MOTTO at the base of the Statue of Liberty would make a very apt motto for television at its present state of development. "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses . . . the wretched refuse of your teeming shore." A good many tired (though hardly poor) folk from the movies, the theater and radio have crowded into TV and are cluttering up the joint with ancient routines designed specifically for other media.

John Crosby

Matinee idols of 20 or 30 years ago—Neil Hamilton, Conrad Nagel, Buddy Rogers—are emceeing quiz shows or audience participation shows. The matinee idol comes from silent pictures, the program idea is borrowed from radio and the quiz questions are lifted from McGuffey's Reader. Almost everybody has got into the act now—Eddie Cantor, Edgar Bergen, Jimmy Durante, Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Burns & Allen. "Pretty soon," muttered one disgruntled network vice president, "These people will have to be brought on in wheelchairs."

George Rosen in "Variety" reports: "Television in the short span of 18 months has practically gone through what it took radio 25 years to exhaust . . . Material that had a life-long guarantee in vaude and other show biz media has been drained, leaving the TV cupboard threadbare . . . Everybody is asking "Where do we go from here?"

It might be instructive to turn back to radio for guidance. Television now is about at the same milepost as radio in 1929 and with almost the same type of big show. It was in that year that the Rudy Vallee show, a tremendous success from the beginning, was launched. The graybeards among you will remember that the Vallee show was a variety show which bore a startling resemblance to both the Milton Berle and the Ed Sullivan type television shows.

Vallee procured the best vaudeville acts, the best singers, the most noted actors, chatted with them a bit and then turned them loose to do their turns. This is pretty much what Mr. Berle (though he never quite lets go) and Mr. Sullivan do now. The comedian or singer or whatever was on his own on the Vallee show and he brought his own material with him from vaudeville, night club or the stage. The Jack Benny-type of intimate, imaginative, character comedy was not born until 1932 and didn't really flower until a good many years later. Do you know who first introduced Mr. Benny to a microphone? He was a guest on the radio program of our old friend Ed Sullivan.

• — • — •

Mr. Vallee, as a bigtime radio entertainer, disappeared long ago and the type of show he broadcast is not to be found anywhere on the radio. Radio went on to develop its own forms. Some of them were pretty bad but at least they were distinctive to radio and could be found no where else. Jerry Colonna, for example, telephoning Bob Hope: "Bob, can you start building a 48 story building from the 12th floor" —"No!"—"Boys, come down!" That's a radio joke. It couldn't be told in any other medium.

The fact is, that television has lost its original innocence which was once its most appealing quality. Just four years ago, television was amateur sport. No one could conceivably make any money at it so no one tried. Man could be as creative or esthetic or plain elfin as he liked. Chicago fell with delight on "Kukla, Fran & Ollie." New York put on "Macbeth" which is out of Shakespeare and "The Black Robe" which came out of the Bowery. Television couldn't afford Eddie Cantor so they settled for Dave Garroway.

• — • — •

As I say, television was amateur sport then and, just when it was getting to be a pretty good amateur, the darn thing turned pro. The TV broadcaster is now faced with the appalling prospect of earning money, lots of money and the dirty green stuff has paralyzed its initiative. Money is a terrible thing. And just as the performers were amateurs a few years back so was the audience. The set-owner was enchanted with the fact that he could see Milton Berle. Now he expects Berle not only to be visible but to tell good jokes, an impossible demand on Berle. He wants major league standards.

Well, back in 1929 radio was just beginning to get, as they say in the trade, big. It had its early amateurs like Stoopnagle and Budd, genuinely creative spirits, who were later overwhelmed by the big shows. Television, it seems to me, is about in radio's '29 to '31 phase. As an amateur it looked all-American. As a pro, it's still in the Three-I League know the extent to which they have unwittingly damaged Anglo-American relations and stimulated the isolationist sentiment—they are so preoccupied with getting our troops out of Korea and into Europe that they are unintentionally building up a logical argument for appeasement with Moscow over all issues in Europe, too.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

In Memoriam

In remembrance of our dear husband and father, George McMurdo, who died one year ago today, March 7, 1950.
When evening shadows fall and we are sitting all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing, If you only could be home,
Often and often our thoughts do wander, To your grave so far away, where we laid you dearest father,
One year ago today.
Sadly missed by his Wife and Daughters

In loving memory of my dear husband, Frank W. Kane, who died March 7th, 1948.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
Loving and kind in all their ways,
Upright and just to the end of their days,
Sincere and true in hearts and minds,

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Are mentally healthy people "cheerful"?

Answer: As a rule, yes—most of the time. If you are willing to adjust yourself to life as it is and make the most of it, you will usually find ways of getting enough satisfaction out of it to keep you reasonably cheerful and contented. But this does not mean that being cheerful proves you to be healthy-minded. There is a false, "Pollyanna" kind of cheerfulness which is achieved by refusing to face the fact that you are inwardly unhappy and frustrated. And this may lead to potentially disastrous inner conflicts.

Must you "learn to like yourself"?

Answer: It would be more accurate to say that you must learn to recognize your right to like yourself, since you cannot help doing so with the more primitive part of your mind and your feeling that you ought not to only causes needless emotional conflict. But liking yourself does not mean thinking you are perfect—it means ceasing to attempt to judge or evaluate yourself (which you cannot do in any case because you cannot see yourself objectively) and concentrating on what you should do to get and give a maximum amount of happiness.

May psychoanalysis release suicidal trends?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Louis S. London, Washington psychiatrist. He describes a patient who, after partial analysis had liberated a "Jehovah Complex," had to be committed to a mental hospital and later killed himself with an overdose of sleeping tablets. Had the analysis been continued, the physician should have been able to eliminate or control the patient's repressed hostile urges by letting him "work them out" in his relations with the analyst. A person who understands the meaning of the impulse to kill himself usually will not do so.

Band Parents' Leader Named

FROSTBURG—Mrs. Robert Wilson, Frost Avenue, was elected president of the Beall High School Band Parents Association at a recent meeting held in the music room of the school.

Robert Wilson told of a similar organization that has been doing splendid work for the Fort Hill High School Band in Cumberland.

Other officers elected were Stanley Chidester, treasurer, and Mrs. Edgar Miller, membership chairman. The remaining officers will be named at the next meeting.

Membership cards will be obtained and made available to interested parents or patrons. Another meeting of the group will be held at the school Tuesday, March 13, 7:30 p. m.

Registration Planned

BARTON—The spring registration of beginning children will be held in the first grade room of Barton School. It is important that all children whose sixth birthday falls on or before Dec. 31, 1951, be enrolled for the September first grade class. The birth certificate for the child should also be presented on registration day. Definite date will be announced later.

The Merry-Go-Round

priority on new troops from the United States.

However, after the Russians seized a group of small islands off the northeast coast of Japan, the Joint Chiefs hastily reconsidered. These islands constitute the Habomai group, which Russia apparently will claim as part of the Kurile chain.

Helping Small BMusiness

Veteran Washington observers would be a lot happier about the recently hurly-burly over helping small business if more was being done and less said about it. Here is a typical example involving one of our scarest materials, aluminum, needed for aircraft and other defense equipment.

The National Production Authority has drastically restricted the manufacture of aluminum clothespins, coasters, toys, furniture and other things produced chiefly by little business firms. No patriotic American—including small business fabricators, who must either fold up or use a substitute material—will argue with this order.

Defense uses of aluminum have priority over toys and clothespins.

However, the NPA so far has ordered only moderate restrictions on the manufacture of aluminum pots and pans, produced chiefly by the Wearever Company, a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America, though millions of pounds of aluminum are used yearly for kitchen utensils.

The NPA has also banned the use of aluminum roofing and siding in homes in which little business firms specialize. However, no such restrictions affects industrial siding and corrugated roofing for barns and factories, produced chiefly by the big Reynolds and Kaiser companies.

Washington Pipeline

The Glenn Martin Company will mass-produce the amazing new British jet bomber, the Canberra. Put out by the English Electric Co., the Canberra is the first plane designed by that company since 1918. Twelve a month are now being produced in England. Martin will turn out 12 a week within a short time . . . Ike Eisenhower's biggest beef is that only a fifth of our troops are used for combat, while the Soviet percentage is 75 per cent . . . Anna Rosenberg, the Assistant Secretary of Defense, is the star attraction at the Pentagon and is trotted out for brief speeches at all big-time gatherings . . . One of the colorful veterans of Congress, Rep. Robert "Muley" Doughton of North Carolina, looked over the lineup against reciprocal trade agreements on the House floor and whispered in a voice that carried to the galleries: "The Republicans got enough votes today to repeal the 10th Commandment."

Scattered Strength Fails To Bring Market Advance

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP) — A lot of scattered strength in the stock market failed to bring about a general advance today.

The leadership in many cases was good, but the market as a whole failed to follow through decisively.

As a result prices closed on the up side by a few cents to as much as $2 a share while those on the losing side posted losses of a few cents to a little more than a dollar a share.

Packard closed up ⅞ at 6¼, a new high for 1950-51. It was the day's most active issue with 99,600 shares changing hands.

General Motors, the fourth most active issue with 23,900 shares traded, closed up ½ at 51.

Some issues most active and higher were National Power & Light up 2-16 at 15-16, Radio ⅝ at 19¾, American Airlines ⅞ at 15¼, Pepsi Cola ⅛ at 7⅝, and Missouri Pacific preferred (15th most active) 1¾ at 29.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 30 cents at $94.90 with the industrial component down 30 cents, rails 20 cents, and utilities off 40 cents.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BIDDING A 3-CARD SUIT

YOU WON'T often see a chance to bid a three-card suit and know that it is a sound try to play the hand in that declaration. It could be sound, of course, only if you could infer that your partner held enough cards of it to make it playable. That could be the fact in a number of unusual situations which develop from time to time. One of those is in sight when your opponents have bid and raised another suit and your partner then cue-bid their suit, indicating a probable blank in it and plenty of cards elsewhere.

What would you do in South's position. The brilliant player who sat there reflected on the information given by his partner's call. Clearly North had taken responsibility for the side's high-card strength, and clearly he was ready to stand sponsor for anything South did. But, as South pondered, he realized that North must be at least as well fixed for spades as for anything else, probably better. In fact, five spades were likely to be found in North's hand. If that was the case, three in his own would be enough for South, with the pair holding eight.

So South bid 4-Spades. West doubled that, and it required a certain amount of hold-steady nerves, combined with confidence in his partner, to keep South from running out to 5-Clubs. But he remained steadfast and passed.

The heart Q lead was ruffed by the spade 3 and the diamond Q led to the A. West led back the 5 to the diamond K. The club 5 was led to the A and the club given up. Later the spade A won a trick for the defenders, but it was only their third.

Can you notice how things might have been complicated for South if West had led a second heart at trick three, to force a second ruff in the dummy? Just follow that through, if you want to see something interesting. This, however, is the story of what actually did happen, not what could have happened.

Can you outline any natural play of the cards which would make East's use of his heart the vital factor in whether South makes 4-Hearts or fails?

Senate Passes County School Board Measure

Kauffman Defends Reorganization Bill

The Senate yesterday passed with only one negative vote Senator Robert B. Kimble's bill to reorganize the Allegany County Board of Education.

Senators have approved the same suggestions twice in the past, only to have it fail in the House.

Senate Bill 249, introduced by the Senate minority leader, specifies that the Allegany County School Board shall be composed of five persons appointed by the governor.

Two of the school board members must be women and at least two members of the political party that polled the second highest number of votes in the most recent gubernatorial election.

Kauffman Testifies

Two department heads were at odds before the House Ways and Means Committee. Director I. Alvin Pasarew of the State Planning Commission favored a reorganization of his agency into three divisions. Two would handle research and planning, commerce and economic development. The other would provide information services, and in so doing absorb the present department of information.

John P. Trimmer, former newspaperman now director of the department at $6,000 a year, charged in a prepared statement that he had not been consulted about a bill seeking the transfer. Neither were some members of the planning commission, Trimmer contended.

The hearings was recessed before Trimmer spoke, but William S. Wilson, Jr., of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, attacked the bill.

Pasarew defended it, as did David Kaufman of Cumberland. Kaufman, chairman of Allegany County's Steering Committee on Economic Development, saw in the proposed commission a boon to industrial expansion. Western Maryland still has acute unemployment troubles, Kaufman said.

"Our bellies up there are not full enough to be detached and academic about this matter," he said.

Governor Signs Bill

Joint Resolution 5, introduced by Delegates See and Kelley, has been signed by Governor McKeldin.

It requests the Office of Defense Mobilization to establish defense industries in the City of Cumberland.

Pushes City Program

W. Earle Cobey was in Annapolis yesterday conferring with the Allegany County Delegation on the city's legislative program, most of which is still in the hands of the delegation.

Cobey is expected to remain there today in an effort to push the city sponsored bills through before the session ends this month.

Seek Finance Data

Senate Democrats called upon state fiscal officers yesterday to give them a down to earth report on Maryland finances—stripped of all frills—so that they may get a quick answer to the question:

Rev. Grove Will Give Invocation

Plans are progressing satisfactorily for the annual Memorial Service of Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Sunday, March 11, at 2 p. m., in the lodge room, North Mechanic Street.

William L. Wilson, local attorney, will give the oration at the pageant which will honor 47 members of the club who died during the past year and 16 members who lost their lives in the service of their country during World War II.

The 3,100-member lodge plans to stage the ceremony amid a white setting denoting a spring flower garden with girls on either side of the altar dropping red carnations on an open Bible as the names of the deceased members are tolled.

Rev. Kenneth W. Grove, pastor of Emmanuel Methodist Church, will give the invocation while prayer for the deceased will be led by Rabbi Herbert N. Wilner of B'er Chayim Temple. The benediction will be by Rev. Father Lewis, pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Church.

Speed Long Distance Calls

Operators at the Cumberland exchange of the C. and P. Telephone Company are seen using the modern operator toll dial equipment to speed long distance telephone calls. Mrs. Evelyn Bazell, 229 Union Street, (right) is seen punching one of the keys which route the call to its destination. Miss Winona Iden, RFD 5, at her left, is operating another place on the 19 position long distance board. The complex mechanism works similarly to a dial system but is much faster.

Safety Patrol Will Visit Washington

Annual Trip Is Set For May 12

Nearly 600 Allegany county Safety Patrol members will make their annual visit to Washington May 12 under the sponsorship of the Western Maryland Motor Club.

Arrangements for the affair are in the hands of the safety committee of the Allegany County Council of Parents and Teachers and the Elementary School Principals' Association.

J. Walter Byer, president of the Western Maryland AAA, said it has been nine years since an accident has occurred in any school safety zone where a patrolman has been on duty in the county, and the trip to Washington is a reward to the members for their outstanding work.

The trip for the local students is financed by donations from the PTA, fraternal organizations, Mayor and Council of Cumberland, Allegany County Commissioners and other groups.

The large group will make the trip by train. Byers said there will be one leader for every 25 children.

Lunch will be provided the group on the train. The patrolmen will dress in uniform, and the delegation will return home the same evening.

Last year 512 patrolmen attended the gathering in Washington with Allegany High's band leading the group in the parade. The Fort Hill High band is expected to go this year.

Fire Chiefs Will Plan Aid Program

The Allegany-Garrett Volunteer Fire Chiefs Association will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Corriganville Fire Hall.

The fire chiefs will discuss plans for mutual aid in protecting area communities and industrial plants from fire hazards.

Tentative plans have already been worked out, at conferences with Assistant Fire Chief R. Paul Reid, for fire protection of areas which might be prime targets during an atomic war.

Seek Dumping Warrant

Health Department officials reported yesterday they will seek warrants today against two trucks reported dumping refuse on the Country Club Road. J. B. Dowling, state sanitarian, said the alleged violations occurred Monday.

New Equipment Speeds Long Distance Calls

Push Buttons Used To Activate Circuits

Operator toll dial switching equipment installed several months ago in the Cumberland Exchange of the C. and P. Telephone Company is improving the speed and accuracy of long distance calls to and from this city.

Richard E. Harman, manager, said the equipment is becoming increasingly useful as additional metropolitan areas are placed on the automatic circuits.

The key pulsing equipment is similar in operation to a dial system but is much faster, since the dialing operation is replaced by push buttons.

The operator simply plugs into the desired metropolitan circuit and then punches out upon a set of 10 buttons the code number which actuates the mechanism.

In calls going to or through New York or Philadelphia, the operator here is able to complete the call directly to the distant telephone in a matter of seconds.

Harman said the use of such equipment has been a big factor in speeding long distance calls. In 1920, he said, an average of 14 minutes was required to complete an out-of-town call. When the new equipment was installed last August the average was down to one and one-half minutes.

The equipment is now used on some 1,500,000 calls a day, about one-third of the calls handled by the Bell System's long distance operators.

The Cumberland exchange long distance board has 14 positions for outgoing long distance calls and five for incoming messages.

For nearby communities which have dial systems, the incoming calls are completed automatically.

Ultimately, it will be possible for telephone users to dial anyone anywhere in the United States, or perhaps in the world, Harman said.

In some cities, it is now possible for customers to dial many of their own long distance calls.

A new automatic accounting system automatically punches a record of the call into a tape which translates the data into billing information so the customer will be charged for the call.

Soldier Is Held

City Police picked up Pvt. Richard E. Redman, 512 Hill Street, Monday and held him for Army authorities. Military Police were notified to pick up the soldier.

Many Kinfolk Named In Lengthy Will

Nieces, Nephews Among Recipients

A lengthy nine-page will in which Frank J. Bealky, 82, of 8 Massachusetts Avenue, left real estate to three nephews, a niece and a grand nephew and cash bequests totaling $5,100 to other nieces and nephews was admitted to probate yesterday in Orphans Court.

His widow, Mrs. Sadie Nickel Bealky, was bequeathed all household goods and furniture in fee simple and a life estate in property at 10 Massachusetts Avenue. The will also provided that she be paid $50 per month from the trust.

Upon Bealky's widow's death, all of the trust estate provided in the will shall be sold and converted into cash. This cash will be divided equally among seven nephews and one niece. They are John Andrews, Frank Andrews, Clarence Andrews, Bernard Andrews, Robert Bealky, Bernard Bealky, Jr., George Lewis Bealky and Mary A. Clarke.

Rep. Beall Says No Decision Made On Army QM Lab Site

No definite decision has been made in selection of a site for the new Quartermaster Corps laboratory according to a letter received by Francis A. Kenney, chairman of the Allegany County Industrial Promotion Committee from Rep. J. Glenn Beall.

"I have been in constant contact with government officials relative to Cumberland being selected at the site for the new Quartermaster Corps Laboratory," Beall said in the letter. "Just this morning I contacted General Marshall's office, and as of today no definite decision has been made."

The letter from the Sixth District representative was in reply to a letter from Kenney to the effect that a rumor has been circulating in this area that the laboratory may be located in Philadelphia, Pa. Kenney pointed out to Beall that Philadelphia is rated as a "B" area which means that it is an area of high employment while Cumberland is rated as a "E" area which is an area of exceptionally low employment.

"If this rumor is true," Kenney said, "it appears that the federal government is attempting to locate the project in an area where it will be difficult, or even impossible, to find the necessary personnel to staff the facility."

Congressman Beall indicated he understands the desirability of having the laboratory located here and promised to do everything possible to get it here.

Complaints Will Be Investigated By Liquor Board

Frostburg Reports Under Advisement

The Allegany County Liquor Control Board announced yesterday it will hold questions concerning rumored violations by two Frostburg license-holding establishments under advisement until a full and official investigation is made.

The board yesterday asked John C. Davis, license holder at the Camellia Room, and Harry Frost, president and one of the licensees at the Century Club, to testify in connection with complaints listed in two anonymous letters received by the board.

Walter C. Capper, chairman, reported following the hearing, that the board found no truth in the charges listed in the unsigned letters.

He added that it is the duty of the board to investigate any complaints it receives.

The board also has a duty, he emphasized, to stand by the license holder and publicly clear him of charges in the event the evidence shows he is not guilty.

The letters charged that on February 18, several persons were seen leaving the Camellia Room at 5:30 a. m. where the "rumor" has been that there had been a "brawl."

Denies Brawl Rumor

Davis said he was in Florida on that date, but his investigation disclosed that his bartender, Ray Kimmel, of Cumberland, who had been left in charge, had been in the place between 5:45 a. m. and 5:30 a. m.

Kimmel, under oath, told the board that he had been to a private party in Frostburg after he closed the cocktail lounge at 1 a. m.

He said he returned from the party with two companions shortly before 5 to check the register and get the cash receipts to take to his home in Cumberland.

Kimmel stated that there had not been any brawl. They added that the front window curtains had been open and the main light on during the time Kimmel was attending to the financial matter.

Men Ordered Out

There was also reference made to a "high source" being interested in operation at the Camellia Room. The "high source" was not identified.

In a reference to the rumored ownership of the Camellia Room, Davis said he could submit evidence that he and his wife, Mrs. Mary Davis, were the sole owners.

Frost admitted that Saturday, February 17, near midnight, a scrap developed between two men in the Century Club.

He said he ordered the men out of the club and broke up the fight that continued on the stair landing outside the club.

Frost informed the board the club had never been cited for violations or for being a "rough place".

R. G. LETOURNEAU

Industrialist To Speak To Church Group

R. G. LeTourneau Here Next Sunday

R. G. LeTourneau, pioneer industrialist and machine builder, will address a mass meeting Sunday, March 11 at 2:30 p. m. at Centre Street Methodist Church here.

The meeting will be presided over by Rev. Arthur Scrogrum, minister of the Living Stone Church of the Brethren and president of the Cumberland Ministerial Association which is sponsoring the appearance of the well-known manufacturer.

Robert Gilmour LeTourneau pioneered the mammoth earth-moving machines used in huge construction jobs such as dams, airports, army cantonments, highways, and large buildings.

He was abong the first to use pneumatic tires on these huge machines overcoming heavy and costly obstacles encountered with his bulldozers, scrapers, angledozers, tractors, Tournacranes and other large earth movers.

LeTourneau has given much of his personal fortune to the advancement of Christian work and spends much of his time traveling from city to city preaching the Gospel. He and his wife have established the LeTourneau Foundation "to teach, promulgate and disseminate the Gospel of Jesus Christ throughout the world."

The genial businessman is deeply sincere in his role as "God's Businessman," and relates his story of the practical application of Christian principles to his business which has helped him raise to his present position. His platform is "speed, the welding torch, and the Bible."

Speaking to audiences of more than two million people in his tours LeTourneau told them "There are two things I like to do. One is to design machinery and the other is to tell people about the power of the Gospel and see it work in their lives."

Whitehair Again Nominated For VFW Commander

Everstine Bows Out As Quartermaster

Raymond F. Whitehair was nominated without opposition for a second one-year term as commander of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, but Roy F. Everstine, post quartermaster since 1940, declined to seek reelection, last night.

When Everstine's name was placed in nomination he withdrew, nominating Paul W. Moore as, his successor. Everstine said he thought a World War II veteran should have the important quartermaster job.

Others nominated last night were George Speis, senior vice-commander; William Raymond, junior vice-commander; Thomas K. Whalley, judge-advocate; Russell Reynolds, chaplain; Dr. Richard J. Williams, surgeon, and Edward C. Kilroy, three-year term as trustee.

The election will be held at the Post Home, 205 Union Street, Tuesday, March 20.

In another action last night the post voted unanimously to support Frank Webb for senior vice-commander of the State VFW. He now is junior vice-commander.

Plans also were advanced to extend the circulation of the post news letter so that all Cumberland area men in the service can receive copies.
